TRADE AND LITERARY GOSSIP.

DAY & SON, LIMITED.—The money article of The Standard, Jan. 29, contains the following satisfactory notice of the working of this Company:—"The directors of Day & Son (Limited) announce an interim dividend for the past half-year at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum. The profitable working of the business within the half-year not only allows the payment of the guaranteed dividend, and all other charges, without encroaching upon the surplus of the previous half-year, but leaves a further surplus to be carried forward. The directors believe that the business as at present developed is but the nucleus of what may be done, and with this object in view considerable alterations have been made to the premises in Gate Street, and large additional and adjoining buildings purchased. Greater facilities will thus be afforded to the publishing department; photography, as applied to photolithography, will be carried on at the top of the new premises, and law writing, law stationery, and printing at once commenced upon. In addition to this, the company has just commenced business as artistic and portrait photographers, at 43, Piccadilly, under the able management of Mr. Vernon Heath."

Fractions must in future be taught as a portion of commercial education; for we observe that in the notice of dividends in Tuesday's Gazette, one estate—that of a banker at Bromsgrove—pays a dividend of 1³/₄d. in the pound, and another—that of an ironmaster, at Walsall—pays a second dividend of 1³/₄d.

BEDFORD.—The well known book trade, with other branches, of Mr. John G. Nall, (formerly conducted by Mr. Wm. White, principal door-keeper of the House of Commons,) has passed to Mr. James Rogers Porter, through the agency of Mr. Gray, of Croydon.

HINCKLEY.—Mr. Thomas Short, after a long course of business as Bookseller and Printer in this town, has retired in favour of Mr. Edward Houlston, of Nuneaton, who now holds a leading position in the trade in both those towns. Valuation made by Mr. Gray, of Croydon.

LEEK, Staffordshire.—Mr. Charles R. Jones, of Ludlow, has been valued in by Mr. Gray, of Croydon, as successor to the old established business of Mr. M. Hilliard, of Leek, who for the future confines himself to the Auction and Agency departments.

LINCOLN.—We are informed by Mr. Holmes, that Mr. Gale, late of Lynn, has entered into partnership with Mr. Cousans, of Lincoln. The valuation was made by Mr. Holmes and Mr. Cussons (Horncastle).

Messrs. Rutter & Son, 149, St. John Street, mSithfield, have also taken a partner, and will trade for the future under the style of Rutter, Pitcairn, & Rutter. The valuation was made by Mr. Holmes.

Mr. Gray informs us that the Misses Warren (whom he has introduced by valuation into the business lately relinquished by Mr. Rist at Edwards Terrace, Kensington,) are from Royston, where for many years they have been actively engaged with a brother in a large miscellaneous trade; and as an evidence of the esteem in which the sisters were held in their native town, a handsome testimonial, value about £100, from the nobility and ladies of the neighbourhood, headed by the Countess of Hardwicke, was most quickly subscribed and presented, on the announcement of their being about to remove to Kensington, where they commence business with every prospect of good success.

Sylvanus Urban is not dead yet. Although in his 135th year, the old Gentleman's Magazine is stouter and heartier-looking than ever. Long may he flourish! A new series was commenced with the January number, which is published by Messrs. Bradbury and Co., we believe under the management of Mr. Edward Walford, who was a contributor to the former series, and is said to be now the proprietor of the magazine. The articles are well-selected, and both editor and contributors appear to be imbued with the right spirit. It cannot be too widely known that the Gentleman's is not only the oldest of the magazines, but was the first publication of a serial bearing the name of magazine. It is the only work to which we can refer for the births and deaths of the past century. We would urge upon the new editor the desirableness of making his obituary notices as complete as possible; more attention being given to the decease of men of mark than to mere county families.

The Monthly Packet also commences a new and enlarged series. The thirtieth volume has been completed, and the editor (we believe there is no such person as an editress now) congratulates herself and readers upon the success of the magazine. From the foolscap size it has become a full demy octavo. This appears to be the only change, and perhaps more was not necessary.

A new volume of the Magazine for the Young, a great favourite with children, has just made its appearance, dressed like a Quaker, forming a remarkable contrast to the gaudy coats in which magazines now appear when bound.

Messrs. Lothian & Co., who recently commenced business in Ave Maria Lane, have issued two new missionary journals. One a little quarterly the Mission Field, profusely illustrated, is devoted to the Central African Mission. It is full of interesting details of missionary life, and contains a sermon by the Bishop of Oxford. The second, the Net Cast Among Many Waters, is edited by Miss Mackenzie, daughter of the late Bishop, and, being unconnected with any missionary society, will be free from the trammels which beset other magazines of a similar kind.

The Household, a Magazine of Domestic Economy and Home Enjoyment, is the title of a new twopenny magazine, published by Messrs. Groombridge. The contents fully bear out the title.

The Public Schools' Calendar (Rivington's) has quietly assumed a position as one of those books which cannot be dispensed with: the "London Directory," the "Clergy List," the "Statesman's Year Book," are all of this class. Any public schoolmaster will be as much at a loss without this "Calendar," as the merchant without his "Directory." The present year's issue contains nearly fifty additional schools. The information, which may be regarded as authentic, will be found of equal interest to the heads of establishments in the colonies and elsewhere as to those at home.

The State-man's Year Book, by F. Martin, has undergone a thorough revision; some valuable tables have been prefixed to this year's issue, and we believe some fresh States have been added to the body of the work.

The Clergy List for 1866 is bulkier than that for 1865; this is the only remark that can be made of a work so well known as the Clergy List. May we suggest to the editor that he might furnish some interesting details of the number of clergymen who have died, have been ordained, or who have been appointed to benefices during the year. He might add the number furnished by the Universities—the number of Literates, and a variety of other information which we cannot now get.

Kind Words is the title of a new weekly illustrated magazine for boys and girls, of which the first part is this month issued by the Sunday School Union. It will be a great favourite with little people; the stories are well told, the pictures are striking, but, above all, it will set readers a-thinking.

Messrs. Griffin & Co. are issuing some old favourite editions in a new form; their five shilling edition of Goldsmith's works, poetry and prose, forms one volume; they have now issued the poetical works of Burns and Scott in one uniform volume, and promise a similar volume of gems from foreign authors. It will contain Goethe's "Faust," Schiller's Tragedies, La Fontaine's Fables, and Saintini's Picciola.

The Infant's Magazine, in large type, one penny monthly, is under the management of the editors of the Children's Friend, well illustrated and excellently well printed.

Under the title of Men of History Mr. Nimmo has produced what, we venture to say, will become a highly-prized presentation volume, or a reading book for the upper forms. The editor has selected from Hume, Carlyle, Macaulay, Gibbon, De Quincy, and other masters; sketches or descriptions of Alfred, Mahomet, Cromwell, Milton, Shakspeare, Locke, Newton, and other eminent men. The book is well conceived and well executed.

THE BOOKSELLER.—Two Educational numbers are published annually, in January and in July; these, the publisher will be happy to forward regularly on publication, gratuitously, to those gentlemen engaged in tuition, who may express their wish to receive them, or all the twelve numbers for the year will be sent, post free, for five shillings, which amount may be remitted in stamps. The present number will be found to contain an advertisement of almost every educational work published in the United Kingdom, and will, on this account, be found deserving the careful perusal of all persons interested in Education, especially those resident abroad.

UNDERSELLING.—Our readers will observe that it is proposed to hold a general meeting of the trade on the 15th February, for the purpose of receiving a report from the Provisional Committee.

PARIS EXHIBITION, 1867.—Intending Exhibitors should lose no time in sending in their demands for space, as the latest date at which applications can be received is February 28. Proper forms may be obtained by applying to "The Secretary, South Kensington Museum." "Paris Exhibition, 1867" being placed on the corner of the envelope.

BOOKS FOR SALE.—In connection with this portion of the Bookseller, we have to acknowledge the receipt of two letters which we have neither space nor inclination to insert; it is clear that on one side the book mentioned was inserted with the bonâ fide intention of selling it at the price quoted, but if half-a-dozen or more persons applied for it, one of whom offered more than the price asked, it was hardly in bookseller nature to refuse the larger sum. At the same time we can understand our other correspondent feeling annoyed at being, as he thought, "jockeyed." We have reason to think that if the matter had been properly explained, he would have been satisfied. We take this opportunity of saying that if we find any improper use made of this portion of the "Bookseller," we shall consider that a sufficient reason for excluding any person so acting.

Equality and Free Trade are excellent things in their way; only to have things quite pleasant the equality we like to enjoy means something different to the equality which is found described by Johnson or Webster, or even in the American Declaration. So the right of pirating or reprinting English books in the United States has all along been one of the admirable institutions of the Stars and Stripes, but just now the people who have thriven upon it so long are grumbling, and, we regret to record, are telling —: we wish to say it politely and not hurt their feelings, but they are certainly saying the thing which is not true. Messrs. Harper, of New York, it seems, have long been in the habit of reprinting English books, just the same as Messrs. Routledge and Mr. Beeton do here, occasionally paying for advance sheets, but we at times have heard standing upon no ceremony, and reprinting as best suited their inclination or interest. Of this we cannot complain; for as long as the Americans feel disposed to reject all overtures for an international copyright, our authors and publishers must suffer; so, too, must theirs. All we claim is equality—equal rights and no favour. An English author can obtain no copyright in America; neither should an American author obtain any here. An American publisher, or his agent, may import shiploads of Shakespeares, or Miltons, or Longfellow, subject only to those fiscal regulations which our statute-book contain. We ask to do the same; but no, this does not suit the American publishers. English books must be shut out, by fair means, if possible, but shut out they must be. We are not sorry that Messrs. Harpers have raised, the question because we believe the great mass of the educated American people are upright and well-intentioned, and that, when they have examined into the question, they will see that, as honourable men, they have but one course to adopt; and that there is little chance of their being misled by the clap-trap of ignorance, or the untruthfulness of interested parties.

AMERICAN CLAIM OF COPYRIGHT IN ENGLISH BOOKS.—A case involving a question of copyright law of much interest to book publishers has been decided by Judge Shipman, in the Circuit Court of the United States, on a motion for an injunction and a receiver. The facts of the case, as set up in the complainant's bill, were briefly these:—They alleged that in the book-selling trade there had sprung up a usage, or custom, or courtesy, by reason of which, if one firm prints a book which is not the subject of copyright, other booksellers refrain from publishing rival editions of the same book; that the defendant, Mr. Houghton, of Cambridge, Massachusetts, being the proprietor in this way of the "Household Edition" of the works of Dickens, made an agreement with the complainants, Sheldon and Co., of this city, for the publishing and sale thereof together for a certain number of years, and under which the books had been sold until now, when the term was about to expire; and alleging that the "good will," as they termed it, of this publication was worth 30,000 dollars, they applied to the Court for an order that a receiver be appointed, under whom the publication should be continued by the parties as heretofore until the final order of the Court. The Judge, however, refused to make an order, holding that this alleged "good will" was not property, since it came only from the courtesy of the trade. A contrary decision would have given a publisher a copyright in the works of a foreign author, for the benefit not of the author but of the publisher.—New York Times!

CONSTABLE'S EDUCATIONAL SERIES was, if we mistake not, the first series of school books which were constructed upon a thoroughly good system, each volume being an advance upon the preceding, and all forming part of one harmonious whole. Such a system is that which the Committee of Council now require in the schools under their patronage, and which is rapidly making its way into every good private school. Much of the credit of working out the details of this system is due to Mr. James Gordon, who preceded Mr. Thomas Laurie, the present publisher of Constable's series, and who is worthily working out the plans of his predecessor. The most recent addition to the series is a Practical Text-Book of English Composition. In this the scholar is gradually taught the construction of sentences from the simplest form of subject and predicate to the composition of an elaborate theme.

HOMER'S ODYSSEY.—We can only draw attention to the fact of Messrs. Nutt having issued the first volume of a most scholarly edition of the Odyssey, edited by the Rev. Henry Hayman, Head Master of Cheltenham School, the only Englishman, we believe, who has ever attempted so complete an edition.

The Imperial Gazetteer and Atlas of England and Wales.—Under this title Messrs. Fullarton have commenced the publication of a very important and useful work, embodying a large amount of information, which can otherwise only be found in county historians, blue books, and other sources of information, besides that which has been collected for this work—this the most important of all appears to be brought down to the date of publication. We have tested the accuracy of the descriptions given of several places with which we are well acquainted and find them not only free from error, but that they embrace every point of interest. Accompanying the "Gazetteer" is an atlas, the sheets of which, when joined together, will form a complete map thirty-two feet in length by twenty-four in breadth. It is engraved on a scale of four miles to the inch, a scale sufficiently large to exhibit every object of interest in addition to the usual roads, railways, canals, &c. The "Gazetteer" itself is illustrated with steel-plate views, and neatly engraved and coloured plans of cities, towns, harbours, rivers, &c.

Messrs. Routledge have just published a little dictionary, which for cheapness, completeness, and usefulness, distances all competitors. It contains nearly three hundred closely-printed pages on good paper. Walker's pronouncing dictionary forms the basis of the work, but Dr. Nuttall has added many hundred words, including recent scientific terms, many inaccuracies have been corrected, and some of Dr. Walker's peculiarities removed. Prefixed is an introduction extending to thirty-two pages, containing a large amount of philological information. No shilling dictionary that we are acquainted with contains so much information as this.

ENGLISH LITERATURE.—It is a hopeful sign that so much attention is now given to the cultivation of a knowledge of the history of our literature, and the style of our authors. In this class of educational works we have no fewer than four new claimants to attention. The most useful is by Dr. Angus, Examiner in English Language and Literature in the University of London. This volume of 667 very closely-printed pages contains the substance of all previous writers upon the subject, and is in truth a cyclopædia, although the only title claimed for it is A Handbook of the English Language. Scarcely any name worth mentioning is omitted, a considerable number of specimens are given, and although the advanced scholar may find but little that would be considered new in the way of criticism, or of original information, the student will on the other hand here find everything that he must learn, if he wishes to become acquainted with our best books and their writers. Dr. Angus is well and favourably known by a previous work, which students will do well to procure, A Handbook to the English Tongue; this like the above is in its way encyclopædical, containing a history and analysis of the language, apart from the authors; a comprehensive treatise on etymology, with chapters on syntax, punctuation, and prosody—both works are provided with admirable indexes. Just the reverse of Dr. Angus's Handbook is Armstrong's Class-book of English Literature, published by Messrs. Nelson. In this we have some original criticisms, not particularly good, nor strikingly brilliant, nor such as are altogether convincing; but the arrangement of the volume is good, and the choice of pieces excellent. The same may be said of the two new volumes of Messrs. Chambers's, Readings in English Prose, and Readings in English Poetry. Prefixed to the selection from every author, is a short pertinent account of the man, and frequently in a single sentence, a just and accurate description of his writings. The volumes form suitable reading books for the upper classes of schools, and with the History of the English Language, of the same publishers, form a very complete and useful series. Lastly, we have an unfinished work of great promise, by Mr. Thomas Arnold, the first part of a History of English Literature, a little shilling volume, which contains a large amount of information. It is evidently the work of an accomplished scholar, who has paid great attention to the subject. A second volume will complete the work.

THE LAW OF INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

THE case of Low v. Routledge, which we fully reported, when before the Vice-Chancellor in July, 1864,* came on for hearing as an appeal before the Lords Justices on the 10th of November; and it will be seen that by this decision any American author who thinks proper to take a trip across the Victoria Bridge into Canada, may, within a few minutes after leaving the United States, be admitted to all the rights of a British subject, at least so far as regards copyright, and at the same time forfeit none of his own; in other words, he may obtain a copyright for his works both in America and in Great Britain, and further may, by means of his British copyright, obtain an European copyright also. Messrs. Routledge are not satisfied with this, and intend appealing to the House of Lords, where it is by no means unlikely that the decisions already given may be affirmed. The doctrine laid down in this case is so monstrous that, if pronounced to be law, it cannot be allowed to remain as it is; the attention of the legislature should be called to the subject, and if possible, a new enactment obtained. What we claim is reciprocity;—the American author should be placed in as good a position as the English author, but not in a better one. This doctrine is one which all American authors hold, and they, with ourselves, are anxious for an international treaty by which their rights may be secured; and the thanks of the Trade are due to Messrs. Routledge for thus pertinaciously attempting to solve the disagreeable question:—

(Before the LORDS JUSTICES OF APPEAL.)

This was an appeal from a decision of Vice-Chancellor Kindersley, who, on the 4th of May last, granted an injunction to restrain the defendant, Mr. Routledge, from publishing a work called Haunted Hearts, written by an American authoress, Miss Maria S. Cummins. The motion was made on behalf of Messrs. Sampson Low and Co., who were the plaintiffs in the suit. His Honour had, in the month of July, 1864, allowed a demurrer to the bill, on the technical ground that the description required by the Copyright Act, as stated in the bill, did not coincide with that alleged in the bill, and he was also of opinion that an American coming temporarily into Canada could take advantage of the English law of copyright. On the allowance of the demurrer, leave was given to amend the bill, and the motion was made upon the amended bill. On the latter occasion an affidavit was read on behalf of the defendant, stating that the American Government had not been a party to the International Treaty of Copyright, and that Canada had a statute law of copyright of its own; and it was argued that Miss Cummins, being a foreigner, was, as such, only entitled to the benefit of the local law on the ground of her title to temporary protection. In giving judgment the Vice-Chancellor said that the only question was whether the injunction should be granted. He had in effect decided the legal right on the former occasion, and he considered that the new facts were not sufficient to disturb his judgment. Ordinarily speaking, the Court would not on an interlocutory application decide the legal right, although it was sometimes ex necessitate driven to do so; and on the former occasion that had occurred. On the balance of convenience he could not say whether it would be best to grant or refuse the injunction; but on the whole he thought that on the plaintiff's undertaking to be answerable for damages and to keep an account, for this purpose only, the injunction must be granted. On the hearing before the Lords Justices it was contended that the effect of the decision of "Jefferys v. Boosey" was to bestow upon a foreigner temporarily resident within the territories of the British Crown, and therefore for the time owing allegiance to the Crown, all the rights and privileges of a British subject for the time being. If the narrow construction of the defendants prevailed, a foreigner publishing abroad would be in a better position than a foreigner coming into and publishing in this country. While, on the other hand, it was insisted that the case fell within the International Copyright Acts, and that the present bill was an attempt to evade these Acts, inasmuch as the English Copyright Act did not deal with the works of a foreign author. They further insisted that, whatever might be the construction of the English Copyright Act, the present case was governed by the Canadian law of copyright, and that the English Copyright Act did not extend to Canada, which at the time of passing that Act had an independent Legislature.

Mr. Baily and Mr. Hardy were for the appellant; Mr. Shapter and Mr. Schomberg for the respondent.

Lord Justice TURNER said—This case came before us on a motion to dissolve an injunction granted by the Vice-Chancellor, Sir Richard Kindersley, and by arrangement between the parties on the original hearing of the cause. The sole question we have to determine is whether an alien friend coming into one of the British colonies (in this case into Canada), and residing there during and at the time of the publication in this country of a work composed by the alien, and first published in this country, is entitled to copyright in this country in the work so published. This question depends upon the statute 5th and 6th Victoria, cap. 45, secs. 2, 3, and 29. By sec. 2 it is enacted that the words "British dominions" shall be construed to mean and include all parts of the United Kingdom, the Islands of Jersey and Guernsey, all parts of the East and West Indies, and all the colonies, settlements, and possessions of the Crown, which now are or hereafter may be acquired. By sec. 3, "the copyright in every book which shall after the passing of this Act be published in the lifetime of its author, shall endure for the natural life of such author, and for the further term of seven years, commencing at the time of his death, and shall be the property of such author and his assigns." By sec. 29 the Act was to extend to the United Kingdom, and to every part of the British dominions. Looking to these sections, there can, I think, be no doubt that the provision of this statute extends to Canada, and if this be so, it is obviously very difficult to say that an author in Canada is not entitled to the benefits given by the statute. The meaning of the word "author" is in no way limited by the statute, and on the contrary the provisions of the statute favour the most extended construction of that word. The sixth section of the statute more especially favours this extended construction; it provides for the delivery for the use of the British Museum of a printed copy of every book within one month after the day on which the book shall first be published, within the bills of mortality, or within three months if the book shall first be published in any other part of the United Kingdom, or within twelve months after it shall be first published in any other part of the British dominions, thus evidencing that books published in any part of the British dominions were intended to fall within the provisions of the statute. It was said, however, for the defendants, that the same word

"author" which is contained in this statute was also contained in the statute of Anne, the first copyright statute, and that strong opinions were expressed by the Judges and by the Law Lords in the House of Lords, in the case of "Jefferys v. Boosey," that the word "author" in the statute of Anne means an author resident in England at the time of publication, and that the same construction ought to be given to the word "author" in the statute 5th and 6th Victoria, chap. 45, now under our consideration; but there is no provision in the statute of Anne that the statute shall extend to the colonies. In the Act we are now considering it is expressly so provided. Several other arguments were also urged on the part of the defendants. It was first said that the statute now in question does not extend to colonies like Canada having Legislatures of their own. I have not, however, any doubt whatever on this point. The word "colonies" in the statute must extend to all colonies in the absence of a context to control it, and I can find no such context. A more plausible argument on the part of the defendants was this. It was said, and I assume for the purposes of the argument, but for that purpose only, that by a Canadian statute an alien coming into Canada for the purpose of publishing a work, and publishing there would not be entitled to copyright in Canada in the work so published; and it was insisted that an alien coming into Canada would acquire only such rights as are given by the law of Canada, and would not therefore be entitled to copyright, and some cases were cited in support of this argument. On examining these cases, however, they will be found to decide no more than this, that, as to aliens coming within the British colonies, their civil rights within the colonies depend upon the colonial laws; they decide nothing as to the civil rights of aliens beyond the limits of the colonies. This argument on the part of the defendants is, in truth, founded on a confusion between the rights of an alien as a subject of the colony and his rights as a subject of the Crown. Every alien coming into a British colony becomes temporarily a subject of the Crown, bound by, subject to, and entitled to the benefit of the laws which affect all British subjects. He has obligations and rights both within and beyond the colony into which he comes. As to rights within the colony he may well be bound by its laws; but as to his rights beyond the colony he cannot be affected by those laws, for the law of a colony cannot extend beyond its territorial limits. Now in this case the question is not what were or are the rights of the plaintiffs within the colony of Canada; but what were or are their rights in this country, and the law of this country leaves no doubt upon that question. By the 25th section of the 5th and 6th of Victoria, cap. 45, it is enacted that all copyright shall be deemed to be personal property; and in Calvin's case it was decided that an alien friend may by the common law have, acquire, or get within this realm, by gift, trade, or other lawful means, any treasure or goods personal whatsoever as an Englishman, and may maintain any action for the same. That case, I think, is in all respects applicable to the case before us; and I agree, therefore, in the opinion of the Vice-Chancellor, and think that the motion to dissolve the injunction must be refused with costs, and that there must be a decree according to the prayer of the bill, with costs to be paid by the defendants.

Lord Justice KNIGHT BRUCE—I am of the same opinion.

CORRESPONDENCE.

ENGLISH BOOKS IN AMERICA.

To the Editor of the BOOKSELLER.

Ludgate-hill, 29th Jan., 1866.

DEAR SIR,—In Harper's Weekly of Jan. 20th, a strange article appears, under the title of "No more American Books." It is as follows:—

Unless the Commission which has the revision of the Revenue Law in charge should recommend a modification of the tax on printed books, and Congress should act upon the recommendation, we shall soon cease to print any books at all. A more careful study of the facts leads us to the conclusion that our recent estimate of the relative cost of books printed here and the same books printed in England was too liberal to the foreign printer; we now judge that a book can be printed and published in England for one-third the cost of the same book here. Of course, under such circumstances, the tariff proves no obstacle whatever to importations; and should the present state of things continue, it is clear that, in the course of a few months, the publication of American books will be reduced to those works which cannot be produced abroad.

It is understood that the Revenue Commission is favourable to a reduction of the internal duties on books—fifteen in number, as they have been calculated. It should be hoped that they will lose no time in laying their views before Congress. In order to aid them in their deliberations, we present a single item, which is a fair sample of scores:

The Sunday Magazine is a periodical published in London, the price being sixpence a copy, exclusive of postage. Of this Magazine 10,000 copies are imported for sale in this country, the importers affirming that the market value in England is three farthings a copy. Upon this, by the present law, they pay a duty of 25 per cent.—that is, three-fourths of a farthing, making the whole cost here to them, duty included, just $3\frac{3}{4}$ farthings, a little less than two cents a copy, or \$200 for the whole 10,000. The importers, moreover, demand here twenty-five cents for this Magazine, the market value of which in England, and upon which only they pay duty, they declare to be only three farthings. We shall follow up this case by other instances, of which we have at hand more than a score.

Now let us see what the cost of the bare manufacture of these 10,000 copies would be in this country at present prices. After a careful calculation we find that the paper, composition, stereotyping, press-work, and folding of the Magazine would cost here, for 10,000 copies, 14 cents a copy, instead of three farthings, its alleged market value in England. This includes only the bare cost of manufacture, making no allowance for literary and artistic labour and the cost of the engravings.

Upon these 10,000 copies the importers pay a duty of only three-fourths of a farthing, while the 15 separate taxes imposed by law upon the American manufacturer amount to at least four cents. In other words, we "protect" the British manufacturer of books by imposing upon him by way of duty only one-fifth as much as is paid by the American manufacturer in direct taxes upon raw material and labour alone.

If this continues, one of two things is inevitable: The manufacture of books here will cease, and the great amount of labour involved in it, directly and indirectly, must find other channels; or the labour must be paid for at English "starvation rates." Practically, both results will ensue. Three-fourths of our printers will be out of employment, and the others will receive pay at British rates; and all for the benefit of our British friends.

We have no wish to enter into any controversy with Messrs. Harper; but since they have chosen to single us out for the special object of attack, a very few words, by way of reply, may be allowed us.

What it costs to produce a copy of The Sunday Magazine is no subject for public advertisement, and only a very doubtful taste could ever make it such. But if it shows doubtful taste to make any public statement on this matter, it shows something worse to make a wrong statement. This Messrs. Harper have unfortunately allowed themselves to do. We have gone over the several entries in our books which represent the total shipment to New York of the December part of The Sunday Magazine, and we find that the price charged, and upon which 25 per cent. duty has been paid, is not three farthings a copy, but is nearer fourteen farthings a copy! Should any one care to know the exact sum, we suppose he can learn it on application at the American Consulate in London, or at the Custom-house in New York, copies of all our invoices having been lodged for both places. How Messrs. Harper came to make this statement is a mystery to us. Had they been writing hurriedly on an indifferent topic, a mistake might have been pardoned them; but here they were deliberately preparing a document with the view of influencing the Revenue Commission; and yet they either never inquired for facts, or mis-stated the facts when they got them. They are welcome to whichever position they think the less unpleasant.

And now as regards books: is it the case that the laws at present in operation in the United States are more favourable to English publishers than to American? We think not, and are bold enough to say so, notwithstanding the affirmations to the contrary on the part of some of the American trade. Let this simple case test it. We issue a small octavo book in London, and an American publisher issues the same book in New York without paying us a farthing for it, or even asking our consent. And let us say, parenthetically, that we do not for one moment question his right to do this—the law being as it is. Well, we print this book in large editions, and it costs us 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. a copy, exclusive of course of copyright, advertising, and other publishing expenses. We consign this book for sale in New York, invoicing it a little above cost price, and paying duty accordingly; thus making the cost in America 10d. a copy. Now the American publisher possesses stereotype plates of the book, as we do, and we find from estimates taken on the spot that he can produce it in large editions at a price not exceeding 10d. a copy. He can then compete with us, and should surely be content. But is he so? Or is the organization of which he is a unit? Quite the contrary; for on the arrival of our book at New York, it is not admitted at our valuation, which is the price at which it might be sold by us to an American publisher buying a quantity in London,* but is referred to a Committee, or number of American publishers, who decree that the book is worth eighteenpence in London, and that 25 per cent. duty must be paid upon that sum, or the shipment be confiscated. (It is to be hoped that the reprinter of the book was not present on the occasion!) We will not be so ungracious as not to say that we are quite at one with the Committee in their high estimate of the value of the little work; but unfortunately for us their decree does not extend to England, where we are consequently obliged to content ourselves with the inadequate return of fifteenpence a copy for it. And if a book can only bring fifteenpence where it is copyright, query—how much is it actually worth where copyright is denied it? But to show how heartily we reciprocate the appreciative verdict of the Committee, we beg leave to say that we shall be only too happy to supply them with any quantity of the book they may wish, at their own valuation price, minus a most liberal discount.

The incongruities, if not absurdities of a Protectionist policy, were never more conspicuously displayed than in the present case. The New York Custom-house officers, or rather some New York publishers representing them, will not take our valuation as a basis for duty, but set about to make one of their own. Well, upon what principles do they proceed? Upon none, so far as we can see: they neither weigh our books like coals, nor bulk them like barrels, nor measure them like timber, nor taste them like wine. They follow caprice and nothing else. In some cases their valuation is a fifth of the English retail price, in some it is a fourth, in some a third, in some a half, and in some two-thirds. Now, this sliding scale may be a very ingenious standard, but did any one ever hear of it before? And, if not, how could we be expected to be so familiar with it as to know beforehand which of our books were worth one-fifth of their retail price, and which two-thirds? We couldn't; so let us turn from the sliding scale with all its uncertainties to the twelfth volume of the United States Statutes at Large, page 737. We there read what is actually prescribed by the Act of Congress, dated March 3rd, 1863, in respect of invoices of goods entered into the United States. It provides that if the shipper procure merchandise by purchase, he shall state in the invoice the "actual cost thereof." But if, on the other hand, the merchandise be obtained in any other manner than by purchase, then "the invoice shall contain the actual market value thereof at the time and place when and where the same were manufactured." We take the market value of a book to be the price at which we would sell a quantity of it to an American publisher, or any other man, and we made out our invoices accordingly. Suppose the American Committee, or Union, or whatever it be, attach a different meaning to the term market value—although we do not see how they can—do they suppose that that will put us in any the worse position? Simple delusion to cherish! For can we not make the question one of "actual cost" instead of "market value?" The New York house of Strahan and Co. (which, by the way, has interests separate from ours,) can cease dealing with us, and order their goods from an export house in London, to whom we can sell for one-eighth per cent. profit, and who on their part can sell for the same. This is quite according to the statute; and if the New York publishers will insist on our playing at business, we may have no objections to do so, any more than we have objections to manufacture our books wholly in the United States, burdened by the whole lot of the "fifteen internal duties." All we want is, a fair field, and no favour.

As to Messrs. Harper's cry of "No more American Books," is it not too like the old familiar strains associated with the agricultural interest to get much attention paid to it? They may ignore all the teachings of Economic Science, and may refuse to believe that Cobden and Bright ever lived, but this must happen nevertheless, that the useless employment of men in the manufacture of books that are already manufactured will cease, and that there will no more be an English and American edition of the same book than there are just now an English and Irish, a French and Belgian, or Prussian and Austrian. But this will not put a stop to American books; on the contrary, it will do the very opposite: for when Messrs. Harper and the other large firms cease duplicating English works, and give their attention to native literature, the cry will then be what it should be just now, "Fair play for American books."

And since we have followed Messrs. Harper so much further than we intended, we may as well go to the end now. They point very significantly to "English starvation rates," a phrase which we have seen used before by some of the Anti-British section of the trade. Well, if they are sincere in their loathing of this phantom, how does it happen that they ignore their own manufacturers, and come to England for paper? That they are doing this is certain. Indeed, we this day saw orders from them, for within a very few often thousand reams, in one house in London. This in one house, remember! They are quite right of course to serve themselves in the cheapest and best market, and it will be long before a whisper is breathed against them here for doing so, although it is a patent fact that the price of paper is higher in England just now than it would be if the Americans stuck by their own mills, and their own "non-starvation prices," as we suppose we must call them. But to come here for paper, because it is cheap, and at the same time taunt us with "starvation rates," is too good not to be noted. Why, the mere fact of a British article being cheap would be sufficient, one would think, to restrain Messrs. Harper from having anything to do with it, lest they should burden their spirits with the guilt of starvation.

It would be wrong to close without letting Messrs. Harper know that we see pretty clearly where the shoe pinches. But though it was natural to expect that the progressive movements of British publishers would cause irritation in certain quarters, yet the extreme measures adopted in these quarters seem out of all proportion to the provocation. However, perhaps these little bickerings will help, in some measure, to bring about that great desideratum, an international copyright; and if they do so, we will not regret them, disagreeable and painful as they are to us in the meantime. And we are sure the other publishers whose goods are stopped at New York, pending the Committee's valuation, will agree with us in this.

Yours truly,

STRAHAN & CO.

LAW REPORTING.

To the Editor of THE BOOKSELLER.

SIR,—In the number of THE BOOKSELLER for December, 1865, appeared an article on Law Reporting, in which the following observation occurs:—"Overtures made to the Law Publishers were rejected." This is incorrect, but no doubt was founded on a statement which appeared in a recent circular, issued and widely distributed, by the Council for Law Reporting, as follows:—

"The Council, as representing the profession in a matter of public concern, were anxious to receive, and hoped that they might have received, some offer from the London Law Publishers; they, however, decided for themselves that their interests required them to oppose rather than assist the Council. The Council very much regretted, and still very much regret, this decision; but they had no power to influence or change it."

Any statement that the Law Publishers had decided rather to oppose than assist the Council, would, if allowed to stand uncontradicted, no doubt operate seriously to our prejudice; and we therefore beg, on our own behalf, to deny in the most unqualified manner, that we ever came to such decision, and that, without further comment, we can only say that up to the time at which the Council invited our reporters to join the scheme, we were in daily expectation of receiving some proposal from them, or, at least, an invitation that they were prepared to receive one from us; and, in either case, we should have gladly co-operated with the Council. We never, however, received any communication, either directly or indirectly, on the subject.

KIND WORDS

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

WEEKLY ½d. MONTHLY PART 3d. PART I. IS NOW READY.

WHAT THE PRESS SAYS ABOUT KIND WORDS.

"Kind Words is the winning and well-chosen title of a new illustrated miscellany for boys and girls. It has pictures, stories, poems, anecdotes, enigmas, &c., &c., and its price per number is just one halfpenny. It is a wonderful specimen of good and cheap literature."—Morning Star, January 22, 1866.

"This is a good halfpennyworth of reading, suitable to the children of the poor."—Coventry Herald.

"It is sufficient to say that it will meet the want in view of which it is projected: viz., 'that of a sound and cheerful serial; cheap, yet not trashy,' and published often enough always to find the young folks something to read."—Tunbridge Wells Gazette.

"It is well illustrated, and admirably suited to the tastes of the young, and will be welcomed by them."—Walsall Free Press.

"Amongst the serials which have commenced with the beginning of 1866, 'Kind Words for Boys and Girls' claims a prominent place. This magazine, which is to be published once a week, contains eight pages of considerable size. The articles are of average merit, and the woodcuts by which the pages are illustrated are nicely got up."—Grantham Journal.

"From the first number we may safely say that the Editor's wish to supply 'something to read' of a sound and cheerful character will be realised. As boys and girls read so much now-a-days, it is important that good useful reading should be placed in their hands. This may be done by means of 'Kind Words.'"—Diss Express.

"This is a pamphlet, published at one halfpenny weekly, containing sweet little stories, shewing the influence which kind words have upon the younger members of society. It has an elevating tendency, and we heartily wish it success."—Portsmouth Guardian.

"Not satisfied with monthly publications, our boys and girls must have a representative among the weeklies; and here we have No. 1 of a halfpenny weekly for them. They often grumble at having to wait a whole month to get on with the 'tale,'—here they will have a weekly portion, and many other kindly words, well and wisely spoken, which will do them good."—South Bucks Free Press.

"This is a new serial, the first number of which commencing with the new year, is now just issued. It is published at one halfpenny a number, is well illustrated, has good stories in it, some pretty poetry, and is withal published with a purpose. We commend the serial to the special attention of Sunday School and other teachers of the young as one that is calculated to help them in their labours of love."—Western Daily Mercury.

"As its name indicates, it is full of kind words for little ones. As a specimen the first number is promising."—Cambria Leader.

"The story of 'Bob the Shoeblack' must be read with avidity by all into whose hands it may fall, especially the young."—Leinster Express.

"'Kind Words' is a new halfpenny periodical for Boys and Girls, who will find its reading attractive, and its illustrations gratifying to the eye."—Cheltenham Journal.

"This new candidate for favour with juveniles, promises to be very interesting to youthful readers. The Editor appears to be able to enter into the feelings of little folks, and writes with a thorough appreciation of their predilections."—North of England Advertiser.

"We have received the first number, and must say that though disappointed in our expectations as to the scope of the work, it bids fair to meet the wants spoken of."—Chester Record.

"This periodical is one of those prodigies of literature—one of those monster halfpenny works that now and again surprise the world, and make people wonder how it can be possible that artists and writers are to be got for the money. It has one commendable difference, however, from other halfpenny-worths that cater for the public patronage, and which but too often are filled with vile trash, and that is in the chaste and profoundly wise nature of its text. As it is for boys and girls, due care has been taken to provide that which will be agreeable to the juvenile palate; and what with capital woodcuts, charades, poetry, and seasonable tales, it will bear comparison with many a higher priced periodical."—Islington Gazette.

"The first number contains eight pages of right down good stuff, pleasing and practical in its character, with a page to amuse and entertain, and some fair engravings. It is a bold venture, but is well deserving of the patronage of every boy and girl in the land. School teachers will do their children excellent service by introducing the work to them."—Wesleyan Times.

"It comes from '56, Old Bailey; and that will give assurance to many of our readers that it is pleasant and wholesome. It is something like the 'Children's Prize' in character, with especial fitness, as we think, to the young of the working classes—a capably varied and delightful periodical for Sunday scholars."—Nonconformist.

"Here are four halfpenny numbers of a new weekly Magazine for boys and girls! It is most attractively got up, having plenty of pictures, and being written in a pleasing manner. We greatly admire this attempt to supplant some of the pernicious literature which everywhere abounds, and we earnestly commend the effort to parents, teachers, and others, who will do well to introduce this new weekly to the notice of children. It will be a welcome visitor, we feel sure, to tens of thousands of English homes."—British Standard.

"'Kind Words,' issued in its first monthly part, in a handsome cover at threepence, should be welcomed as reading for the young by parents of Evangelical tendencies. It is nicely illustrated, and the tales and teaching are intended to prove the beneficial influence of kind words upon children as well as adults."—Reader, January 26.

NUTTALL'S ONE SHILLING WALKER.

In fcap. 8vo, cloth boards, price 1s.

WALKER'S PRONOUNCING DICTIONARY,

EDITED BY

P. A. NUTTALL, LL.D.

This is a cheaper edition of Dr. Nuttall's Dictionary, of which Messrs. Routledge have already sold upwards of 100,000 copies. It has been introduced into schools all over the Country and the Colonies, and is increasing in sale every year. To meet the general demand for a Shilling Edition of this successful work, the publishers have determined to issue one, confidently anticipating that the increased sale will amply compensate them for the great reduction in price.

They think they can thus fairly claim to call their book

THE CHEAPEST DICTIONARY EVER PUBLISHED.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"A marvel of cheapness."—Caledonian Mercury.

"An excellent pocket edition of Walker. We regard Dr. Nuttall's volume as decidedly the best pocket pronouncing dictionary of which we are possessed."—Dublin Advertiser.

"It is sure to meet with much patronage from the public both at home and abroad."—Educational Times.

CASTAWAY on the AUCKLAND

ISLES: a Narrative of the Wreck of the "Grafton," and of the Escape of the Crew after twenty months' suffering. From the private Journals of CAPT. THOS. MUSGRAVE. Together with some Account of the Aucklands. Also an Account of the Sea Lion (originally written in Seal's blood, as were most of Capt. Musgrave's Journals). Edited by JOHN J. SHILLINGLAW, F.R.G.S., Author of "Arctic Discovery," etc.

The Times' Correspondent (Dec. 19, 1865) says that Capt. Musgrave's Diary "is almost as interesting as Daniel Defoe, besides being, as the children say, 'all true;'" and, speaking of the Escape, "This is the most wonderful part of the narrative; as probably such another voyage, in such a boat, was never made before."

GUIDE TO THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Now ready, price 6s.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS CALENDAR for 1866 (being the Second Annual Volume). Edited by a Graduate of the University of Oxford.

The design of this work is both to present annually in a convenient shape the information usually sought by inquirers, and to serve as an interesting record. The Nine Schools reported upon by the Royal Commission are treated in greater detail than the rest, and of these the full School Lists are given. An Almanack of School Times is prefixed.

In the present Volume, only the present state of the Schools is described, those recommendations of the Commissioners being omitted which have not become embodied in the system of any School. Advantage has been taken of the space thus gained, and, by condensation, to include a large additional number of Schools.

A COPIOUS PHRASEOLOGICAL English-Greek Lexicon, founded on a Work prepared by J. W. FRAEDERSDORFF, Ph.D., of the Taylor Institution, Oxford. Revised, enlarged, and improved by HENRY BROWNE, M.A., Vicar of Pevensy, and Prebendary of Chichester.

In this Lexicon it has been endeavoured to give the equivalent Greek for all English words, with their various meanings. The grammatical construction is duly indicated, poetry discriminated from prose, synonyms distinguished, and the usage and idioms of both languages exemplified by copious phrases, from named authors. It claims to be a Lexicon in the proper sense of the word, such that a foreigner, being a good Greek scholar, could acquire from it a knowledge of English almost as complete (except for what is essentially modern) as would be furnished by a good English dictionary in his own language; in which, therefore, the student may expect to find the right words and the suitable mode of expression, for the thought which he wishes to render into Greek.

THE POET'S HOUR.—POETRY SELECted and Arranged for Children. By FRANCES
MARTIN, Superintendent of the Bedford College
School. Printed on toned paper, with Vignette by Noel Paton. Fcap. 8vo, 3s. 6d.

[Just published.

"The principle of selection, here, is not one chiefly of personal taste, but experience; she has formed it on the strength of a careful induction of children's tastes,—not, indeed, left to themselves, but guided 'by a light hand that directs rather than controls,'—in other words, of children's tastes under the influence of her personal preferences.—Anyhow it is a very good and wholesome taste, refined but not too refined for ordinary children."—

NEW ROLLIN.—An ANCIENT HISTORY, from the Earliest Times to the Fall of the Western Empire. Forming the first period of "The History of the World." By PHILIP
SMITH, B.A., one of the principal contributors to Dr. Smith's Classical Dictionaries. Complete in 3 vols, 8vo, with Maps and Plans, £2 2s.

For the first time in English literature, the reader has before him, in the moderate compass of Three Volumes, a complete ANCIENT HISTORY, from the Creation of the World to the Fall of the Western Empire of Rome, treated as a continuous narrative, and with unity of purpose. Besides its place in the whole scheme of the History of the World, this division may be regarded as forming a complete and independent work, which may occupy the place once filled by the Ancient History of Rollin.

"The style of the volumes is sustained with the equal tone of a single, able, unimpassioned and dignified historian throughout."—Athenæum.

"All that our respected old Rollin tried to do, and did not do, this clear and most wonderfully compassed summary must be admitted to have done, and a great deal more besides. It is always careful, always well written, often warms into the steady heat of a real living interest, and is pervaded with a profound belief in the Providential guidance of all the events of history."—Literary

"We do not know where to look for an English edition of any classical author which can be at all compared with it for its admirable combination of varied learning, philosophical power, fine scholarship, taste, and good sense; and with all this, there is so hearty an appreciation of the merits of others, such honest hate of slovenliness and unfairness, so simple and modest an assertion of opinions, that it may well be taken as a model by editors, whether English or foreign."—Reader.Plato's Gorgias, literally translated;

Folia Silvulæ: being select Translations of Passages from the English Poets by various eminent Scholars. By the Rev. Dr. HOLDEN, Head-Master of Ipswich School, and formerly Fellow and Classical Lecturer of Trinity College, Cambridge.

"It will much surprise us if the common verdict of scholars does not rank the 'Folia Silvulæ' as high as, if not above, the 'Arundines Cami,' the 'Anthologia Oxoniensis,' and the 'Sabrinæ Corolla.' If, as is not unlikely, it is by some considered to eclipse these, the chief credit will be due to Dr. Hubert Holden, not less for the industry, taste, and discrimination which he has shown as an editor, than for the preëminent excellence of his contributions as a translator."—Saturday Review, July 22d, 1865.

A Complete Latin Grammar. Second

Edition, very much enlarged, and adapted for the use of University Students. 8vo, 14s.

The enlarged Edition of the Latin Grammar has been prepared with the same object as the corresponding work on the Greek language. It is, however, especially designed to serve as a convenient handbook for those Students who wish to acquire the habit of writing Latin; and with this view is furnished with an Antibarbarus, with a full discussion of the most important synonyms, and with a variety of information not generally contained in works of this description.

A Complete Greek Grammar. Third

Edition, very much enlarged, and adapted for the use of University Students. 8vo, 16s.

CAMBRIDGE GREEK AND LATIN TEXTS,

CAREFULLY REPRINTED FROM THE BEST EDITIONS.

This series is intended to supply for the use of Schools and Students cheap and accurate editions of the Classics, which shall be superior in mechanical execution to the small German editions now current in this country, and more convenient in form.

The texts of the "Bibliotheca Classica" and "Grammar-School Classics," so far as they have been published, will be adopted. These editions have taken their place amongst scholars as valuable contributions to the Classical Literature of this country, and are admitted to be good examples of the judicious and practical nature of English scholarship; and, as the editors have formed their texts from a careful examination of the best editions extant, it is believed that no texts better for general use can be found.

The Volumes are well printed at the Cambridge University Press, in a 16mo size, and are issued at short intervals.

The following are now ready:

Novum Testamentum Græcum, Textus Stephanici, 1550. Accedunt variae lectiones editionum Bezae, Elzeviri Lachmanni, Tischendorfii, Tregellesii. Curante F. H. SCRIVENER, A.M. 4s. 6d.

CAMBRIDGE SCHOOL AND COLLEGE TEXT BOOKS.

A SERIES OF ELEMENTARY TREATISES ADAPTED FOR THE USE OF STUDENTS IN THE UNIVERSITIES, SCHOOLS, AND CANDIDATES FOR THE PUBLIC EXAMINATIONS.

In order to secure a general harmony in the treatment, these works will be edited by Members of the University of Cambridge, and the methods and processes employed in University teaching will be followed.

Principles will be carefully explained, clearness and simplicity will be aimed at, and an endeavour will be made to avoid the extreme brevity which has so frequently made the Cambridge treatises too difficult to be used by those who have not the advantage of a private Tutor. Copious examples will be added.

MULTUM IN PARVO.

THOMAS LAURIE'S BRITISH PATENT SCHOOL DESK, SEAT, AND TABLE (COMBINED).

THIS invention deserves special attention, as it is the most useful of the kind hitherto discovered, and cannot be superseded, owing to the variety of uses to which it can be placed. It entirely differs in construction from any other Desk at present in use. Its distinguishing features are—that (1) it forms a Seat, as in Diagram A, the BACK of which is transferenceable, without trouble, to either side of the seat. (2) This BACK can also be at once converted into a DESK or TABLE, as in Diagram B, without requiring the pupils to change their position or step over the forms. This feature adapts it specially for Girls' Schools or Young Ladies' Classes. The Desk or Table can also be at once transferred from one side of the seat to the other, in a similar way to the Back; so that at a moment's notice the pupils can be turned face to face or back to back. This is of great use for purposes of examination, or for dividing the School into classes without confusion or loss of time. A Shelf for books or slates is fixed under the seat. Care has been taken to make the Desk thoroughly substantial.

The variety of purposes which it can serve make the Desk specially adapted for Schools of every description, Church Meeting Rooms, Soirées, Private Schoolrooms, &c. It is also specially serviceable for Ship's Cabins, or for any purpose where economy of space, time, or trouble is necessary. In the detailed Prospectus the addresses where specimens may be examined are given.

Price, including Shelf, Iron Standards, Staining and Varnishing, Ink-Bottles, &c., 5s. 6d. per Foot.

* * One Seven-foot Desk sent as a specimen, carriage free, to any part of Great Britain.

THE READING-BOOKS OF CONSTABLE'S EDUCATIONAL SERIES

Will be found adapted to the various Standards of the Code, though more comprehensive in their aim.

The object of this Series is to train and instruct the moral and intellectual faculties of children, as well as to interest and attract them.

Graduation in subject and thought, as well as in language, has been carefully attended to.

The First English Reading-Book. In Three Parts. Price 2d., 4d., and 6d.

The consideration to which every other has been subordinated in the First Book is, the Teaching of Reading. For this purpose graduation has been carried as far as it has been possible to carry it; but though each lesson is essentially an exercise on words, connection and interest have been successfully aimed at.

The Second English Reading-Book. Price 9d.

Though the interesting, attractive, and imaginative continue to predominate in the Second Book, as in the First, lessons on moral and intellectual subjects are given in fair proportion. The heads of the classifications of the Lessons are—1. Objects and Lessons on General Information; 2. Lessons relating to the Religious and Moral Feelings, the Imagination, and the Character; 3. Verses, Instructive, Amusing, Religious, and Imaginative.

The Third English Reading-Book. Price 1s. 3d.

The conveying of knowledge and the training of the intellect and moral nature continue to receive full attention; but they are kept in due subordination to the imaginative element. A Life of Christ, simply and impressively written, forms a feature of this volume.

The Book is divided into Three Parts: Part I. Lessons on the Seasons and Flowers, with Miscellaneous Lessons in Prose and Verse; Part II. Lessons on Food and Animals, with Miscellaneous Lessons in Prose and Verse; Part III. Lessons on Clothing, Houses, and Trades, with Miscellaneous Lessons in Prose and Verse. Dictation Appendix.

The Fourth English Reading-Book. Price 1s. 8d.

Variety in language as well as in subject forms the leading feature of the Fourth Book. Section 1 consists of miscellaneous pieces in prose and verse, moral, imaginative, and intellectual. Section 2 is devoted mainly to accounts of animals, in prose and verse. Section 3 is chiefly moral in its character, aiming at teaching by example rather than precept. Section 4 is intellectual in its character, and contains lessons in vegetable products and their uses, trades, plants, and money matters.

The Fifth English Reading-Book. Price 2s. 6d.

Section 1. Lessons on the Senses and Observation, with Miscellaneous Lessons. Section 2. Things to Look at, and how to Look—I. Things to be Looked at by those who live in the Country; II. Things to be Looked at by those who live at the Sea-shore; III. Things to be Looked at by those who live in the Cities. Section 3. Miscellaneous Lessons in Prose and Verse, Moral and Instructive, chiefly of a narrative kind. Section 4. Lessons on Mines, Minerals, Timber, Stone, Corn-plants, Gas, &c. &c. Etymological and Dictation Appendix.

The Sixth English Reading-Book. Price 3s.

This volume contains well-constructed Lessons on the Earth and Man, on Animals, on Geology, on Characteristics of the Popular Physics, on Health, and on Social Economy, besides numerous miscellaneous extracts of a narrative and imaginative kind.

The Advanced English Reading-Book: Literary and Scientific. Price 4s.

Lessons in Natural History, by R. Patterson, Belfast; Lessons on Physics, by Professor Kelland, Edinburgh; Lessons on the Human Body, by Professor Struthers; Vegetable Products and their Uses, by Professor Archer; Social Economy, by W. A. Shields, Head-Master, Birkbeck Schools; Lessons on Law, Property, and the Constitution, by the Editor; Lessons on Botany, by Professor Balfour, of Edinburgh; Select Literary Extracts from Prose Authors; Select Extracts from the Poets, chronologically arranged.

"Moral and religious impression is particularly aimed at; and for this end we regard 'Constable's Series' as in a marked degree useful."—Reader.

"Combining good composition, interest, variety, and fitness for exercise in reading."—REV. CANON ROBINSON, York Training College.

"Calculated to store the mind of the scholar with interesting knowledge, and also to make him proficient in reading. I speak from careful study, and from actual use of the whole set."—A. C. DAYMOND, Head-Master, St. Mark's Training College, Chelsea.

Spelling and Dictation Class-Book. With Etymological Exercises.

By an INSPECTOR OF SCHOOLS. Price 1s. 6d.

"It is an admirable book. I know of none in which the difficulties of English spelling are presented to the learner with so much point and plainness, and in such a workable shape for class instruction."—W. F. COLLIER, Esq., LL.D., Edinburgh Academy (Author of various Educational Works).

With numerous Illustrations. By DAVID PAGE, F.R.S.E., F.G.S., Author of "Text-Books of Geology and Physical Geography," &c. Cloth extra, price 1s. 6d.

"Such a book as this was much wanted—a work giving in clear and intelligible outline the leading facts of the science, without amplification or irksome details. It is admirable in arrangement, and clear, easy, and at the same time forcible, in style. It will lead, we hope, to the introduction of Geology into many schools that have neither time nor room for the study of large treatises."—The Museum.

"In fact, Mr. Pryde proposes to teach the leading facts of the History of Europe through the biographies of its great men, which form so many central figures, around which are grouped the chief historical facts of their era. This is a happy idea, and has been well worked out. We are glad to welcome Mr. Pryde's volume as a valuable addition to our educational text-books; and we have no doubt whatever that it will become extensively popular."—Educational Times.

BOOKS FOR SALE.

UNDER this heading we purpose inserting such rare and curious books as Booksellers in one part of the country may find unsaleable in their own locality, but which those elsewhere may be glad to possess. Books overbought, or bought by mistake, may thus be disposed of, but it is not intended for common every-day publications, which may, or ought to be found, in every shop. Without any wish to act the part of censor, it will be the Editor's duty to see that legitimate use is made of this list, and that, as a general rule, only such books are admitted as are likely to be sold by means of this advertisement. The list from each Advertiser must not exceed three books, the titles of which should if possible be each compressed into one line. No charge will at present be made for the insertion.

TRADE AND LITERARY GOSSIP.

The well-known firm of Messrs. Hayman Brothers, have purchased the Steam Printing Works of Messrs. Berry & Co., Gloucester Street, Regent's Park, which they will carry on in conjunction with their business at 13, Gough Square, Mr. H. C. Berry remaining with them.

Mr. Holmes informs us that he has recently sold the Wholesale Stationery Business belonging to Mr. Waitt, 6A, Dowgate Hill, to Mr. Frank Arliss, of Limehouse. The business belonging to Messrs. Robinson & Waitt, Printers and Stationers, will still be carried on upon the same premises, as well as the wholesale business belonging to Mr. Arliss.

Mr. Page informs us that he has just transferred Mr. Eve's Printing Business, in the Old Bailey, to Mr. Brown; Mr. Bantoff's business, at Hammersmith, to Mr. Walker; Miss Black's trade, at Hampstead, to Mr. Colmer, and valued Miss Wall's business, at Woodford, to Miss Black.

A change has come over the establishment in Fleet-street where the business has for some time been carried on under the name of John Maxwell & Co. Temple Bar has been purchased by Mr. Bentley. The St. James's Magazine will in future be published by Messrs. Houlston and Wright; as also will the Day of Rest.

The Shilling Magazine, edited by Mr. Lucas, first published by Messrs. Tinsley Brothers, and more recently by Mr. Bosworth, will in future be published by Messrs. Adams and Francis, Fleet Street.

NEWARK.—Mr. William Tomlinson has transferred his Bookselling, Stationery, and General Miscellaneous Business, to his eldest son, Mr. William Henry Tomlinson. The proprietorship of the "Newark Advertiser" is still retained by Mr. Tomlinson, who has taken into partnership his son-in-law, Mr. Samuel Whiles, in the letter-press, printing, and bookbinding departments.

J. F. BECKE THE SWINDLER.—Having so completely put the trade upon their guard against the doings of this man, he is apparently unable to swindle any more booksellers, and has, therefore, turned his attention to authors, and is favouring them with orders. Bishops and deans are alike fair sport to Mr. Becke; as a matter of taste he prefers medical works to divinity, and can use any number of copies of Gray's "Anatomy" or Aitken's "Medicine," but he is omnivorous. Here is a specimen of his order dated from 38, Robert-street, Tipping-street, Ardwick, near Manchester, 3rd February,—"Baines's History of Manchester." "Æsop's Fables translated into Human Nature." "All Round the World." "Clarke's Commentary," 6 vols. "Sharpe's British Gazetteer." "Enquire Within upon Everything," also "A Catalogue of the Books you have for sale." Our correspondent did not send Mr. Becke the books, but made inquiries about him instead, and here is the result. The agent he employed says:—"I made inquiries to-day respecting Mr. J. F. Becke. I thought it advisable to hunt up the man. With some difficulty I found his residence, the street (Robert-street) being a small street leading off another small street, out of Tipping-street. He was not at home, and the house in which he resides is about 4s. or 4s. 6d. per week rental. A small bill in the window intimated that 'a patent mangle' was kept there. The house appeared a poverty-stricken place, and I doubt not you would have lost every penny had you forwarded the books as ordered."

It is surprising that this man should still be suffered to carry on his depredations under the very eyes of the police, as he has done to our certain knowledge, for nearly ten years; had he been a starving operative and had stolen a penny loaf, he would have been got rid of in a week.

COBBETT'S ENGLISH GRAMMAR.—A correspondent writes: "I am sorry to observe that Messrs. Griffin and Co. have omitted, from what they call 'the only complete edition' of this well-known work, the eloquent dedication to Queen Caroline. It is not doing justice to the sturdy old Democrat to mutilate his work by leaving out one of its most vigorous and characteristic pages."

Messrs. Warne and Co. forward a copy of their new Walker's Pocket Dictionary for school use, newly printed in pearl type, edited by Dr. Nuttall; or, as the title states, "Thoroughly remodelled, enlarged, and adapted to the present state of the English Language." Walker's work forming the basis upon which have been engrafted Webster's definitions and Worcester's improvements. The volume is fairly printed upon unusually good paper, and contains a large number of words not to be found in Walker; the definitions and accentuations have been revised, simplified, and in some instances enlarged, by Dr. Nuttall, in some they have been shortened. The editor has wisely, we think, omitted the grammatical introduction, which nobody wishes for in a pocket-dictionary, and has confined his appendix to a list of counties and towns, with their population; and, lastly, a list of familiar quotations from the French and Latin. We believe that in some schools the old abridged half-crown edition of Johnson's Dictionary is still in use, and the masters are occasionally filled with amazement at their scholars being plucked by the Civil or other Service examiners; but any one who will compare Johnson's Dictionary with this, will be at no loss to discover the reason why.

PRINCE ALBERT'S WILL.—It is not generally known that the late Prince Consort before he died made a will in which he provided for the distribution of the somewhat extensive property he had acquired in this country. The Queen was appointed executrix, but owing to some objection on the part of her Majesty, the will has never been proved at Doctors' Commons, nor has probate or succession duty been paid, nor is the will itself placed in the usual repository. It is said that the expressed wishes of the deceased Prince are being most religiously observed, and that the various properties are being as vigorously administered as though all legal forms had been duly complied with.

THE FLYING DRAGON.—Under this title Professor Summers has commenced what we hope will be a very prosperous undertaking—a Chinese newspaper in London. It is published monthly, and two numbers have already appeared. These will probably astonish the celestials pretty considerably. The first number contains some general remarks upon the advantages to be derived from newspapers, a summary of European news, including Lord Palmerston's death, the loss of the London, the death of King Leopold, and the close of the civil war in America. Next a dissertation upon railways, their usefulness, economy, and other advantages; and lastly, some information which must have puzzled the worthy professor to put into Chinese—viz., advertisements of English products and businesses—Eley's patent cartridges, Ransom's steam ploughs, Bryant and May's matches, Colt's revolvers, &c., &c. No. II. contains a map of Europe, which we fear will give but a poor conception of the wealth and power of England contrasted as the size naturally will be with that of Russia or Germany.

JAPAN.—The English language has been officially adopted by the Government of the Japanese empire, and permission has been given to have it taught publicly. Prince Satsuma is now turning his attention to commerce, and is largely engaged in the silk trade, finding it more profitable to sell silk to the English than to have his palaces battered down by them.

THE CATTLE PLAGUE.—Professor Gamgee, who is, we suppose, the very first veterinary surgeon in England, has just published a volume of more than common interest. It is a bulky book of 875 pages, and contains a history of the plague, its causes, and its symptoms, suggestions for its treatment and prevention, and an account of all the measures taken by Government, together with the first report of the Commissioners. Part II. contains the past history of the plague from the earliest periods up to the present time, with notices of its ravages in Great Britain, Holland, Belgium, and France. The history of the plague is given in an interesting sketch from its first introduction from Revel in 1865, soon after which, like the new water weed, it spread through every part of the country. The chronology of the disease is given under each county. Part III. contains an official report of the first International Congress held in Hamburg in 1863, and of the second Congress at Vienna in 1865. The Appendix contains some enquiries into the theory of Entozoa, the latest Orders in Council, and includes the Orders issued as lately as February 3. The treatise is the most complete work upon the subject, and is full of interest to all agriculturists and graziers. The professor appears to have turned his attention to the collection of facts, both of the disease and of all suggested remedies; these he has carefully registered. What strikes the reader most is the absence of dogmatic assertion. Nor is there any of that quackery which disfigures too many medical works. This, however, is the true method of procedure, for no remedies can be properly applied till the true nature and extent of the disease have been ascertained.

ENGLISH BOOKS IN AMERICA.—In the last BOOKSELLER appeared a letter from Messrs. Strahan & Co., indignantly repudiating the charge Messrs. Harper & Co., of New York, had endeavoured to fix upon them of endeavouring to evade the duty upon books they were sending to their American agent—a charge which we are sorry to say the Spectator, following the bent of its American proclivities, endeavoured to disseminate here, but which has by this time been scattered to the winds. Justice has, however, been done the English publishers in the Round Table, a weekly journal published in New York, and edited with an amount of good taste and elegance by no means common in the United States. The writer of the article says:—

An article which has attracted considerable notice among our writers and publishers appeared in a late number of Harper's Weekly, under the alarming caption, "No More American Books." One of the objects of this article was to call attention to the onerous internal duties on our home-made publications, and to "agitate" in the matter until they are reduced; another, it seems to us, was to have the duties on foreign books increased, so that they will not compete with our own under so great advantages as they undoubtedly possess just now. The writer of the article judges "that a book can be printed and published in England for one-third the cost of the same book here." He instances the "Sunday Magazine," a periodical published in London at six-pence a copy, and claims that its English publishers, who have a branch house in this city, are attempting, or have attempted, to import it at its market value in England, which they, the aforesaid publishers, affirm is three farthings a copy. "Upon this," he says, "by the present law, they pay a duty of 25 per cent.—that is, three-fourths of a farthing, making the whole cost here to them, duty included, just $3\frac{3}{4}$ farthings, a little less than two cents a copy, or 200 dols. for the whole 10,000. The importers, moreover, demand here twenty-five cents for this magazine, the market value of which in England, and upon which only they pay duty, they declare to be only three farthings." So much for figures, which, they say, will not lie. They do, however, in this case, since they are placed on a false basis; for the three farthings in question are not the sum at which the "Sunday Magazine" is invoiced, but the sum at which each sheet of it is invoiced, which is rather different, and which puts quite another face on the matter. A writer in the World, commenting upon the Harper article, seem to have a glimmering of the absurdity alluded to. "It is more likely," he says, "three pence is the value stated at the custom-house, or, at any rate, that in no case has it been less than two and a half pence. This, it will be seen, makes the statistics presented by the Messrs. Harper valueless in this relation as a basis for Congressional action. If two and a half pence per copy be taken as the invoice value, then we take it to be clear that the cost of importation, including packing, freight, custom-house duty, consul's fees, etc., will make a total cost of each copy laid down in New York to be very nearly twelve cents currency for each copy of the periodical in question. We are inclined to think also that twenty-five cents currency is the retail, and not the wholesale, price of this magazine, which, doubtless, by the quantity, can be purchased for fifteen or sixteen cents in currency." Exactly; it costs twelve cents, or thereabouts, to import the "Sunday Magazine," and it is retailed, not wholesaled, at twenty-five cents per copy. We have no wish to sound the praises of the "Sunday Magazine," which we never remember to have seen, but if it be a good magazine—as good as "Harper's Magazine" or the "Atlantic Monthly"—and the American people choose to purchase it for 25 cents, instead of purchasing our magazines at a higher figure, we think they ought to have the privilege. It is all very to talk of encouraging American literature, but the fact is we haven't much to boast of yet, certainly none that will compare with that of the mother country. How can we have literature worthy of us until we have a criticism worthy of literature? In the creative age of a literature criticism is not needed; in the merely productive period it is, and that of a summary kind. It may not be easy to make bad authors write better by criticising them, but there is a kind of power which the best books exert over the minds of their readers which is worse than ordinary criticism, so far as bad writers are concerned; for a man who is educated by good reading is apt to be intolerant towards bad writing. We have grown more in this country in the last twenty years than some of our writers are aware, and a part of this growth results, we think, from the constant circulation among us of the best periodicals of England, in the shape of complete reprints, such as are issued by Messrs. Leonard Scott & Co. They have made such of us as read them impatient of our own attempts in the same direction, and have stimulated our publishers to look for better workmen, in order to hold their own against them. This circumstance has not produced as many good writers as it should have done, but it has driven a great number of bad ones into the obscurity from which they never should have emerged, and never could, we fancy, in any country but this. Understand us. We are not pleading the cause of English against American writers. We are not saying that importers of English books should not pay duty on the full cost of the books. Neither are we upholding our present unjust system of internal taxation, which should be reduced at once. What we are trying to do is to state the case as it is, not as it has been represented. We want good books, and plenty of them; if of our own make, so much the better; if not, let us have them from abroad. It is well to be patriotic, but it is not well to read indifferent books for patriotic reasons. There is no patriotism that we can see in twaddle, certainly there is no literature in it, no matter how loyal it may be. As for the motto on this new banner, 'No more American Books,' it doesn't frighten us in the least; for, to tell the truth, we don't want many more, unless they are going to be better."

An able letter from Mr. Strahan in our present number on the same subject will also be read with interest.

NICHOL'S LIBRARY OF PURITAN DIVINITY.—The twelfth volume of Goodwin's works, to be published in April next, will complete the first series of this bold venture; which consists of Goodwin's works, 12 vols.; Sibbes' works, 7 vols.; Charnock's works, 5 vols.; Clarkson's practical works, 3 vols.; and three vols. of Adams and Samuel Ward, in all 30 volumes, which Subscribers have been able to purchase for five guineas, but which, after the first of April, will be sold in the ordinary way of business at £7 10 0, or at 5s. a volume. We must compliment the publisher upon the manner in which he has kept to the promises of his prospectus; he has even given more than he promised. The works are well printed and handsomely bound, and should find a place in every clerical library. In announcing a second series we regret to find that the Subscribers to the first were not so numerous as could be wished, and that the publisher is unable to promise more than five volumes a year for one guinea. The series will contain the entire works of Thomas Brooks, George Swinnoek, and Henry Smith, with two others, forming fifteen volumes in all.

Mr. Hodgson announces the sale of some very important remainders, including Scott Russell's Modern System of Naval Architecture, the remaining copies of Waring's Masterpieces of Industrial Arts, also the genuine copyright edition of Scott's Commentary, and a variety of other valuable and hitherto high-priced publications.

Messrs. Routledge are following up their excellent three-and-sixpenny series of reprints with great spirit: the ever-popular Arabian Nights' Tales was the first, Don Quixote is the next, and Gil Blas is to follow. Jarvis's translation of Cervantes is that which has been selected, and we are disposed to think the selection a wise one. The book is well printed, by Clay, on fine toned paper, well illustrated, and neatly bound in cloth.

Comfort for Small Incomes.—Here is a book appealing to the largest of all classes—the class of persons who desire to live respectably upon a small income, and find a difficulty in making both ends meet. This is just the friend, companion, and guide they want; it contains some pleasantly written hints, showing how not to be wasteful, how to manage for the comfort of husbands and children, and some remarkably shrewd and sensible remarks on the management of servants. This little book is not a formal treatise upon housekeeping, cookery, or any other domestic subject, but a volume of useful hints upon all combined, showing what to do and what to avoid. We cordially recommend it to the notice of all young housekeepers.

Golden Leaves from the American Poets.—Under this title Messrs. Warne & Co. have republished a volume of American poetry, which, when it becomes known, will be a general favourite. It contains all the best known, and many of the less known pieces of Longfellow, Bryant, Holmes, Poe, Willis, Boker, Read, Whittier, and Lowell, and, indeed, of all the best American writers. Mr. Alexander Smith, of Edinburgh, has prefixed a short Essay upon the poetry of America, and the publishers have given a steel plate portrait of Longfellow. Altogether, the volume is one of the most tasteful and elegant productions of the day, truly a volume of American gems in English setting of the best workmanship.

DEBRET'S PEERAGE AND BARONETAGE.—The new edition for 1866, is issued both in two volumes and in one. The editor appears to have spared no pains to make his work as correct and complete as was possible, and for this purpose placed himself in communication with all the eminent personages recorded in his pages. For the first time the family names of the peers are given, and in alphabetical order: thus after Earl Russell we have Bedford, and De Clifford, both families having the same patronymic as the premier. A brief biographical notice of each peer's immediate predecessor is given; also a very commendable feature, a list of the Members of Convocation; the editor has, however, omitted the names of the Officers of the House.

ÆSOP'S FABLES.—This is one of the few books we read at school as a task, and in after life for pleasure. As schoolboys we shun the "applications," as adults we study them. Parent or child, teacher and scholar, will be equally pleased with a new edition just issued by Messrs. Warne, printed upon the finest of toned paper by Levey, embellished with some really excellent woodcuts. The translation is the well-known work of Mr. Croxall, but Mr. Fyler Townsend furnishes some interesting prefatory matter, including a life of the author.

Wilkie Collins's Dead Secret. Cheap Edition. (Smith, Elder, & Co., 2s. 6d.)—Mr. Wilkie Collins' novel appears in a new edition, with a new preface, in Messrs. Smith and Elder's series of cheap editions of standard works. The "Dead Secret" was the author's first attempt at a sustained work of fiction; and though not so popular as the "Woman in White," showed that he possessed the power of inventing a powerful plot and keeping his reader's interest on the stretch from week to week. Contrary to general expectation, the story when published as a whole reads as well as when it appeared in weekly portions in "All the Year Round." When translated into French it was called "Le Secret," from the curious fact that no French equivalent could be found for such an essentially English phrase as the dead secret. This is done up in paper boards; hitherto the volumes of Messrs. Smith's cheap series have been issued in cloth. The change is no improvement, for paper so soon gets shabby that booksellers will be chary of putting copies into stock. Mr. Collins's Hide and Seek is also issued, uniform with the above. To their excellent Shilling Series of "Monthly Volumes of Standard Authors" Messrs. Smith, Elder and Co. have added Beyminster, by the Author of "Lena," and Counterparts; or, the Cross of Love, by the Author of "Charles Anchester."

The author of "A Night in the Casual Ward of Lambeth Workhouse," James Greenwood, has just completed a book which will be found to contain as many interesting particulars of Arab life in London as any book published since Mayhew's revelations of "London Labour and the London Poor." It is called "The True History of a Little Ragamuffin." The story is that of a little neglected Clerkenwell boy who became a thief, slept in the street, slept in the dark arches of the Adelphi and lived as he could—a very hard life, too: one that no one could envy; one without any fun or romance, or a single alleviation. Mr. Greenwood appears to be a better describer of real life than a concocter of fiction, although the story, not unlike De Foë's Colonel Jack, is one that if once begun, will not be laid aside till it is finished.

Once a Week.—Some months back we gave currency to a report that this work was about to be discontinued, we were incorrectly informed, but our statement gave the proprietors the opportunity of setting the public right. A new series has been commenced, and judging from its appearance we may expect a prosperous future.

SINGULAR COINCIDENCE OF IDEAS.—The Paris correspondent of the Daily News writes:—"It ought to be known—and I mention the fact as one patent and undeniable, without going on to draw any inference from it—that the articles of the Daily Telegraph, the only English paper which has obtained permission to be sold in the streets of Paris, are now quoted every day in the Moniteur and Constitutionnel as evidence of public opinion in England. On the Mexican question, on the extraordinary question, on the theory that Frenchmen are not fit for political liberty, and many others, it happens that the views of the Daily Telegraph are always precisely in accordance with those of the French government." This is not the first occasion on which the views of the French Government were precisely identical with those of an English newspaper.

The Household, a Magazine of Domestic Economy and Home Enjoyment, is the title of a new twopenny magazine, published by Messrs. Groombridge. The contents fully bear out the title.

Messrs. Rivingtons have recently published a pretty little edition of Adams's Sacred Allegories; one of them, the Old Man's Home, is perhaps the most successful allegory written by any one since Bunyan's day. The other allegories in the volume are also good in their way. We would suggest that in the next edition, the publishers should give a short memoir of the author. Another new book from this orthodox firm we are glad to meet in a cheaper form, Blunt's "Household Theology," a book which cannot be too widely circulated; it is one of the best and most compact theological manuals for popular use ever published, and as it becomes known, will be warmly welcomed by parents as a book for family use, or to present to their children or young friends. They also issue the "Bampton Lectures for 1865," on Miracles, preached by the Rev. J. B. Mozley. The subject is one of peculiar difficulty in the present age, when men are disposed to deny the suspension or abrogation of any given physical law, and resolve every occurrence into the natural result of well-known causes. The credibility of miracles as recorded in Holy Scripture, therefore, forms a prominent feature in this volume. From Messrs. Rivington we have two annuals, The London Diocese Book for 1866, and The Cambridge Year Book. The former is quite a model in its way, containing a vast amount of information connected with the Church Establishment in London, the various Colonial and Continental Chaplaincies under the charge of the Bishop of London, Church Societies, Diocesan Work, and, in fact, making up a record of London Church Progress for the year. The "Cambridge Year Book" is a "Cambridge Calendar" reduced, containing almost all that is usually found in that useful work.

Messrs. George Philip & Son, whose Geographical productions are, in point of beauty and accuracy second to none, have just published a neat and elegant little "Scripture Atlas," of twelve maps, constructed by William Hughes, and a small quarto "Physical Atlas," also of twelve maps, by the same. Such a work as this had no existence in our school-boy days, and it augurs well for the industry of teachers that there should be sufficient demand for a cheap Atlas of this kind. We cordially commend both, but especially the latter, to the notice of all persons engaged in tuition. The price of the Scripture Atlas is 1s., and of the Physical Atlas 2s. 6d., both neatly bound in cloth.

Burton's Melancholy Anatomised. (Tegg).—Burton's famous "Anatomy of Melancholy" is a book for scholars, and for those who, in writing for magazines, wish to be thought scholars. To most persons, however, Burton is a complete enigma, for he has overloaded the text—pointed, witty, and imaginative as it is—with such a multitude of classical quotations, repetitions, and superabundancies, that he puzzles and confuses the mere English reader, without delighting and informing him, as he doubtless intended to do. In this volume the "Anatomy" is, to a certain extent, reconstructed, and the vast body of learned notes omitted. Mr. Tegg's larger and well-known edition of Burton will always remain a favourite with those who have capacity and industry to comprehend the wonderful book; but to others who have not yet obtained sufficient mastery over Latin and Greek to fairly enjoy its perusal, this "Burton made easy" may be safely recommended. Compared with its great original, this volume is, says the editor, "a mere boat formed with a few planks taken here and there from the body of its parent vessel, differently rigged and ornamented, and accommodated rather for parties of pleasure than purposes of business, but so trimmed, it is hoped, as to be capable of showing to its passengers the superior pleasures that are to be experienced on the calm and unruffled surface of a virtuous life; while it exhibits to their view the terrifying dangers of that turbulent ocean which, agitated by the storms of passion and the winds of vice, dashes with rude and raging violence along its surrounding shores."

White's Junior Student's Latin Dictionary.—When Mr. White's large Latin-English Lexicon first appeared, the BOOKSELLER pronounced it to be "by far the most laborious and most compendious, most valuable, and most useful Dictionary of Classical Latin that has yet appeared." It remains such to the present day, and the publishers have done wisely in putting forth an abridgment, similar to the small Greek Lexicon of Liddell & Scott, abridged by the original editor, and in every way worthy of its parentage and extraction.

The Gospel Magazine, a serial which, although enjoying a limited circulation, is as highly prized by its readers as Macmillan, Good Words, or the Cornhill are by their several supporters, is, it appears, just a century old, and for nearly a quarter of that time has been under the editorship of the Rev. D. A. Doudney, who succeeded to the post after a succession of Toplads, Romaines, Hawkers, and others of the same school. The editor, whose admirers are about to present him with a testimonial, we may mention was at one time engaged in the printing profession.

OBITUARIES.

Jan. 29.—At Derby, aged 44, Mr. George Clayton, Bookseller and Stationer.

Jan. 30.—Aged 87, Mr. Thomas Gardiner, of 49, Newgate Street, Wholesale Stationer.

Feb. 6.—At 14, Highbury Crescent, aged 69, Mr. William Low, well known to a large circle of the country trade. The deceased was a son of Mr. Peter Low, a bookbinder in Little Britain, and when quite young entered the service of Messrs. George Cowie & Co., booksellers in the Poultry, successors to the bankrupt firm of Vernor & Hood. He afterwards travelled for, and for a short time was in partnership with Messrs. Cowie. When the late Mr. Pickering launched out into publishing, Mr. Low became a very efficient representative and was much liked by the country trade, many of whom he assisted in business. He also travelled for Mr. Moxon, Messrs. Learmonth and Roberts, leather-sellers, Messrs. Holmes & Aubert, paper stainers, and Mr. Buckley, floorcloth manufacturer. Altogether he had been "upon the road" nearly forty years, and we believe, only retired finally about twelve months since.

Feb. 16.—At Manchester, Mr. John Gray Bell, a well-known intelligent antiquarian bookseller. Mr. Bell was a native of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, and both an intense admirer of Bewick the Engraver, a fellow townsman, and an industrious collector of his works.

Feb. 20.—At 12, James Street, Buckingham Gate, Andrew Spottiswoode, Esq., one of the Patentees of the office of Queen's Printer. Mr. Spottiswoode was for a short time M.P. for Colchester.

Feb. 23.—At Hitchin, aged 70, Mr. Jonathan Paternoster.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE STORY OF CERTAIN BOOKS SHIPPED TO AMERICA FROM THE STRAND.

To the Editor of the BOOKSELLER.

DEAR SIR,—At the end of their letter in your last number, Strahan & Co. alluded to certain “goods of English publishers stopped at the New York Custom-house, pending the decision of a committee of New York publishers.”

That decision has now been given, at least in the case of my shipments; and I think the proceedings of sufficient interest to justify my asking you to give a place in your columns to a short account of them.

Let me begin at the beginning. In November last I sent three consignments of books to Mr. Barrie, agent for Strahan & Co., New York. The market value of these books was £374 8s. 2d., and I made a declaration accordingly to the American Consul for tariff purposes. The consignments arrived at New York, but instead of the regular import duty of 25 per cent. (£93 12s. 0½d.) being levied on them, and their being thereafter delivered up in regular course, the consignee received information that the goods would be retained until some New York publishers had an opportunity of examining them, and judging as to whether or not they were honestly invoiced. This looked strange enough, but there was nothing for it but to submit, although the American book season was fast going by. Mr. Barrie attended day after day at the Custom-house, to be always told the same thing—Not ready yet, not ready yet. So it went on till the 18th of January, when my goods were at length brought up for examination. The district appraiser was present, and with him was associated Mr. George S. Appleton as Judge; and for assistant or consulting judges there were Mr. Charles Welford, Mr. John Wiley, Mr. Ebb, and Mr. D. Van Nostrand. Mr. Barrie was in attendance, and the business proceeded.

The first item in the first invoice was 1,000 copies in quires of a little book published by me, and sold at eighteenpence in boards—that price being printed on the boards. This first item was entered at £25, being at the rate of 6d. a copy. The judges, feeling, I suppose, how much depends on first impressions, determined to inspire awe at the beginning; so they at once ruled that the seven ounces of inked paper which made up a copy of the little book were worth one shilling and ninepence in London, and decided, with a firmness becoming their exalted station, that that was the proper sum to pay duty upon. Mr. Barrie very meekly took leave to draw attention to the eighteenpence publicly advertised, and to run over a few figures to this effect:

Sells in London when boarded for 1s. 6d.

Sells in London in quires for 1s. 3d.

From 1s. 3d. deduct 25 per cent., and 10 per cent., and 8 per cent. (for 13 as 12), and you get 8½d.

One would think that these were anything but figures of speech, but the judges were not to be moved by vulgar fractions of arguments, and they therefore remained as “firm” as the telegrams from India always report “cotton twistings” to be. But one of the Bench (I am sorry I have not got his name) was considerate enough to draw attention to the fact that notwithstanding the price of the book having just been represented as 8½d. in London, it was invoiced at 6d. Upon this Mr. Barrie took leave to make himself heard again to something like the following effect. A book sold at 8½d. in single dozens is sold at much less when thousands are dealt in; and he gave them this case in point:—Before Strahan & Co. had a local habitation in the States, or ever contemplated having such, they received an inquiry from one of the first American firms, as to the price at which they would supply a thousand copies of a certain book published at 3s. 6d. Knowing that the American firm had a short time before reprinted one of the same series of books and paid nothing for it, Strahan and Co. thought that a little profit would be better than no profit, and they therefore added 10 per cent. to the cost and supplied accordingly. Mr. Barrie then handed a paper to the Bench, which proved to be the receipt granted by Strahan & Co. for the payment of the thousand three-and-sixpenny books. It showed the price to be 10d. a copy!

Hereupon the district appraiser suggested that the matter should be deferred for future consideration; but Judge Appleton differed from him, and, like an unwise man, gave his reasons for differing. Had he withheld the reasons, as I suppose it was quite competent for him to have done, his juridical reputation might long have lingered about the Custom-house. But after this deliverance I fear it cannot be so. “This transaction,” said Judge Appleton, “could not have been a regular transaction; and even if it were a regular transaction, it should not be made a rule!” What a pity this judge had not heard of the man who was in prison, and was visited by a friend. The man explained what he was imprisoned for. The friend assured him that he could not be imprisoned for that. “But I am imprisoned, you see,” the man replied. Again the friend assured him that he couldn’t be. But again the man pointed to the stocks, and insisted that he was in prison. The friend came to see at last that what is, is, and that a fact is a fact, irrespective of what some persons may think of it.

The first item in the invoice being now disposed of, the second was taken up; but it is enough to say of it, that it was dealt with after the fashion of the first. And so were all the others, until my total of £374 was mounted up to some fabulous sum. Afterwards, it is true, there was a re-appraisement made, or, as it was called, a "final appraisement," in which such liberties were taken with the former valuation that the 1s. 9d. of the first item of the first invoice was reduced to 9d. But when the result of this final appraisement was announced, it was at the same time intimated that the whole goods were confiscated, and it does not therefore very much matter what the final appraisement really was.

Yes, the custom-house authorities, acting on the opinion or recommendation of their advisers the publishers, confiscated the whole goods. But, at the same time, they informed Mr. Barrie, that if he paid £800 they would let him have the property. He declined to do this; but, as he had orders for the books, and wished them urgently, he (unfortunately, but with the best intentions) agreed to give £492 1s. 9d. for them,—that being the amount, as he found from estimates taken, that he could produce the whole books in America for. The custom-house officials declined this, but agreed to take £600. Mr. Barrie said No again; and then the custom-house officials wrote to intimate that they would accept the offer of £492 1s. 9d. The money was paid, and the treasury of Customs at New York is now in possession of £400 of mine, to which I think it has not a shadow of a claim.

Just now I stand before the American book trade in a position which no good man would wish to occupy. It is whispered about in New York, and I fear elsewhere too, "You saw the exposure which Messrs. Harper made of the ridiculous prices upon which he had paid duty, and you now see that a committee of the trade, with Mr. George S. Appleton at its head, has had to add so much to the declared value of his recent shipments as to necessitate their confiscation." I admit that I feel these whisperings keenly. But softly, gentlemen! we shall have a few words of reasoning together, and perhaps I may be able to turn the tables a bit.

In respect of invoices of goods entered into the United States, your statute provides that if the shipper procure merchandise by purchase, he shall state in the invoice the "actual cost thereof." But if, on the other hand, the merchandise be obtained in any other manner than by purchase, then "the invoice shall contain the actual market value thereof, at the time and place when and where the same was manufactured."

Now I should like to know in which class—that of the purchaser or that of the manufacturer—my judges ranked me. I suspect they have taken for a manufacturer one who has neither a paper mill, nor a type foundry, nor a stereotype foundry, nor an ink manufactory, nor a printing office, nor an engraving establishment, nor a binding shop. Some publishers in Germany, and some in America too, I believe, have all these, but I manufacture nothing, and have no more claim to the name of manufacturer than the lady has who purchases silk for a dress at one shop, trimmings for it at a second, lining at a third, and gets the whole done up at a fourth. Had I then simply entered the goods I sent to New York, at the net prices I paid for them to the several manufacturers, I hold that I should have been acting in strict conformity with the letter of the statute. But I did not do this; and I waive my right in the meantime to be looked upon as a simple purchaser.

Assume that I am a manufacturer, and try me accordingly. In this case, the first thing to be settled is, What is "market value?" If the phrase stood by itself, it might be open to cavilling persons to take different views of it; and it must have been to guard against this that the Secretary to the Treasury of the United States issued his Circular of Instructions to Consuls, dated August 8th, 1865. In that circular he defines "market value," and the definition is noteworthy. It is as follows:—"Market value is the price for which any goods, wares, or merchandise may be purchased for cash." The law then being that I should enter my goods at the price at which they may be purchased (sold) for cash, the first thing you have to do is to ascertain whether I will sell or have sold for cash at the prices entered. The test is a fair one, and I accept it. Mr. Appleton and the other gentlemen, in the exercise of their judicial functions, seemed to laugh at the price at which I entered the 1000 copies of the little eighteenpenny book already alluded to. But I tell these gentlemen that that price is 45 per cent. above the rate at which I have sold books to American publishers. And as a test of their sincerity and mine, I hereby offer to supply them with one thousand or one hundred thousand copies of the work at 45 per cent. below the price made so little of by them. And why, I may ask, were my prices made so little of by them? My only way of explaining it is this, that they misinterpreted the whole spirit of the law. They seem to have assumed that an import duty was levied upon books not with the view of increasing the revenue of the United States, but with the view of shutting out all foreign books, and giving the native manufacturer a complete monopoly of the trade. I could understand their proceedings had the statute run thus:—"In respect of goods entered into the United States, it is hereby notified that no shipper is desired to send goods; but is rather requested to keep them at home. Should any one, however, be foolhardy enough to insist on thrusting himself where he is not wanted, he must state in his invoice the actual cost of his goods, with 100 per cent., or if need be 200 per cent., added to the said cost. And if the shipper obtain his merchandise by manufacture, then he had better take care, and put on a swinging rate for market value, otherwise a committee of trade rivals will 'sit' upon his wares, and mulct him in 500 per cent. as fast as look at him. And after all is done, it will be quite optional for the Collector of Customs to confiscate the whole goods, and secure a good percentage to himself on the transaction." Had this been the language of the Act, I could have understood the proceedings of Mr. Appleton and his coadjutors; but things being as they are, he must allow me to say that I do not understand them. The Treasury of the United States required to be replenished by tariff duties as well as by excise duties, and distinct and definite laws were made for the guidance of both, and published to the world. The tariff duties are the charter of the foreign trader, just as the excise duties are the directory of the home trader; and should the two by any chance come into collision,—should the tariff through oversight or any other cause be so fixed as to place the home dealer at a great disadvantage when compared with the foreign dealer, why, then the home dealer must just submit until the law be altered. Most certainly he has no right to go to the Custom-house authorities and say, "You must take immediate steps to increase your tariff duties, otherwise I shall be ruined, and a whole branch of native manufacture destroyed, and all to please the foreigner who will not thank you." He has no more right in this case to complain of the foreigner than the foreigner would have in the converse case to complain of him.

Excuse me for preaching these elementary truths to you, but I cannot help it. I lately read in an American paper—the Nation, I think—that "Americans living among Chinamen wonder to see the blindness of that whole people in respect to some things so very obvious that any half-witted Yankee boy perceives them in a moment. A Chinese joiner laying joists for a chamber floor is sure to lay them flat-wise; if he is remonstrated with, he cannot see; if his attention is directed to the fact that, if laid on their edges they hold up the floor without breaking or bending, he only replies that a plank is a thing to be laid flat-wise, and any other position is unnatural and absurd. There is no mystery greater than that of the intellect of a whole civilized nation being in the close neighbourhood of a great improvement—the idea presented and almost pushed in its face every day—and yet no one ever seizing it." What could be more true of the attitude of the Americans towards political economy and the whole science of economics? American publishers find that their excise duty on printing paper is 35 per cent., and that their customs duty is 20 per cent. on the same paper unsized. Well, what do they do? They say, "To the dogs with 35 per cent.! We will import paper, and get it in for 20 per cent." Accordingly, they send orders here in such swarms that the price of our paper mounts up; and just now I am actually paying between £700 and £800 a year more on the hundreds of tons of paper I use than I should have to pay had the American Government not committed the stupid mistake by which their own paper-mills are standing idle, while the English paper-mills are overworked, and our prices enhanced in consequence. So far, it must be admitted on all hands English publishers are the sufferers. Look at the other side now. English publishers, finding that they suffer from the working of the American laws, decide upon trying to make up their loss by pushing the sale of their books in America. They read that 25 per cent. on market value is the import duty at New York; and they read again that market value is "the price for which any goods, wares, or merchandise may be purchased for cash," and they ship their wares in good faith accordingly. You American publishers benefit by the mistake of your law-makers in the matter of unprinted paper; we English publishers ought surely to be allowed to benefit by the other mistake (if it be a mistake) in the matter of printed paper.* But we are soon undeceived. You must have your bread buttered on both sides of the Atlantic, and you therefore raise against us the cry of "Smugglers! Smugglers!" and forthwith give us a taste of Lynch law. The better portion of the American trade must now make itself heard; otherwise the epithet of the bookaneers, playfully applied to the whole body the other day, will stick to them in our minds, whether we will or no.

I would ask the American booksellers again to try me by what has been done in the case of other traders, or of the shippers of other classes of goods—say of umbrellas. And the umbrella is well entitled to be cited in virtue of the very important part it plays in the valuable report of the Revenue Commissioners, published in the New York Times of January 30th. The Commissioners tell that each part of an umbrella is taxed once, some parts twice, before the umbrella is completed, when it is taxed again as a whole. There is a tax on the silk, alpaca, or gingham, a tax on the handle, a tax on the ferule, a tax on the frame, a tax on the material of which the elastic band is composed, and a second tax on the band, a tax on the button, a tax on the tassel if there be one. The tax on the silk or alpaca is 50 or 60 per cent. ad valorem on importation, the tax on each part made in the Union is again 6 per cent. ad valorem. The effect of this heaping up of tax upon tax is such, that in spite of an import duty of 35 per cent. ad valorem, English umbrellas are imported and sold for less than the cost price of those made in the States, and some umbrella manufacturers have in consequence closed their factories. An affecting enough tale, doubtless; but we nowhere read in the report that the umbrella trade rushed to the Custom-house, and endeavoured to get the customs duty increased by hook or by crook to meet the excise duty. They did not raise a howl against the shippers of umbrellas. They did not insist upon the umbrellas being retained until the rainy season was over, and they had time to revalue them, and to put on 500 per cent. on some, and then confiscate the whole. No, the umbrella merchants who sent umbrellas to New York, on the faith that they would be admitted at the 35 per cent. import duty prescribed by the statute, were fairly and honourably dealt with. Much is said of the civilizing influence of paper, but I am afraid that after this it must go down before gingham.

And I would ask the American booksellers further to try me by the interpretation of the statute adopted by the New York publishers themselves. What their interpretation is, or rather what it was before any biasing motives came into play, is conclusively brought out in the above-quoted report of the Revenue Commission. With the view of showing how the book trade in America has been affected by recent legislative measures, the Commissioners quote from a circular of a leading member of the book trade. And this is what they quote:—"In England, books, paper, &c., are specially exempted from taxation. Here there is a duty of 35 per cent. on sized book paper, and an internal revenue tax equal to about 11 per cent. on books, including the tax on paper, and on the difference between the cost and the wholesale price; while the duty on imported books is only 25 per cent. With all these odds against us, the English manufacturer should be able to pay his duties and land his books in New York or Boston at about one half the price we can make them

* I see that an agitation is being got up in New York to add to the present 25 per cent. ad valorem duty on English books, a new tax of 25 cents per pound weight. I am only concerned with the law as it is, not as it may be; but I venture to predict that the agitation will not succeed. And whether it succeed or not, I am indifferent; for it is not my intention to give Mr. Ebb and his fellows any more occasion to absent themselves from their legitimate callings, whatever these may be. But this is not the end, but rather the beginning, I hope, of Strahan & Co. in New York.

here—to wit, his paper costs him only one-third what paper costs here, his labour and materials less than one-half, while we pay an amount about equal to his duties in internal revenue; even more, for he invoices his goods at cost, or nearly so, sending them to his own house here, while our tax is upon every separate item that enters into the book. . . . An average book would, perhaps, take one pound of paper.

"This in America now costs	30	cents.
Other material, say	10	"
Labour	12	"
11 per cent. internal revenue tax	7½	"
<hr/>
Total cost in United States	59½	"
Paper in England	10	"
Other material	5	"
Labour	6	"
Tariff	5½	"
<hr/>
Total cost of English

books delivered here 26½ cents."

This illustration is more effective than any argument. Here is an eminent member of the book trade saying that a Customs duty of 25 per cent. on nett cost satisfies the law, and the Revenue Commission publish his statement without any qualification.

And I would ask the American booksellers again to try me by the practice of some of the leading members of their own body, say by that of Mr. Appleton, the Chairman, or head-centre, of the committee who adjudicated on my shipments. Mr. Appleton is represented in London just as I am represented in New York,—or rather as I wish to be, for what with one kind of opposition and another, I cannot be said to have as yet got a resting-place for the sole of my foot. And Mr. Appleton is the publisher of "Webster's Spelling-book," of which the Revenue Commissioners say, "At the present time the one article which, above all others, would seem to be a peculiar product of American industry, viz., 'Webster's Spelling-book,' is now being printed in large quantities in London for the use of American schools." Now, one would think, judging from Mr. Appleton's conduct in my case, that he would invoice his little work at something like 500 per cent. above the price it cost him in London—that being the amount he put upon my book. But (I am almost ashamed to write it) he does not put on 500 per cent., nor 400, nor 300, nor 200, nor 100, nor 50, nor 10, no, not even 1! His invoices contain the bare actual cost, and yet he was the means indirectly, if not directly, of confiscating my goods, and thereby holding me up to the American trade as a smuggler and an unprincipled man. When Dr. Macleod and I were in Safed two years ago, we were told by the Austrian consul there that the day before we entered the town a Spanish Jewess was taken in adultery and put to death, one of the rabbis who tried and condemned her being himself the partner in her crime. Since then I have not heard of such a glaring case of inconsistency as Mr. Appleton's. I hope he will be able to explain matters satisfactorily. Mr. Lippincott too, it is well known, made large purchases in London, and invoiced them at actual cost.* These men, so familiar with American laws and customs, interpreted the statute in a more liberal sense than I did; and if any action was to have been taken in the matter, it should surely have been directed against those who sinned against the greater light, and not against a stranger, who had only a public statute to guide him, at 3,000 miles distance.

* I may state that I wrote to the Collector of Customs, New York, when I first heard of the detention of my goods, informing him that I thought I did all that was required when I invoiced a little above cost price. But I am given to understand that this letter had a very different effect from what I expected. Unfortunately I cannot now refer to the letter, as it was written very hurriedly to catch the post, and there was neither time to read it over nor take a copy of it.

The American publishing trade has done me a great injustice in this business, and I appeal confidently to them to put me right. Just now I have neither the means nor the opportunity to fight a long legal contest in America, but their influence can doubtless undo what it has done. Let me remind them that when my goods were locked up in the New York custom-house, one New York firm announced two of my books (four volumes) as being in preparation by them, another firm announced one, another firm two, a Boston firm two, while one Boston journal appropriated the leading story of one magazine, and another Boston journal set about reprinting the whole contents piecemeal of a second magazine. Good gentlemen all, I have never complained of a book or magazine of mine being reprinted, and shall never do so—the law being as it is. But I am hurt at the filching away of my reputation, and shall be very grateful to any of the American trade who may take the necessary steps to get back the money. Not for the money's sake, but to cancel that of which it is the sign! I don't want the money; at all events, I can do without it, and shall be quite willing to let it go to the Freedmen's Commission. But I cannot rest until it is got back from those who have it now. And if Messrs. Harper and Messrs. Appleton would only take the initiative in sponging out the memory of this wrong, they would do a graceful thing to one who can appreciate a right act, even when it comes late.

I am, &c.,

ALEXANDER STRAHAN.

WALKER versus WALKER.

Walker's 1s. Dictionary, by Nuttall, and Warne's Pearl Edition.

To the Editor of the BOOKSELLER.

SIR,—In your last month's Number you gave Messrs. Routledge credit for the production of a new shilling "Walker's Dictionary," edited by Dr. Nuttall. Are you aware that you should have awarded the originality of the same to ourselves, the dictionary we issued in advance of theirs being a really new book? That reissued by them to compete with ours is simply a reprint of a two shilling edition produced nine years since. A comparison of the two books will at once show their respective value.

We are, dear Sir, yours respectfully,

FRED. WARNE & CO.

[We fail to see the precise point of our wrongdoing. Messrs. Routledge sent us a copy of their new shilling dictionary, and in noticing it we said,—

"Messrs. Routledge have just published a little dictionary, which for cheapness, completeness, and usefulness, distances all competitors. It contains nearly three hundred closely-printed pages on good paper. Walker's pronouncing dictionary forms the basis of the work, but Dr. Nuttall has added many hundred words, including recent scientific terms; many inaccuracies have been corrected, and some of Dr. Walker's peculiarities removed. Prefixed is an introduction extending to thirty-two pages, containing a large amount of philological information. No shilling dictionary that we are acquainted with contains so much information as this."

All this we believe to be strictly true, and the fact of Messrs. Routledge reducing to one shilling a book which, cheap publishers as they have always been, they formerly published at two shillings, goes far to prove that we were right in describing it as the cheapest dictionary published. Messrs. Warne and Co. have now sent us another book, which is noticed elsewhere. It is not our practice to compare the books of one house with those published at another. ED. BOOKSELLER.]

TWOPENCE IN THE SHILLING.

To the Editor of the BOOKSELLER.

SIR,—I am trustee in the estate of an unfortunate bookseller, a victim to the very common practice of underselling. I find that he has been in the constant habit of giving three and six months' credit, and at the end of those periods taking off the twopence in the shilling. No wonder at his failure, I dare say you will be ready to exclaim. Amongst the claims for reduction is one that I think is worth naming in your columns. The account is before me; here it is. January 1866, "Harwood's Diary, tuck, 2s.!" With the account is a note from the party owing this large sum; here is a verbatim copy.

"Mr. — encloses twenty postage stamps, which, with the usual discount of twopence in the shilling, pays the accompanying account. A receipt is requested." The gentleman thus deducting fourpence from two shillings, is, I am informed, a wealthy man, and lives in luxury. He resides many miles distant from the poor bookseller who supplied him with the book, consequently there was a postage incurred in sending the account, and another required for sending receipt!

Yours truly,
LEX.

ON SALE OR RETURN.

To the Editor of the BOOKSELLER.

SIR,—At a time when booksellers are meeting to discuss the bad habits of the trade, and to suggest, if possible, remedial measures, one of the very evils that should be particularly guarded against by the retail trade, is being practised to a great extent, viz. the receiving of books on Sale or Return. Have booksellers thoroughly considered the working of this system? 1. Do they not know that, with few exceptions, their shops are too small for what they would like to keep? 2. Are they not quite ready to purchase what they consider they can sell? Yes, will be said to both these questions, by any of the experienced men in the wholesale trade. Yet the retail allow publishers to send on Sale or Return. Their unsaleable stock filling up all available space and occupying the place that, if this bad system was not in practice, would be filled with books that they would purchase with a certainty of advantage far in excess from that gained by a disposal of any of the on-sale books. The complete discontinuance of this system would be of great advantage to the retailer. The cure, if persisted in by a wholesale dealer, is a return with carriage to pay both ways.

Yours respectfully,
A CONSTANT SUBSCRIBER.

EARLY PRINTED BOOKS.

Mr. Francis Fry, of Cotham, near Bristol, has for some years been engaged in reproducing, by means of Photo-lithography, a series of fac-similes of early printed books of the greatest rarity and interest: his latest production being an illustrated description of the great Bible of 1539. The following account of this volume is written by himself:—

"This work is intended to serve not only as a bibliographical description of the Folios above-named, but also as a key whereby to identify the editions, and the evidence afforded from the comparison of a large number of copies has, it is hoped, decided some doubts relating to them. The folio size has been adopted, to admit of the best arrangement of the passages to be compared and the insertion of the original leaves. More than ten years have now elapsed since I began the investigation, but I do not regret that many engagements have prevented its earlier completion, since this delay has enabled me to give to it the most careful consideration, and afforded an opportunity of examining copies, and of obtaining information, which otherwise I certainly could not have had at my command.

"I have for many years been collecting editions of the Bible and Testament, especially the earlier ones; part of my plan being to obtain a complete set of the Seven Editions, and the Large Folios of the Authorized Version named in the Title: Of the seven editions, five having sixty-two lines on a page, read together; and two editions having sixty-five lines on a page, and the same two editions with Reprints, read together, while some of the preliminary leaves and the internal titles will suit any edition; therefore any portion of these respectively may be bound together, the first and last word of every leaf of the five editions and of the two editions and the Reprints being the same, with one or two accidental exceptions. Most copies are found to consist of these editions mixed. Every leaf of the seven differs with the exception of fourteen leaves. I have found, however, but few of these Bibles which do not contain some leaves of other editions. Thus the 1539 and April 1540 editions are often found mixed, so also the July and December, and the two editions and the Reprints having sixty-five lines. The folio editions of our Authorized Version of 1611, 1617, 1634, and 1640, and the preliminary of 1613, also have the first and last word of the same leaf in each edition the same, excepting two pages in 1634, and are printed with the same type, and on a page of the same size, but differently set up. These all read together, and copies are often found composed of parts of two or more editions. I could not find any where copies which were known to be standards of the true editions. I therefore resolved to collate as large a number as circumstances would permit, after which I might endeavour to decide by the weight of evidence, from the number of copies examined, to which particular edition those leaves belong, which are found in more than one edition. In pursuance of this resolve, I have with great labour compared every leaf of 113 copies of the Bibles of 1539, 1540, and 1541. Of these I found thirty-one to be correct so far as they were perfect, and I also examined thirty-three, which I was not able to compare all through, and of these only one was correct. Thus, of 146 compared and examined, 114 proved to be copies of mixed editions, and thirty-two were correct. It has been observed that copies of the edition of 1611 differ in some leaves, in the spelling, in the setting up of the type, and in other respects; and there are two different title-pages, each having the date of 1611. Errors have been noticed in some copies which do not exist in others; and it has been supposed by some writers that these errors were observed during the progress of printing, and that consequently some portions of the edition were cancelled. Copies of these Bibles have lately been described—one, as the first edition having the error in Exodus ch. xiv. v. 10, and the other without such error, as the second edition; but as I could not find any evidence that two distinct editions existed, I determined to endeavour to unravel the mystery, so far as the materials at my command would enable me. The only plan that suggested itself, by which I could obtain conclusive evidence on the differences existing in the first edition, was to compare the same leaf in many copies at the same time. I have in this way compared 100 copies of the four editions, and examined ten more; seventy were of the edition of 1611,—of these forty consisted of both the issues, twenty-three were the first issue correct, seven were the second issue and reprints, whilst eighteen copies contained portions of subsequent editions in the preliminary or text. From the facts elicited, I think it is conclusively shown which is the first and which is the second issue. Of thirty copies of 1617, 1634, and 1640, twenty-one copies consisted of different editions mixed.

"Very few of the Bibles I have seen are perfect; most of them are indeed very imperfect, but yet they are sufficiently complete for my purpose in this examination.

"To carry out my plan, I visited Scotland and Ireland, and have examined most of the known copies in public and private libraries in the kingdom. Having taken with me the books necessary for comparison, I have settled the individuality of each edition to my entire satisfaction, and, as I hope, beyond doubt; and this by evidence that could be obtained in no other way.

"Having spent so much time and careful research on these Bibles, it was suggested to me by more than one of my friends that I should publish the result of my investigations; and having done so, I hope this contribution to bibliography may be useful to those interested in the subject. As the title and last leaf are often lost, it is difficult to identify an imperfect copy. By this work EVERY LEAF OF THE GREAT BIBLE AND THE SIX CRANNERS AND THE REPRINTS CAN BE IDENTIFIED: ALSO THE PRELIMINARY OF THE EDITIONS OF THE AUTHORISED VERSION DESCRIBED, AND ONE LEAF IN EVERY SIGNATURE OF BOTH ISSUES 1611, THE REPRINTS, THE 1617, AND THE 1634. The 1613 is in smaller type, and the 1640 is distinguished by the marginal notes. A collation and full description of each of the editions, and those with reprints is given, and a list of those leaves of other editions which frequently occur in copies of the edition described. The edition of April 1540 is shown to be the first of Cranner's version. The copies of 1539 and April 1540, printed on vellum, are noticed. The two titles belonging to the edition of 1611 are described, and full consideration is given to the question, whether both were intended for the same volume, or for either issue?—and it is shown that the engraved title was published also in the second, and probably in other editions. Twelve copies of the edition of 1611, with the title of 1613, are described.

"The genealogies of Jesus Christ, on thirty-four engraved pages, and the map of Canaan, by John Speed, which were published with the A. V., are explained. Hugh Broughton is said by Lightfoot to have suggested the plan, and the patent granted by King James for securing the genealogies and map to John Speed for ten years is given in full. It is shown that there are twenty-three varieties of the genealogies in large folio, and distinctive passages from each of them are given in the plates. There are eleven varieties of the map, which is one sheet folio. They are printed from two copper-plates, and a portion of each is copied, and a passage from each of the six editions of the letterpress on the reverse of the map. A summary is given, showing the number of each edition of the genealogies examined, in all 103 copies, and the editions of the Bible in which 103 of them were found: also a summary showing the number of each variety of the Map, in all thirty-five copies, and the editions of the Bible in which they were found.

"As no description is equal to an original leaf, I have inserted one from each of the thirteen editions, and one from the reprints 1611, which are described in the work.

"The work is illustrated by fifty-one plates, consisting of facsimile copies of passages from the several editions of the Bible, also from the genealogies and maps, and 'an identification of every leaf,' &c. I have selected the same passage where I could find such passage differing through all the editions, or some quotation which with the pointing hands is not the same in either of the other editions, and therefore is a true guide. The plates will serve as a key by which the edition of any leaf there given may be certainly known. The plates No. 1 to 33 relate only to the seven editions; 34 to 51 only to the Authorized Version. The first plate is a copy of the elaborate wood-engraving used for the titles, which has been attributed to Holbein, and is shown to be by that master beyond doubt. Plate No. 2 is the letterpress of the titles of the seven editions and three variations; No. 3 to 6 are quotations from the preliminary and first chapter of Genesis. There are four plates of parts of the titles to the second, third, and fourth parts and the New Testament. The other plates are from the end of Deuteronomy, the first of Job, the end of Maccabees, the first of Matthew, the two leaves of tables, and the nine imprints, passages from the reprints, &c., &c. Four plates contain a quotation or passage from the first page of every signature, and nine more are an identification in seven columns of every leaf not before described, by reference to the capitals, of which seventy-seven are drawn, and by reference to the spelling or the position of a word. Plate 33 consists of distinctive parts of variation leaves found in different editions. Plate 34 is the engraved title, 1611. Plate 35 is the letterpress of the five titles. Plates 36 to 45 contain passages of the preliminary, the first leaf of text, and the first and second issues and reprints compared, and from the maps. There are three plates of the identification of one leaf in each signature, the last leaves of text, with some capital letters, and the letterpress of the New Testament titles of the first and second issue; and three plates, parts of each of twenty-three editions of the genealogies.

"By comparing so many copies leaf by leaf, I met in some copies of November, 1540, with forty-nine leaves, and in November, 1541, 196 leaves differing from the usual copies; and in several copies of the second issue, 1611, 244 additional leaves. These I call reprints; they are fully explained, and also many variation leaves occasionally found.

"I have collated every leaf of forty-five copies of the second issue, and forty-one of these differ from each other; this is so unusual a circumstance, that in order to show how the reprints and first issue have been used in each copy of the second issue to present so remarkable a result, a table in forty-five columns is given, which shows the distribution of them through each volume. This table is in six folio pages, folded. There is also a table describing twenty-five copies of the first issue, and one showing how nineteen copies of the edition of 1617 and three copies of 1634 are mixed with other editions."

The other reproductions of Mr. Fry are:—"The First New Testament," printed in the English language—(1525 or 1526), translated by William Tyndale, reproduced in facsimile.—With an Introduction. 8vo.

"This," Mr. Fry says, "is a reproduction of the only known copy of the first edition of Tyndale's New Testament, perhaps the most interesting book in our language. It contains 692 pages of close small type; is a faithful representation of the original; and will be valued not only as a version, but as showing the state of the English language, the style of printing, the orthography (which is very irregular), the punctuation, the divisions of the words at the ends of lines (even to a letter), and the contractions used. It has been made by tracing on transfer paper, placing this on lithographic stones, and then printing it in the usual way: a method evidently calculated to ensure the closest possible correspondence with the original."

"The Prophete Jonas," with an Introduction before teaching to understande him. By William Tyndale, to which is added Coverdale's Version of Jonah, reproduced in facsimile from the Ed. 1535, with an Introduction. 8vo.

"A Proper Dyaloge betwene a Gentilman and a Husband man" eche complaynyng to other their miserable calamite through the ambition of the clergie: with "a Compendious Olde Treatyse shewynge howe that we ought to have the Scripture in Englysshe," printed by Hans Luft, 1530. Reproduced in facsimile, with an Introduction.

"The Souldier's Pocket Bible." Printed at London by G. B. and R. W. for G. C. 1643. Reproduced in facsimile, with an Introduction. 8vo.

"Containing the most (if not all) those places contained in Holy Scripture, which doe shew the qualifications of his inner man, that is a fit Souldier to fight the Lord's Battels, both before the fight, in the fight, and after the fight; which Scriptures are reduced to severall heads, and fitly applyed to the Souldiers severall occasions and so may supply the want of the whole Bible, which a Souldier cannot conveniently carry about him; And may be also usefull for any Christian to meditate upon, now in this miserable time of Warre."

"There has been a prevalent opinion that the soldiers in Cromwell's army were supplied with a Pocket Bible, but as to what edition of the Bible was used there has hitherto been no evidence. That this was the Pocket Bible there can be no doubt. One copy only of this tract is known in this kingdom, which is in the British Museum.

"The Christian Soldier's Penny Bible. Shewing from the Holy Scriptures the Soldier's duty and encouragement. London: Printed by R. Smith, for Sam. Wade, 1693. Reproduced in facsimile, with an introductory Note by F. Fry. 8vo.

"A Brief Collection of pertinent Scriptures, under XX Heads, fit for the Soldier's, or Seaman's Pocket, when he is not furnish'd with, or cannot well carry a larger Volume, in time of War." This is also a rare tract. It is nearly a reprint of the Souldier's Pocket Bible. It is somewhat altered, and some of the 'Heads' and the texts are amplified, and others are varied."

Copies of all these books may be obtained of Messrs. Willis and Sotheran, 136, Strand.

ages of DEBRETTS'S PEERAGE over all Compilations—the low price,—size,—the large rate information, blazonry of the Arms Peers and Baronets, Degrees, University Honours, &c.,—and the clear arrangement of the various particulars relating to the Titled Classes, &c., &c.

Many improvements are now for the first time introduced into the new edition for 1866, viz., the Predecessors of the present Peer, the extension of Convocation and Dignitaries of the Church; Biographies of the Younger Sons and Daughters, in addition to Name and Patronage of Church Livings enjoyed by each Peer or Baronet; the introduction of the Courtesy Titles of the eldest sons in the Alphabetical Arrangements of the Peerage; the Names of the Clubs, in addition to Seats, Residences; full particulars of the English, Irish, and Scotch Bishops; a full account of heraldry; and, in fact, a great extension of all matters of interest, either to or of the Titled Classes of the Realm: while the two volumes contain nearly 1600 Coats of Arms, Cuts, &c., Heraldically described; and the two books, half-bound in one vol., leather back, gilt edges, 15s.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS—(Extracts).

"The edition of this work for the present year is the most complete of its kind that has ever been given to the public. There is hardly a public man or a functionary in the Church or State which does not find a place in one department or another of this truly comprehensive work."—Standard, Feb. 19th, 1865.

"Both volumes are most admirably printed, and clearly arranged; and they form the most complete handbook of the Peers, Baronets, and Knights of the United Kingdom."—Star, February, 1865.

"Debrett, in the present publishers' hands, has been so remodelled as to fully meet the requirements of the day, and furnish the most handy and reliable Peerage and Baronetage for ready use published."—Reader, March, 1865.

"Debrett holds its own amongst Peerage handbooks, as Francis Moore does among almanacks."—Athenaeum.

"The merits of this long-established register of our Nobility are well known. It is, as usual, a satisfactory and trustworthy book of reference. A brief explanation, with illustrations of heraldry, forms an important appendage."—Morning Post.

"Debrett's celebrated 'Peerage' is a work which has maintained its reputation for upwards of a century. There is now no similar work to equal this, either in correctness or cheapness."—Illustrated News.

Booksellers will be supplied with Prospectuses of the above with their own names on application.

THE NEW MISSIONARY MAGAZINES
FOR 1866.

Issued Monthly, Price One Penny, with Illustrations.

THE NET
CAST IN MANY WATERS.

SKETCHES OF THE LIFE OF MISSIONARIES.

EDITED BY ANNE MACKENZIE.

(Sister of the late Bishop Mackenzie.)

The object of this Magazine is to present to the reader in an inviting form the every-day experiences in the life of Missionaries. The information which it is intended to convey shall be drawn principally from private sources, and will contain sketches of the manners and customs of the natives of the following Countries:—I. Natal and Zululand. II. Cape Town. III. Central Africa. IV. Honolulu. V. Melanesia, &c.

The Literary Churchman says:

"This Magazine, edited by Miss Mackenzie, promises to supply the want that has been much felt, of rendering Missionary intelligence attractive to general readers, and especially to those parish contributors whose hard-spared pence must be given very much in faith. The fault in most of our Mission magazines has been that they take so wide a field that it is difficult to sustain any connected interest. Miss Mackenzie proposes that her Magazine should occupy itself with only Missions enough for the interest to grasp at a time, and with these commencements, as well as with details enough about places and people as to make the narratives intelligible to the poor, to village children, &c. Already, in these two numbers, we have an interesting account of King Kamehameha and Queen Emma, followed up by extracts from letters from Archdeacon and Mrs. Mason, describing their arrival, and the habits of the islanders."

The Churchman says:

"We rejoice in an effort which has marked the new year. It is evidently a step in the right direction. Miss Mackenzie, the sister of the late devoted Bishop, has become editor of a little penny monthly paper, called THE NET, which is to gather up, net-like, the little fishes which escape out of the larger meshes used by the regular fishermen. This is, we are persuaded, exactly the right idea, and we are bound to say that the first number is most promising. THE NET ought to sell by tens of thousands, and we gladly devote this special notice, unusual in the case of such periodicals, for the purpose of making it more widely known."

The Church Review says:

"We hail the new publication with satisfaction. It is hoped to make the Magazine suitable for parochial distribution, the object being to give information as to the progress of various Missions for which Miss Mackenzie has ample materials of a more than usually interesting kind, being furnished from private rather than official sources. This Magazine ought to be circulated largely in all our parishes."

Issued Quarterly, Price Threepence, Numerous Illustrations.

MISSION LIFE:

THE QUARTERLY JOURNAL

MISSION TO CENTRAL AFRICA.

Until the appearance of Mission Life, the Universities' Mission to Central Africa have had no recognised organ to enable them to bring the important and interesting operations of the Mission before the public, except the Annual Report of the Society, which was rarely ever seen by any but subscribers to the Mission. It is believed that there are abundance of materials to make an entertaining Magazine to a large circle of readers beyond the present members of the Society. In starting Mission Life, the editor intends giving sketches of the actual daily life of those engaged in the work, and by these means secure for the Mission a much wider sympathy.

John Bull says:

"Honestly speaking, this little publication is so different from the ordinary dry character of Missionary publications that we are certain all classes will hail its appearance. We trust the clergy will obtain for it a wide circulation."

The Churchman says:

"We are not much surprised that a Mission which has excited so deep an interest as that of the Universities should have decided to come before the public in a form more adapted to modern wants. We regard this publication as commencing a new era in Church Missionary literature."

Royal Cornwall Gazette says:

"It furnishes much information, is carefully edited, illustrated, and well written. It has our best wishes. Clergymen would do well to have a specimen, with a view to parochial circulation."

Drogheda Conservative says:

"All who feel an interest in the progress of Foreign Missions should become subscribers."

Edinburgh Courant says:

"Interesting papers are given recording the progress of the various Missions affording curious glimpses of African life."

The Literary Churchman says:

"We hope we may be able to induce many of our friends to give this new quarterly journal at least a year's trial. It is varied, interesting, and nicely got up and illustrated. It should be taken in for parochial club libraries, for the libraries of Local Church Institutes, and, in fact, wherever there is a chance of getting an intelligent interest taken in Missionary work."

"It is to the Messrs. NELSON that we are indebted for the introduction of this style of coloured printing—at least so far as toy books are concerned. The success which attended the introduction of this style of juvenile literature soon induced a number of persons to rush into the market, and copy Messrs. NELSON's idea, though there is not the shadow of an effort to improve upon it or introduce anything new in the effect or the style."—See Stationer and Fancy Trades' Register for January, 1866.

BOOKS FOR SALE.

UNDER this heading we purpose inserting such rare and curious books as Booksellers in one part of the country may find unsaleable in their own locality, but which those elsewhere may be glad to possess. Books overbought, or bought by mistake, may thus be disposed of, but it is not intended for common every-day publications, which may, or ought to be found, in every shop. Without any wish to act the part of censor, it will be the Editor's duty to see that legitimate use is made of this list, and that, as a general rule, only such books are admitted as are likely to be sold by means of this advertisement. The list from each Advertiser must not exceed three books, the titles of which should if possible be each compressed into one line. No charge will at present be made for the insertion.

TRADE AND LITERARY GOSSIP.

PATERNOSTER-ROW.—Another great change is about to take place in the appearance of Paternoster-row. The block of houses at the corner of the Row and Warwick-lane, long occupied by a wholesale druggist, together with the adjoining houses of Mr. Snow, Mr. Grattan, Messrs. Hamilton, and Mr. Sangster, are to come down. Messrs. Hamilton will remove to their magnificent new house as soon as finished, and Mr. Sangster has already fitted to Belle Sauvage-yard, opposite Messrs. Cassell's.

Messrs. Ward and Lock have vacated their premises, 158, Fleet street, and have removed to the house in Amen Corner, recently occupied by Messrs. Virtue Brothers and Co., and which in future is to be designated WARWICK HOUSE. Messrs. Virtue have concentrated their business in Ivy Lane.

It is reported that the proprietors of one of the oldest commission and publishing houses will shortly give up the former branch of business, and confine their attention to publishing, and to the sale of their own books.

TRADE CHANGES.—Mr. Holmes informs us that he has recently sold the old established business at the corner of the Seven Sisters' Road, Holloway, belonging to Mr. Oliver (and formerly Mr. Gyllenship), to Mr. Edward Cullum Smith, 6, Holloway Terrace, Holloway Road, who has amalgamated the two businesses, and will in future carry them on at 1, Bowman's Place, Holloway.—Also the wholesale business belonging to Mr. Digby, 90, Chancery-lane, to Mr. R. G. Rist, formerly of Kensington, and now of 49, Old Bailey (where the said business will in future be carried on).—Also Mrs. Bartlett's business (formerly Miss Gay's), Alexander Place, Brompton, to Mr. Meadows, Master of the National Schools, Brompton.—And Mrs. Aberdeen's business, 117, Mile End Road, to the Misses Webber, St. Peter's Road, Mile End.

BRIGHTON.—Mr. J. Toye has recently disposed of his business at 28, Upper St. James's Street. He is succeeded by his sister, Miss Toye.

OUR CENTENARY.—The next number of the BOOKSELLER will be its hundredth. It may then be considered of age, and will celebrate its majority by presenting itself in every portion of the world where a dealer in English books can be found. In other words, a copy will be sent to every English bookseller in India, China, Australia, the Cape, the European Continent, Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, Canada, the West Indies, and to all the most respectable booksellers in the United States.

UNDERSELLING.—The committee appointed at the general meeting of the trade have agreed upon a report embodying a series of recommendations, and have called a general meeting to be held in the large room of the Sunday School Union, Old Bailey, at 4 o'clock on Monday, 9th April. We hope the attendance will be numerous.

IS IT FAIR?—That is the question put to us respecting the following. A London publishing house, one of the most respectable in the trade, has lately offered some heavy books to certain booksellers at about one-third or one-fourth of the selling prices. They were not offered generally, and most members of the trade were unaware of the offer, neither was the selling or the trade price reduced; and any one sending for copies was charged at the full ordinary trade price. The practice is so novel that we think there must be a mistake somewhere, and therefore hesitate to answer the question asked.

LADIES' BOOK BOXES.—The naggiest, and at the same time the most useful presentation article we have seen for many a day, is a pretty little set of books for the use of ladies. They are contained in a handsome morocco case, 4½ in. by 3 in., secured by a massive but appropriate gilt clasp. The volumes are four in number, each tastefully bound in morocco, with gilt edges. They consist of a "Daily Journal," containing 128 ruled pages, a "Cash Book," a volume for "Personal Expenses," and lastly one in which to record "Visits" or register "Addresses," for which purpose it is indexed like a ledger. We have frequently been puzzled to know what little acceptable present we might make to a lady, but need be troubled no longer. This has also the additional advantage of being cheap, the retail price of books and case being but three half-crowns. The makers are Messrs. Johnson and Rowe, Warwick Square.

Messrs. Routledge announce a volume which will be looked forward to with interest. It is by Mr. William Jerdan, the original editor and proprietor of the Literary Gazette, a journal which in its palmy days exercised more influence in the literary world than any Athenæum or Saturday Review has done in more recent times. Mr. Jerdan, who has reached the patriarchal age of 85, has employed his leisure in the production of a volume of reminiscences under the title of "Men I have Known," full of personal sketches and lively anecdotes of poets, critics, statesmen, and others of a past generation.

AN UNKNOWN PEER.—The editor of Debrett will doubtless thank us for informing him that his peerage does not contain the name of "Lord de Gilmor," a person who like Mr. Becke, of Manchester, does not appear able to get all he wishes, and therefore favours booksellers and stationers with orders. "Lord de Gilmor's" present address is Douglas, Isle of Man.

ECCE HOMO.—This, the book of the season, made its appearance with scarcely an announcement, indeed we do not remember to have seen any advertisement until after it appeared. Yet it made its way into the hands of readers more quickly than a novel. Our first acquaintance with the fact of its publication arose from overhearing a conversation on the railway between two laymen who were discussing the style and matter, and wondering who the anonymous author could be. We now find a third edition announced in little more than a month, and on making enquiry are told that more than five thousand copies have already been sold. Naturally we and our readers too ask, what there is about the book that can have attracted so much attention and have created so great a demand. Reviewer-like, we look at the preface, and there learn what was the author's aim. "Those who feel dissatisfied with the current conceptions of Christ, if they cannot rest content without a definite opinion, may find it necessary to do what to persons not so dissatisfied it seems audacious and perilous to do. They may be obliged to reconsider the whole subject from the beginning, and placing themselves in imagination at the time, when he whom we call Christ bore no such name, but was simply a young man of promise, popular with those who knew him, and appearing to enjoy the Divine favour, to trace his biography from point to point, and accept those conclusions about him, not which Church doctors or even apostles have sealed with their authority, but which the facts themselves critically weighed appear to warrant." This, the author tells us, is what he set himself to do to satisfy his own mind, "because after reading a good many books he felt still constrained to confess that there was no historical character whose motions, objects, and feelings remained so incomprehensible to him." The work is, however, incomplete, all that the author attempts is to enquire into Christ's object in founding the society which is called by his name, and how it is adapted to attain that object. He then proceeds to discuss the various events in our Lord's life, expressing himself in a manner likely to awaken thought on the part of his reader; thus by the very form in which the first sentence is put, we are startled. He says, "The Christian Church sprang from a movement which was not begun by Christ." This startling statement arouses our attention, and awakens our suspicions; but as we read on we fall in with his views, and find nothing to disturb our orthodoxy. In the next chapter, on the temptation, we are told what ought to have occurred to every reader, but which, perhaps, never entered into the minds of nineteen out of twenty of the most studious, viz., that the incidents related are not described by eye witnesses, they may have been described by Christ himself to his followers; but we have no positive evidence that they were so related. This may appear a truism, but how few people ever thought of it for themselves? As the record of the temptation must have come from Christ himself, are we prepared to follow the natural sequence! "We should remember that the report of these temptations, if trustworthy, must have come through Christ Himself, and it may probably contain the facts mixed with His comments upon them." These remarks, gleaned from a hasty perusal of the first few pages, will account very satisfactorily for the remarkable success of the book. It is thoughtful in itself, and it sets thoughtful readers a-thinking. "Christ, as the creator of modern theology and religion," is to form the subject-matter of a second volume.

Mr. Brockhaus, of Leipzig, has just published a Schiller Bibliography, an unfinished work of his late partner, Mr. Paul Trömel, who died on the 1st January, 1863. This bibliography is compiled under the various years in which anything connected with Schiller appeared, from 1770 down to the time of Schiller's death, in 1805. Prefixed to the volume is an interesting memoir of the author, of whom Mr. Brockhaus says, "I feel it my duty to accompany the little work of my clever pupil and dear friend with a few remarks. I think I can answer for it that a great number of persons will peruse a short account of the well-spent but brief life of this gifted man with great pleasure." Mr. Brockhaus is quite correct in his surmise. we, and all others who had the pleasure of his acquaintance, feel grateful for this notice of the deceased. From the memoir we learn that Paul Frederick Trömel was born at Leipzig, in 1832, and was the second son of John F. A. Trömel, foreman of Mr. Brockhaus' printing-office, a man of considerable intelligence, who was the means of introducing many improvements into the business. In 1847 young Paul was apprenticed, and commenced his career in the commission branch of the house. Here he showed a more than common amount of intelligence, which made itself more observable when Mr. Brockhaus employed him in re-arranging his private library: especially did all works of a bibliographical character attract his attention; and from this time may be dated the bias of his mind towards the study which made him one of the first bibliographers of the day. Every spare moment was turned to account. "I observed his struggles with attention," says Mr. Brockhaus, "but had no idea how well and how industriously he spent his time after business hours, and was agreeably taken by surprise when he presented me with his first bibliographical work. I was convinced by that, that he had the right faculty for the revivification of our foreign business, together with the second-hand branch; and it was quite a pleasure to see with what readiness he grasped the proposed plan, and how quietly and sensibly he received the intimation that this plan would be gradually carried out under his supervision and management." As early as 1855 these departments were placed under Trömel's charge; but in order that he might better perform his duties he was permitted to visit England, France, Belgium, and Holland, besides taking an extensive tour through Germany. In Amsterdam he made the acquaintance of Mr. F. Müller, a learned bookseller and excellent bibliographer, from whom he purchased a large collection of books connected with the early history of America, the catalogue of which formed the staple of a 'Bibliothèque Americaine,' published in 1861, a work much sought after. Lung disease, which had previously carried off his father, early made its appearance, and in 1859 Trömel sought relief by relaxation from business, and in 1861 he took a second journey abroad, but only temporary relief was obtained. In recognition of his valuable services he was admitted partner in 1861, a promotion which was hailed with delight by his fellow clerks, who had long recognised his merit, but felt no envy. A short time only was he permitted to enjoy his well-earned position; disease again prostrated him, from which he rallied for a time, but on the 1st of January, 1863, fell a victim, alike regretted by his colleagues, his old associates, and a very numerous circle of friends.

AMERICAN COPYRIGHT.—The day is not far distant, we hope, when an American publisher about to put to press a new poem by Longfellow or by Bryant, or a novel of Miss Wetherell's, will be able to calculate with some degree of certainty upon the number of copies that will be required to supply the English-speaking portion of the world; each copy of such a work yielding its fair share of profit to author and to publisher. With pleasure do we therefore hail the attempt now being made by some honest and true-hearted Americans to move their own legislature to make terms with the English Government for an international treaty which shall secure to American authors some return for their intellectual labours. We can promise them that no difficulties will arise on this side the Atlantic. Let us come to a fair and equitable arrangement, securing to English authors a proper remuneration in America, and to American authors a similar remuneration for copies of their works sold in England or in the English possessions. The following petition has been presented to the American Senate by the Hon. Charles Sumner:—

To the Members of the Senate and the House of Representatives of the United States of America.

We, the undersigned, citizens of the United States, do most respectfully represent to your honourable bodies that the true interests of American literature demand the adoption of an International Copyright Law, by this Government and that of Great Britain, and do pray that you will enact such measure or measures as will secure at the earliest possible day the consideration of such a law by the two governments herein mentioned. And your petitioners will ever pray, etc.

Amongst the petitioners names are the following:

Many of the American publishers are against reciprocity; but we believe that all honourable and respectable men on both sides will join in the prayer. While we desire to promote a fair and just measure by every means in our power, we shall as firmly endeavour to upset every attempt to obtain any one-sided advantage; and we desire to obtain none for ourselves. All who desire to further the interests of literature, and to see right prevail, will wish God speed to our cousins in their present righteous attempt to move their own legislature.

MESSRS. DAY'S RECENT PUBLICATIONS.—Although the books now before us have been published some little time, we have not had an earlier opportunity of noticing them.

The great work of Messrs. Day is their reproduction of the first folio edition of Shakspeare in facsimile, by means of photo-lithography. Our readers are probably aware of the excessive rarity of the original—a perfect copy being worth we hardly like to say how many hundred pounds, and even at such a price being of rare occurrence. It is, therefore, out of the reach of all but the wealthiest classes, and is only to be found in a few public libraries, or in the collections of noblemen. A reprint of the work was attempted in 1807, but this was faulty in the extreme, no dependence whatever can be placed upon it, and for all purposes of reference it is useless. Another reprint, but in quarto, was completed last year by Mr. Booth; this, although as accurate as careful editing and press work could ensure correctness, was yet wanting in form. The present is, therefore, the only edition which can in every way compete with the original folio and supply its place. We ought to have mentioned that the edition of 1623 was the first collected edition of Shakspeare's plays, and contains all of which the authenticity is undisputed, except Pericles; and it contains the well-known portrait, which is perhaps the only well-authenticated portrait we possess. It remains for us now merely to mention the manner in which Messrs. Day have executed their work, under the immediate superintendence of Mr. Howard Staunton, from the best preserved copies, viz., those in the British Museum, and in the Library of Bridgewater House, copies which may indeed be called matchless. There is no preface, nor is there any extraneous matter whatever beyond the title page, all the rest of the volume is like that which Jaggard and Blount printed, and like that which Ben Jonson handled—ornaments, broken or battered letters, misprints and other defects, are here reproduced, blot for blot, batter for batter, error for error, and letter for letter, as the original left the printer's hands. It is a portly volume of nearly a thousand pages, printed on paper similar in colour to the original, and is handsomely bound in antique calf, neatly gilt, with gilt edges. The original editors quaintly say:—

“From the most able, to him that can but spell:
There you are number'd. We had rather you were weigh'd. Especially, when the fate of all Bookes depends vpon your capacities: and not of your heads alone, but of your purses. Well! It is now publike, and you wil stand for your priuiledges wee know: to read, and censure. Do so, but buy it first. That doth best commend a Booke, the Stationer saies. Theu, how odde souer your braines be, or your wisdomes, make your licence the same, and spare not. Iudge your sixe-pen'orth, your shillings worth, your fve shillings worth at a time, or higher, so you rise to the iust rates, and welcome. But, what euer you do, Buy.”

We can scarcely offer any better advice.

From the past we turn to a thing of the present. The Atlantic Telegraph, a handsome quarto volume, containing numerous coloured plates, with letterpress, written by the most popular narrator of current events, Dr. Russell, of Crimean, Indian, and American celebrity. In this we are presented with an interesting sketch of the first attempt to lay the cable in 1858, its success, and its failure; next we have an exhaustive, and in truth the only complete account of the progress made last year, until all the attempts to fish up the broken end of the cable failed, when no words could express the disappointment of those on board. “The cable gone! gone for ever down in that fearful depth; it was enough to move one to tears.” Apart from any special interest connected with the last cable itself, the volume may be considered a history of marine telegraphy, which we are surprised to find has been employed as many as fourteen years between Dover and Calais, and for twelve between London and Ostend. We were not till now aware that a cable, 368 miles in length, had been laid down in 1859 between England and Denmark, and is still in working order.

Of a different class altogether is The Prisoner of Chillon, one of the series of gorgeously illustrated volumes which have elevated the character of Messrs. Day from printers into artists, and this volume is perhaps the most artistic they have yet turned out. The artists, Messrs. Audsley, have studied the true contrasts, and harmonies of colour, so that we here have brilliancy combined with its proper foils, and the eye is offended by no violent transitions. Two subjects only are introduced, in the first the prisoner is discovered in the dungeon, bound to the pillar, and at the end is a view of Chillon.

GUSTAVE DORE.—Two parts of Messrs. Cassell's magnificent edition of the Bible with Doré's illustrations have appeared, produced, we believe, under the special direction of Mr. Galpin, who, in the selection and arrangement of the type, and in superintending the presswork, has succeeded in producing a book of which England may well be proud. When we first saw French impressions of the engravings, we feared justice would scarcely be done them in this country. Not that our Clays, Leveys, Clarks, and others, do not print woodcuts well, but because of the peculiar blackness and depth of Doré's style, and the kind of engraving necessary for his pencil being of a nature unusual to the English printer. But we were wrong. Messrs. Cassell's work is, if anything, superior to that of MM. Mame. The “Death of Abel” and the wonderful picture of the Deluge in Part I could not have been surpassed. Totally different is the style of the plate representing “Abraham and the Three Angels,” in Part 2. In this there is a delicacy of touch quite ethereal, contrasting strongly with the style of the “Death of Abel.” This Bible is the most remarkable conception of the present century. The publishers have very seasonably given a well-cut portrait of Doré in the April number of the Quiver, with a sketch of his life.

THE BOOKSELLER'S PROVIDENT INSTITUTION.—The Annual Report of this Institution has just been issued, but we fear that it cannot be considered satisfactory. In the first place we cannot understand the figures showing the amount of relief. In the second, but ten new members joined during the year, while six died and two were excluded, and of the ten eight joined as life members, two only apparently being of the class whose benefit was intended when the institution was founded. Money appears to be abundant, but the managers do do not seem to want members to join if they are likely to need assistance. We may be wrong in the supposition, but still such is our impression from a glance at the new report. We should state that the total amount of relief granted in the year was £1445 14s. 8d. The institution is a noble one, and we desire to see it prosper, but in order to prosper it must seek to be useful and encourage rather than repel the needy.

THE PRINTING TRADE.—The London Compositors have commenced an agitation for a higher scale of wages, and on the 28th inst. held a meeting at St. Martin's-hall, to determine upon some course of procedure in order to obtain a compliance with their demands. Looking at what the men ask we are disposed to think they have reason on their side. House-rent, clothing, and the numerous et ceteras on which a working man's wages are expended have largely increased of late years, although some things are cheaper. The men ask:—

"1.—That a rise of $\frac{1}{4}$ d. per 1000 on all descriptions of work (exclusive of Newspapers), and of $\frac{1}{4}$ d. per 1000 on Reprints be paid. [The following to be the definition of Reprints:—Works reprinted, free from alterations or interlineations, save a remodelling of punctuation or orthography, which shall be done, if at all, before giving out of copy to compositor.] 2.—That the minimum rate for Establishment Hands shall be 36s. per week of not more than 58 hours. 3.—That overtime be paid for at the rate of 8d. extra per hour after 8 o'clock in the evening, till 8 o'clock in the morning; but that no charge be made of less than 1s. extra between the hours of 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. 4.—That Sunday-work be paid for at the rate of 6d. per hour extra, but that in no case shall the compositor receive less than 2s. 6d. extra. 5. That no deduction be made for Pieced Leads in measures of less than 26 ems wide. 6.—That $\frac{1}{4}$ d. per 1000 extra be paid on all Founts for every en below 12 ems of their own bodies in thickness. 7.—That Corrections be paid for at the rate of $\frac{1}{4}$ d. per hour.

The committee of masters have refused to entertain propositions Nos. 1 and 7, but have expressed their willingness to confer with the men upon the other points, and as the men seem determined to try their utmost to obtain all, there may possibly be something in the form of a strike unless their demands be acceded to.

The rules of the trade were agreed upon as long ago as 1810, and have not been revised since 1847. At both those dates the state of the trade was very different to what it is now, and what suited 1810 is obsolete in 1866. Yet a number of barbarous and absurd rules then agreed upon hamper the trade, and constantly give rise to squabbles and disputes. Instead of the interests of master and men being one, both parties are antagonistic. The masters do all the best paying work on the Establishment, and the men who are paid piece-work get only the worst description, and they are constantly finding some flaw or other by which they may obtain extra payment, or, as they call it, "bits of fat." The masters seem interested in maintaining the present system, for, in reality, they are the only gainers. So dissatisfied are many publishers that they send much of their work away to Scotland and the provinces, where it is done equally well, and much cheaper. We would strongly recommend both masters and men to consider whether the time has not arrived for an entire revision of the rules—wipe out all the absurdities, and let a man obtain a fair day's wages for a fair day's work—let the man earn what he gets fairly, and do not drive him to shifts and evasions as at present. It may be urged that masters cannot give more than they do on account of contracts entered into; but surely this might be met, new prices need not be put in force till a certain date, say July 1 or October 1, and even then some compromise might be effected. We would also ask the men if they are not doing themselves an injury by fixing one rate of wages for day-work, thus placing the good hand and the bad on the same level. They had better leave individuals to make bargains with their masters, the best hands will always get good wages, and the bad hands be paid according to their deserts. With piece work, overtime and corrections, the case is different, and the prices might be fixed.

"THE LADY'S MILE."—We are informed that Messrs. Ward, Lock, & Tyler have acquired the right to publish all Miss Braddon's novels, and that "a uniform library edition, in volumes at 6s. each, and also a cheap edition at 2s., will be at once issued. Both editions will have the advantage of the author's latest revision." Messrs. Ward, Lock, and Tyler, will publish Miss Braddon's new novel, "The Lady's Mile," in 3 vols., which is now at press, and will appear shortly after Easter.

Mr. W. B. Kelly, of Dublin, announces a new edition of a book, which will have a large circulation just now when so much attention has been drawn to the subject of rebellion. "The Sham Squire," which he announces, refers to the Rebellion of 1798, and contains some revelations of the doings of the informers of those days.

Two cases of infringement of copyrights have been tried lately. In one case a maker of magic lantern slides copied some of the plates in an absurd volume of exaggerated drawings, called the "Hatchet Throwers." No injury was done the book; on the contrary, we are disposed to think with the defendant that he was helping to give publicity and promote the sale of the work; but the Vice-chancellor ruled that the plates were part of the book, and consequently were protected by the law of copyright. The plaintiff got no damages, but the defendant had to pay costs on both sides. In the second case, Mr. March, a publisher of toy books, brought an action in the county court against Mr. George Ingram, another printer and publisher, for £20, being the amount he was a loser by Ingram pirating a sheet of engravings called the "Magic Lantern," consisting of the Broken Bridge, Enraged Cobbler, and Billy Button. The plaintiff scarcely made good his claim to any originality beyond the drawing of the coarse blocks made use of in printing; but as he proved a falling-off in the sale of his publication in consequence of its being copied, he recovered £15 from the defendant. In this instance there was doubtless some damage to the plaintiff's property; but in the former there could have been none, and if the same rule were rigidly enforced, we hardly see how a country or weekly newspaper could exist, and if we felt so disposed we could, after every issue of the BOOKSELLER, bring twenty actions against as many publishers for transferring our paragraphs into their columns.

QUAKER BOOKS.—A curious bibliographical work is now in course of publication, of which the full title is "A Descriptive Catalogue of Friends' Books, or Books written by Members of the Society of Friends, commonly called Quakers, from their first Rise to the present Time; interspersed with Critical Remarks and occasional Biographical Notices, and including all Writings by Authors before joining, and by those after having left the Society, whether adverse or not. Compiled by Joseph Smith. London: printed for Joseph Smith, No. 2, Oxford-street, Whitechapel." Five one shilling parts have been issued, but the names go no further than "Baker," the most voluminous writer being "Anonymous." Some of the most curious titles belong to books published within the last fifty years.

The immortal Pickwick it seems after all owes his present well-known shape to Mr. Chapman, of Chapman and Hall, the original publishers. Seymour first sketched Pickwick as a tall, thin man, this being his conception of Mr. Dickens's hero, but afterwards altered his shape in conformity with Mr. Chapman's suggestion.

By an advertisement in this month's BOOKSELLER, it will be seen that a considerable number of the Trade are turning their attention from books to sewing machines, by which they get a good profit, on which there is no silly and uncalled for discount, and which the proprietors will not allow to be undersold. The Wanzer Company protect the interests of retailers in a manner which might be imitated by publishers.

Mr. J. M. Darton sends us three volumes. The first, "Mankind in Many Ages," by Madame Von Aldekop, is a Universal History, comprising all the leading events in the histories of all nations from the Creation to the present time. It is intended chiefly for the use of schools, for which it appears to be well adapted. The other two books are "Great Truths for Little People," a series of tales illustrative of obedience, truthfulness, honesty, kindness, perseverance, and piety, prettily told, and well illustrated, and forming excellent presentation volumes for the young.

For an elegant and attractive lot of little books suited for presentation commend us to the series just issued by Messrs. Johnstone and Hunter, of Edinburgh, nine eighteenpenny volumes, bound in cloth, with gilt edges. Some of the books, in another shape, we have reason to know, are immense favourites with the young, and if those which now for the first time make their appearance are as good as the others we can predict a long run of success for the whole. The same publishers also issue a cheap neatly printed edition of Newton's Cardiphonia, and an elegant little volume of the Children's Home Series—"Miss Matty; or, Our Youngest Passenger, and other Tales."

As usual Messrs. Warne and Co. mix the useful with their more ornamental publications, the useful on this occasion being represented by a "Model Ready Reckoner," containing "the greatest number of calculations ever given in a book of its size and price," a statement that is no doubt true, for it contains a good deal more than a mere ready reckoner. The ornamental is represented by a beautifully executed series of illuminated texts, printed in colours by Kronheim, complete in themselves, or capable of further enrichment and illumination. We made use of the term "ornamental" somewhat unadvisedly; these are more than that, they tend to educate and elevate taste by familiarising the eyes of the young to the true and the beautiful: on other grounds too, we cannot too widely help in the circulation and publicity of such texts as, God is Love—Thou God seest me—Love your Enemies, and Overcome Evil with Good. Another work, "The Language and Sentiment of Flowers," of which the publishers say, "This edition has been completely revised from the best authorities. In addition it contains numerous fresh examples of the language of flowers, as well as the legends which belong to the old favourites of the greenwood and the garden, with descriptive poetry of the sentiments. The coloured illustrations are from original designs produced expressly for this edition," and very pretty they are; the letter-press too is nicely printed by Whittingham.

HUNTINGDON.—Mr. Andrew Page Wood, after a respectable and successful career of about forty years as a Bookseller and Printer in this town, has just retired in favour of his son, Mr. Alfred Wood. The valuation was made by Mr. Gray, of Croydon.

Mr. Southgate, the Book Auctioneer of Fleet Street, is about removing to No. 143, Strand.

Messrs. Hamilton, Adams, & Co., have just issued a new edition of Mr. T. S. Arthur's "Orange Blossoms," a gift-book "for all who have worn, are wearing, or are likely to wear" specimens of those interesting flowers. The elegant "get-up" of this choice volume in all respects of printing, paper, and binding, would somewhat astonish the simple-minded American author could he see it. The book itself is too great a favourite to require fresh commendation.

Mr. Spurgeon has entered the field as a competitor of Bogatsky, Smith, Jay, and Hawker, in a volume entitled, "Morning by Morning," of which those who like the author will speak well. Others will speak slightly of his labours.

Mr. Disraeli it will be observed has again changed his publishers. Messrs. Warne & Co. will in future bring out his novels.

Under the section of publications for the month devoted to Politics and Questions of the Day will be found a list of works on "Reform."

The Second Section of Messrs. Fullarton's "Imperial Gazetteer of England and Wales," has just been published. It is a work which will be much in request by M.P.'s, and all who are interested in the boundaries of political division, as it is the only work which contains recent information respecting every parish, town, and hamlet in the kingdom.

Our young friends will be delighted to hear that Messrs. Nelson have brought out another shilling toy-book. One of that charming series which they were the first to originate and in which they still maintain the lead. This is by Alfred Crowquill, and gives the story of the "Pig in its Cradle," "Puss and her Kits," and other delectable nursery rhymes.

Mr. Tegg is publishing a series of little books which will before long make quite a Standard Library. The recent additions are "The Robin Hood Ballads," with illustrations on wood, a life containing all the known particulars of the outlaw, and some traditions respecting him, by Mr. Jno. Hicklin, with Mr. J. M. Gutch's annotations,—also what the title omits to say, Ritson's notes likewise. A second volume contains the "Beauties of Washington Irving." As a general rule we do not like "beauties" but Irving has more bits of detached beauty than most writers, and well deserves quoting. Mr. Tegg has also published an addition to his well-known "Parley Library," Tales about Europe, and the other portions of the globe.

Engineering Facts and Figures for 1865 (Fullarton) is, as its title describes it, an Annual Register of Progress in Mechanical Engineering and Construction, and is edited by Mr. Andrew Betts Brown. The improvements and progress registered are chiefly those connected with steam-engines, boilers, fuel, furnaces, and smoke consumption: under this last head, there appear to be plenty of contrivances; and such being the case, we may hope before long to see London as clean as Paris, and as free from blacks and soot. The various attempts at obtaining motive power other than steam are enumerated, as also numerous improvements in tools and other mechanical appliances. The most interesting portion of the volume is that which relates to armour plated ships, and this section unfortunately is not so complete as some of the others. Besides those subjects already enumerated, there are records of the Atlantic Telegraph, the preservation of stone, on roofings and reservoirs, and lastly, on agricultural machinery.

The Cambridge Prayer Book Interleaved (Rivingtons, 7s. 6d.)—It is difficult to convey to our readers anything like a synopsis of the contents of this unassuming pocket volume; but we think we are correct in saying that it contains more real information respecting the Book of Common Prayer, its history, genealogy, and relationships, than any other volume of any size whatever, published within the last ten years. As its title implies, the ordinary Book of Common Prayer is given: this is printed on the right hand page. On the left hand, or opposite page, we have the history, origin, and derivation of the passages, offices, or service. In making these notes, the editors felt that they had no spare room, and, therefore, crammed all they had to say into the smallest possible compass. All is to the purpose, not a word that could be omitted is printed, but the authorities made use of are named; in short, the volume contains the substance of the ritualistic works of Bingham, Palmer, Stephens, Keeling, Freeman, Procter, Brett, and Cardwell. The editors are the Rev. W. M. Campion and the Rev. W. J. Beamont; the Bishop of Ely contributing a preface. The Acts of Uniformity, also the recent Act on Clerical Subscription and the Latin Articles, are given.

Hardwicke's Shilling Peerage, Baronetage, and House of Commons, all edited by Mr. Edward Walford, have just made their appearance. Of these, the House of Commons is at present the most interesting, in consequence of the recent general election. A short but comprehensive memoir of each member is given, together with the population and number of electors.

Lays of the Pious Minstrels, arranged by Henry Wright. (Houlston and Wright, 3s. 6d.)—The compiler of this attractive little volume is one of the publishers, and in its compilation has exhibited a rare combination of sound judgment and elegant, but at the same time highly discriminative, taste. The compilation and editing a volume of religious poetry seems at first sight to be a very easy task; but in reality it is not so. First, the work has been frequently before attempted, with more or less success, and nearly every compiler has admitted the same pieces, each one taking from his predecessor, frequently only altering the arrangement, or at most, tinkering lines or verses to suit his own taste. Next, there was the difficulty of making the volume attractive to any but inveterate psalm singers, and consequently repulsive to others. Mr. Wright has, however, succeeded in bringing together many pieces of great merit, which are almost entirely unknown; amongst these imperfectly known pieces are some by Miss Mary Pyper, an old Edinburgh lady, totally blind, and in great poverty, but whose songs are equal to any in the language. Some of the other names are also unfamiliar,—T. Westwood, C. Sellon, Robert Newstead, Georgiana Bennett, and C. L. Ford, all writers of no mean merit. More than ten thousand copies of the volume have already been sold, we yet believe that there are as many more persons still remaining who will be glad to possess Mr. Wright's volume.

The Boys' Book of Trades (Routledge) contains some of the best woodcut illustrations we have seen used for a long time, and, what is more, the book is positively full of them. The Boys' Book of Trades is a little industrial cyclopædia, telling us how bricklayers, masons, carpenters, blacksmiths and fifty other mechanics use their tools and ply their daily avocations. The book is lucidly written, and will be highly prized by all boys of an inquiring mind.

Messrs. Bell and Daldy we hear are leaving their well-known house in Fleet Street, in order to concentrate their business in the premises about to be vacated by Mr. Bohn, in York Street, Covent Garden. They have already secured a large number of Mr. Bohn's publications, in addition to the "Standard" and other libraries, and their recent list contain some interesting works which they are preparing to publish. Amongst them are:—A New thoroughly Revised Reprint of "The Aldine Edition" of the British Poets. A Handsome Large Crown 8vo. "Library Edition" of Washington Irving's Works. Foster's (John) Miscellaneous Works: including his Essay on Doddridge. Rennie's Insect Architecture: a New Illustrated Edition, with numerous additions and corrections, by the Rev. J. G. Wood. Bishop Pearson, on the Creed: a New Edition, with Notes. A Complete Collection of Synonyms and Autonyms, by the Ven. C. J. Smith. Ralph Waldo Emerson's Complete Works. A New Edition of Dr. Roget's Bridge-water Treatise. Knight's Knowledge is Power. The Works of Josephus: Edited by the Rev. T. G. Bonney. The Passing Bell and other Poems, by the Rev. Dr. Monsell. A Hand Book of Classical Archaeology, by H. M. Westropp. Lives of the Seven Bishops, by Agnes Strickland: and, The Ethics of Literature, by Thomas Purnell. They have also become possessors of the Penny Cyclopædia, with both supplements, which they offer at a very moderate price to the trade.

Messrs. Routledge have added Gil Blas to their three-and-sixpenny series of books.

Clarke's standard "Introduction to Heraldry" forms the new volume of Bohn's Scientific Library. It has undergone a thorough revision at the hands of "Rouge Croix," Mr. J. R. Planché.

OBITUARIES.

March 4. At Bournemouth, aged 84, Mr. John Sydenham, formerly of Poole, Dorset, one of the oldest members of the trade in the Southern Counties. He was born at Honiton, Devon, in February 1782, and at the age of 13 was adopted by an uncle, Mr. Joseph Moore, who had, in 1765, established a Bookselling and Stationery business at Poole. From Mr. Moore's death, in 1820, the business was successfully carried on by his two nephews, under the firm of Moore and Sydenham, until the death of the second Mr. Moore in 1832. Mr. Sydenham then carried it on until 1849, when he was succeeded by his youngest son, Richard, who still has the business, which can now boast of having been in the same family more than a century. In 1840 he established a library and stationery business at that rapidly rising watering-place, Bournemouth, which was then in its infancy, there being but about a dozen houses built in the place. The establishment, which has kept pace with the times, has for some years been conducted by his two daughters, and is one of the most complete of the kind at any of our watering-places. Mr. Sydenham's eldest surviving son is in business as a stationer and account-book manufacturer in the Edgeware-road.

March 22. At St. Andrew's Villa, Croydon, aged 82, Mr. Ebenezer Palmer, late of 18, Pater-noster Row.

March 25, at his residence, Stoke Newington, aged 28, Mr. John Young Moffat, the confidential friend and assistant of Messrs. A. Strahan & Co., publishers, Strand, and formerly with Mr. Menzies, publisher, Edinburgh.

THE LATE JOHN Y. MOFFAT.

FOR many readers of THE BOOKSELLER the announcement that John Y. Moffat died last Sunday morning as the church bells were beginning to ring, may have little or no interest. But other readers again, and not a few, will pause as they con the words, and say to themselves, "There has gone from among us one of the kindest hearts, one of the wisest heads, one of the uprightest, most promising of young men."

No bookseller in Edinburgh, and hardly any bookseller in Scotland, but was familiar with the name of John Moffat. From 1850 to 1852, he was in the employment of Mr. Menzies, Hanover-street; and though he was but a mere youth for the greater part of this time, yet, by the sheer force of his gentle character, his intelligence, his obligingness, his brightness, his appreciativeness, he became the friend of all, and was consulted alike by the veteran bibliophile, and by the young widow struggling to eke out a livelihood by the sale of penny journals. Yes, everyone in the book trade in Edinburgh knew "Moffat;" every one brightened at his approach, every one felt that somehow he was dear to them. From 1862 to his death, he was the fellow-worker of Messrs. Strahan and Co., Ludgate Hill, and both Mr. Strahan and Mr. Isbister feel that they have not only lost a most valuable assistant, but a very true friend.

Dying as he did at twenty-eight, and having experienced but indifferent health for some years, no one can be surprised that Mr. Moffat did not do much, or perhaps anything at all even, to change the current of his beloved book-trade, either in one direction or another. Indeed he would have been the last to resent the imputation that he had even got beyond the state of knowing what he wished to do. As for knowing what one can actually do, that is only got in the course of years, and after the payment of many premiums to experience. It was not for what he did, then, but for what he was, that Mr. Moffat was so beloved. And as many were deeply interested in his holy life, we are sure they will be thankful to learn that his death was equally holy. His sick chamber for the last month was as a very outer court of heaven. "Praise to God for His unspeakable goodness, His long-suffering, His tender mercy!"—this was the one theme of his discourse day and night, so long as he was able to speak. And when his voice was no longer audible, he then signalled those around him to sing psalms. But the peaceful frame of mind in which he left the world will be better shown by the following note addressed by him to a friend a few days before he died, than by anything else that could be said. He thus wrote:—

"MY DEAR—,—Yours last evening received, read, treasured. Take my gratitude in trust, as I cannot give it expression.

"My prayer is, the Lord be ever with you and bless you, and prosper you. You have done much to make my way-going easy. I feel very much at rest.

"God is very gracious and of great mercy. I have a humble but clear faith that the Lord Jesus has taken away all my sins, and will receive me to himself.

"It is a cheering thought to me that the lapse of years will bring a renewal of our friendship,—

'A friendship such as has mastered time.

Which masters time indeed, and is Eternal, separate from fears :
The all-assuming months and years
Can take no part away from this.'

"The Lord grant you many years to carry out your cherished enterprises.

"I have given your letter to mother as a keepsake. Her heart is 'filled.'

"I hope to see you soon; and as I am on my back, will not try more at present.—Ever and ever thine,

"J. Y. MOFFAT."

And if anything more is demanded by natural or sacred curiosity as to the manner of this good man's departure, it is well supplied by the following extract from a note written by his much-respected friend Professor Plumptre, on the evening before his death:—

"I saw Moffat this morning. The shadow of death is falling on him—voice hardly audible, eyes glazing, hands cold: but through all there is, in a degree which I have seldom seen equalled, and never, I think, surpassed, a calm steadfastness of faith, which makes one feel that through the shadow he sees the eternal day. 'May my last end be like his.'"

In a most touching address, over his open grave, Dr. Raleigh said, "There is here committed to the earth one whom it would be difficult to match in all the qualities that go to make up a son, a brother, and Christian man." The words are memorable, and we hope to see them soon engraved on a tombstone erected by the loving regard of a large circle of friends, and especially the young men in the book trade.

This was the end of John Moffat, and yet not the end, for his influence and example will long live and rule among those who were privileged to come into close contact with him.

CORRESPONDENCE.

ENGLISH BOOKS IN AMERICA.

To the Editor of the Bookseller.

DEAR SIR,—At the risk of being put down for a bore, I ask you to give me a little of your space again. Not for any words of mine, however, so much as for some documents received from America, which I think will be of interest to the English Bookselling trade generally, as showing the progress of Transatlantic opinion in the matter of an international copyright, and in the matter of justice to English shippers of books to America.

First, let me ask you to give place to Messrs. Harper's reply to my letter published in your February No. I would say nothing by way of introduction, except this, that I directly charged Messrs. Harper with publishing an untrue statement, which was very injurious to me, although very serviceable to their own ends. I used these words: "Messrs. Harper, while preparing a document, with the view of influencing the Revenue Commission, either never inquired for facts, or misstated the facts when they got them. They are welcome to whichever position they think the less unpleasant." Well, this is their reply, published in their weekly paper for March 10:—

"ENGLISH AND AMERICAN BOOKS.

"Messrs. Strahan of London, whose exports of books to this country were arrested at the New York Custom-house, for apparent under-valuation of invoices, are naturally angry at the interference with their very pleasant and very profitable business, and, being angry, are naturally indiscreet. The practical discrimination in favour of the foreign producer which at present exists, under the heavy accumulation of excise dues and the light ad valorem duties, encourages them in the belief that the American market is at the mercy of the London publisher. Serenely confident in this advantage given them by the much lower wages of their workmen, they boastfully predict, in a letter published in the London BOOKSELLER, of January 31, 'Americans may ignore all the teachings of economic science, and may refuse to believe that Cobden and Bright ever lived; but this must happen nevertheless, that the useless employment of men in the manufacture of books that are already manufactured will cease, and that there will no more be an English and American edition of the same book than there are just now an English and Irish, a French and Belgian, or a Prussian and Austrian.'

"Besides being very petulant Messrs. Strahan and Co. are, as we have said above, very indiscreet. The lesson they have received has led them to examine the United States Custom Laws, and they boast that if one of their games can be stopped they can still play another unchecked. They have found that, under the law, if they export as manufacturers to their New York agent they are bound to invoice their books at the 'actual market value thereof at the time and place when and where the same were manufactured,' but that if their books undergo an intermediate sale they can be invoiced by the buyer 'at the actual cost thereof.' This opens a new door to them, and they thus cheerfully point out to their brother publishers the mode by which they propose to make America the literary Ireland of England: 'Can we not make the question one of "actual cost" instead of "market value?" The New York house of Strahan and Co. (which, by the way, has interests separate from ours) can cease dealing with us and order their goods from an export house in London, to whom we can sell for one-eighth per cent. profit, and who on their part can sell for the same. This is quite according to the statute, and if the New York publishers will insist on our playing at business we may have no objection to do so.'

"We admit that all this is perfectly feasible, and further, that men who boast that they will commit two fictitious sales to bolster up an invoice of this kind are just as likely to make those sales, nominally, at twenty per cent. loss each as at one-eighth of one per cent. profit, and thus deplete the revenue still more. Messrs. Strahan and Co. have our thanks for the openness with which they avow their design of reducing us to literary bondage and the means by which they hope to effect it. We trust the confession will not be without weight with our legislators when they come to revise the tariff."

No retraction here, no apology for the perversion of truth, no regret expressed for the injury done to one at whose hands they have never received even a slight of any kind. Instead of this there are the little paltry insinuations, that I am petulant and angry, because of the interference with my "very pleasant and very profitable business." No, I am nothing of the kind. I rather think Messrs. Harper know that they and some others succeeded at the very beginning in making my business in America very unpleasant and very unprofitable. If they do not know, yet them have the satisfaction of knowing now.

Angry because my business has been interfered with! Never. But I do plead guilty to being indignant at what I advisedly call the tergiversations and moral perversions of Messrs. Harper. I am indignant at men setting themselves up for censors, who can by any stretch of conscience think it right to do this—to apply to a London publishing house for stereotype plates, and request to be supplied with two invoices for the same; one to be at the full price for their own use, and the other to be at bare metal price for the custom-house use. I refuse to be judged by such a multiplication-table standard. And I trust, the American trade will at once acquit me of the terrible crime of plotting to "make America the literary Ireland of England" (whatever that may mean) or of doing anything more than seeking to extend the sale of my publications in America—a lawful enough proceeding, according to the American statutes, and perhaps a laudable one too, Messrs. Harper's opinion to the contrary, notwithstanding.

Next let me ask you to report the rise of a most mesmerizing movement in favour of an International Copyright Law. The text of the petition presented to Congress, and also the names of the petitioners will probably appear in your columns, but the following is the commentary of the Round Table upon the proceeding. Whether this movement is the result of recent high-handed proceedings, or merely follows them, must be known pretty well to Messrs. Harper, whose "vaulting ambition," I fear, "hath over-reached itself, and fallen on t'other side."

"The response to the petition for an international copyright law, which was issued from this office barely two weeks since, is highly creditable to American writers and publishers. The list given, which embraces but a very small portion of the signatures to the petition, includes many of the most distinguished names in our literature of the present day. There has not sufficient time elapsed to hear from all whose attention has been called to the matter, but it is very plain that the need of an international copyright law is acknowledged by those who are best qualified to judge of its value. It is possible that a few publishers will decline to give the project their support on the ground that their purses would suffer if they should be prevented from reprinting English books without any cost beyond that of paper, printing, and binding. The public shall, of course, learn who these gentlemen are, if there should be any such.

"We need only reiterate what was stated in these columns last week—that we have taken hold of this matter with a determination to see whether an American Congress will do justice to the true interests of American literature. If it will, now is the time for action; if it will not, the sooner that fact is known the better. The subject has already been brought before Congress, and prompt action upon it will be urged by every honourable means.

"Just at this time, when the cause of letters in this country is receiving an impulse that is unparalleled in our history, it is peculiarly important that should there be such a law as that which this petition urges. The interests of our authors and publishers should be protected, not by a high tariff—for that would injure the very persons it is intended to benefit—but by a law which will give every author and every publisher some return from the sale of their books in other countries as well as their own. Nor should the general public consider itself as without interest in this matter. Every intelligent American ought to cherish an honourable pride in our national literature and be ready to support any and all measures tending to encourage it. And there is no one thing that will do so much for the cause of letters in the United States as a well-devised international copyright law. Shall we not have it? Let Congress answer this question."

The following extracts, too, from a letter published in The Cincinnati Commercial of Feb. 27, and signed R. C., are a hopeful sign of the times. Who R. C. is I do not know, but he has my thanks.

"The writer in 'Harper's Weekly' bases his arguments on the importation of a single periodical, 'The Sunday Magazine,' published by Strahan & Co., London, and sent out to their agents in New York in large quantities. He represents that this magazine, which is retailed in England at sixpence, is entered for duty at three farthings a copy, and consequently, adding the twenty-five per cent. duty and other expenses, costs the agent a little less than two cents; that it retails here for twenty-five cents, thus affording an enormous profit to the publishers. This statement, however, is all wrong. The magazine is, I am informed, imported in sheets, and is stitched and covered in New York. Each sheet is entered at three farthings, the plates, usually four, and the covers are entered separately. Each number has seventy-two pages. I do not know, but I presume it is in three sheets, and with the cover and plates we may safely take the whole as four sheets. Now, taking his calculation as correct, and we may be sure it is not understated, it would cost, unstitched, eight cents; this, too, is in gold; taking that at 140 we will find the cost to be over eleven cents. in sheets, or say twelve cents when folded, covered, and ready for delivery. The agent does not 'sell the magazine at twenty-five cents,' that being the retail price, but at about fifteen cents, more or less, according to the number of copies taken at a time."

The writer goes on to say—

"Abstruse statements, however, are of very little use in forming a judgment of the comparative effects of 'taxes' and 'tariff' on the publishing trade. 'The proof of the pudding is in the eating of it.' Let us look at what the effects actually are by a comparison of prices of imported books and their reprints. The houses of D. Appleton & Co. and Scribner & Co., New York, and J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia, import largely of English books, and by comparing their prices of their imported stock with the English price, we find that such works are sold by them at the rate of fifty cents to the English shilling; in some cases a little over that, and in some under. Fifty cents, however, is the ruling rate with all importers; it is less only in cases where the importers have received an extra discount by taking a large number of copies. Let us apply this to a few works which have lately been republished, and see how far the original edition can compete with the reprint:

		Rep't.
Lacey's History of Rationalism	25s..	$12 50 5 00
Livingston's Zambesi		10 50 5 00
Curlye's Frederick, per vol. 20s		10 00 2 00
Mill's Comte's Positivism, 6s		3 00 1 25
Earl of Derby's Homer, 24s		12 00 5 00
Rustin's Ethics of Dust, 5s		2 50 1 25
Lyell's Elements of Geology, 18s		9 00 5 00
Tyndall on Heat, 12s. 6d.		6 25 2 50

"Any number of other examples might be given taken at random. The above are selected because in nearly every case the reprint is fully equal to the original edition, in style and workmanship.

"A few enterprising English houses, not a dozen of them in all, have established agencies in the Eastern cities, principally publishers of cheap, popular books, and it is against these houses that the effort is directed, by bringing every possible influence to bear on Congress to increase the present duty on books, which is twenty-five per cent. ad valorem, by adding thereto twenty-five cents per pound weight, all payable in gold, of course. . . . These houses have been obliged to put their prices low, though seldom as low as the reprints, in order to make sales at all, trusting to the superior typography of their copies, and the prejudices of old country people, for their share of patronage. These agencies have never paid well. One of the agents (Nelson & Co.'s), advertised some time ago, that in order to compete with the re-printers of their works, he was making arrangements to have the books of their house printed and bound in this country. This does not look as though the 'manufacture of books here will cease,' and 'three-fourths of our printers will be out of employment.' Instead of this, the fact is, as any one connected with the trade knows, that such is the activity and prosperity of the book trade now, even under the enormous revenue tax, that it is next to impossible to procure printers and binders enough, even at the present high rates of wages, to produce books fast enough to supply the demand.

"In the case of the American reprint of foreign works, I think I have shown by the examples given above that at the present rates of 'taxes' and 'duties,' the original edition does not compete with the reprint, and indeed, under present circumstances can not so compete. A few agencies of British houses do scratch a living in this country, and it is to put them down that this increase of duties is proposed. There are no statistics by which I can ascertain the amount of their importation, but I think I am perfectly safe in saying that, taken altogether, they do not amount to one-fifth of the entire book importations. I believe that the existence of these agencies among us is a public benefit, from the high character of the books which they disseminate, and yet to crush them out for the benefit of a dozen wealthy publishing houses, we are asked to deal a deadly blow at all the scientific, literary and educational interests of the country, by virtually prohibiting the importation of the book-treasures of the olden countries by rendering them so expensive as to place them beyond the means of our literary and professional men and general readers. The great majority of books imported are those which are not and never will be reprinted here, for the demand for each particular book would not warrant any publisher to make the investment, but it is necessary for the advancement of the arts, of science, learning and education, that our people should be able to import such works at reasonable prices. The present rates are high and hinder many from purchasing works of which there is nothing which supplies the want here, and of which they feel the great need in the prosecution of their studies.

"How ridiculous it seems, too, to charge duties on books by weight; many a three-shilling book weighs as much as a three-guinea book. This distinction is made, however, for the express purpose of keeping out all cheap books."

And just one other bit of consolation to Messrs. Harper and Messrs. Appleton, and I am done. It is from The Nation of March 1, and I do not know where to go for a higher authority:—

"Let any one now go into Christern's or Appleton's or Scribner's, and look at the mass of books which lie on their tables or figure in their foreign catalogues every month, of history, criticism, metaphysics, philology, ethnology, jurisprudence, travels, natural philosophy, political economy—most of them the product of years of labour, and that the labour, in a very large number of cases, of the most gifted and highly cultivated minds in the world. Let him compare all this mountain of reasoning and research with what we have to show in the same fields, and then ask himself who is to blame if American literature does not occupy a larger share of the attention of American critics.

"But does foreign literature occupy the attention of the American people in the ratio of the value of that literature? Yes, it does. Nearly all the great European works of the day are reprinted here—one hundred and fifteen during the six months ending December 31, 1865. Nearly all the books of any permanent value which American publishers produced during the last two years, on history, on metaphysics, on physical science, on jurisprudence, and political economy, have been works of foreign authors. The large importing bookstores here are filled with foreign books—French, German, and English—which are sold and renewed constantly; books of a kind that never have been written here—books on art, on philosophy, on science. The call for such literature is very great, and rapidly increasing. And not only foreign books are largely read and reprinted, but foreign journals are reprinted here. Four English reviews and one monthly are reprinted bodily, some of them having a much greater circulation here than at home. Three or four other magazines are published simultaneously both here and in England. At least four periodicals are avowedly made up entirely of articles from English journals, and the rest of our journals, from 'Harper's Monthly' down, are in a great part filled with English articles for which no credit is given. In fact, the reading matter of this country is almost entirely foreign. This, we admit, is an unfortunate state of things; we deplore it as much as anybody, more than most people, for were the taste for home literature more widely diffused, journals like The Nation would be all the better for it. We do not mean that we deplore the existence of the love of good books, no matter where they come from—that we consider eminently healthy; but we deplore the fact that American writers, as a body, are not able to do more towards satisfying the wants of their own countrymen. We trust they will never completely satisfy them, because we think the Chinese are not good models in literature any more than in art—and a determination on the part of any people to draw its mental food from only one quarter would, sooner or later, produce a Chinese type of civilization."

I hope I will not have to trouble you again on this vexed question.

Yours very truly,

ALEXANDER STRAHAN.

MR. BEETON'S PERIODICALS.

To the Editor of the BOOKSELLER.

SIR,—Perhaps Mr. Beeton will in your columns give a reason for his extraordinary practice in omitting to date his monthly publications. The trouble he occasions to the retail bookseller is very great, and is vexatious, because no reason can be assigned for it.

Here is a number of the "Englishwoman's Domestic Magazine;" its wrapper calls it "No. 70 Vol. XI.; New Series, Vol. II., No. 2." Now who is to say what month and what year this belongs to?

Again, here is No. 26 of Vol. III. of the "Boy's Monthly," and again what year and what month is it?

These, as well as all other such serials, are advertised, ordered, and invoiced by date; and it is not only inconsistent, but vexatiously inconvenient, that no date appears on the cover.

Yours obediently,

A COUNTRY BOOKSELLER.

BOND'S MARKING INK.

To the Editor of the BOOKSELLER.

SIR,—I keep Bond's Marking Ink on sale. A few weeks ago I opened nearly two doz. Sixpenny bottles, and not one contained a drop of ink. I wrote to the address printed on the label, 137, St. John's Road, Hoxton, and in reply received my own letter back without note or comment. I then asked the wholesale dealer from whom I bought them; he wrote and says he can get no reply. Perhaps your publication of this will bring an answer.

I am, yours truly,

Penistone, March 6, 1866.

JOHN WOOD.

THE BOOKSELLERS' PROVIDENT INSTITUTION.

To the Editor of the BOOKSELLER.

DEAR SIR,—The Report of the Board of Directors, for the year 1865, of the Booksellers' Provident Institution, has recently been issued, and I beg to direct special attention to paragraphs 6 and 7, wherein reference is made to the directors having appointed a committee, selected from the "Board of Directors," "to revise the existing Rules, so as to adapt them where necessary to the present position and requirements of the Institution."

I desire to ask one question. By what authority have the directors taken upon themselves such a responsibility?

If the "Rules" justified such a course, I had been silent: they do not. It is perfectly clear that Rule 57, "Alteration of Rules," premises that a "General Meeting" shall first be held ere any "alterations and repeal" can be made (vide pages 33, 34).

Without unduly trespassing upon your space further, allow me to express my own conviction as to the course taken by the directors.

1st. The directors had no warrant to assume a responsibility not recognised by the Rules of the Institution.

2nd. A General Meeting of the members of the Institution should a priori have been convened, and a sub-committee of members, not of directors exclusively, appointed.

3rd. Because the same power to which the directors owe their seats, is the only power to sanction any alteration in the Rules.

The "proposed alterations" to be "in ample time prior to such General Meeting," may be perfect in their way; but, if the directors of our public institutions are permitted to exercise undisputed control, the individual convictions of members are at once ignored.

Yours truly,

16th March.

LADY AUDLEY'S SECRET.

N.B.—The publishers feel an especial gratification in announcing a cheap, well printed and uniform Edition of Miss Braddon's Novels. It is probable that no work of fiction ever attained so immediate, or so universal a success, as did "Lady Audley's Secret." Translated into every language that possesses a literature, and equally popular in all countries, "Lady Audley's Secret" has achieved an amount of distinction never before so promptly accorded to any Novel. "Lady Audley's Secret" is, therefore, selected by the publishers as the first of Miss Braddon's Novels to be issued at a price, and in a style, that must attract the most economic, and cannot fail to satisfy the most fastidious.

Opinion of "The Times" on "Lady Audley's Secret."

"One of the most appropriate and acceptable gift-books which could be offered or received."—Times.
"Of all Dr. Cumming's works we think this should bear the palm. For family reading nothing could be better. The volume is not a book of sermons, nor is it a commentary on the Gospels. It is a biography, in which we have presented for our study life-like glimpses of that Divine One, whose character has been beautifully defined as 'glory set in grace' and 'whom to know is everlasting life.' The illustrations and general 'getting up' of the book we have seldom seen equalled."—Our Own Fireside.

INTERESTING & AMUSING STORIES

BY

EMINENT AUTHORS.

VOLUME I. WILL APPEAR ON JUNE 1, 1866;

In announcing

NIMMO'S POPULAR TALES,

RAILWAY, SEASIDE, AND GENERAL READING,

A collection of interesting and amusing Stories. Each Volume will contain from Eight to Twelve Stories, by Authors of experience, and will be complete in itself.

The Publisher is of opinion that there are many readers who, during a leisure hour, short railway or steamboat trip, or passing opportunity, hesitate to take up a novel or tale of the usual dimensions, while they would welcome a volume of short and popularly-written stories such as it is now intended to publish; and it is with a view to provide for this class that he has been induced to issue the Popular Tales. The Stories appearing in Nimmo's Popular Tales will be original, or taken from sources at the Publisher's command; and the selection will include Tales of all Countries. It will be the object of the Editor to render the contents of each Volume as diversified as possible.

It has self-acting, damping, and inking apparatus, as well as a mechanical arrangement by means of which it can be converted into a first-class Typographic Machine for the finest work. An invaluable Machine for Home or Colonial Printers. Speed from 700 to 1,000 per hour.

CONISBEE'S "IMPROVED MAIN" PATENT TYPOGRAPHIC MACHINE,

To which Honourable Mention was awarded at the late Exhibition, is the best Single Cylinder Machine for general purposes ever invented, and has obtained the largest sale (528 Machines having been sold up to this date). It is adapted for all kinds of work, from a Circular to a Newspaper. Speed from 1,000 to 1,800 per hour, according to size.

THE "CONISBEE" PATENT TWO-COLOUR MACHINE

About forty of the most influential Firms have them in use; among which the "Strand Printing and Publishing Company (Limited)" is using them for their New Evening Coloured Newspaper, The Glowworm, as well as for the New Periodical entitled "The Shops and Companies of London."

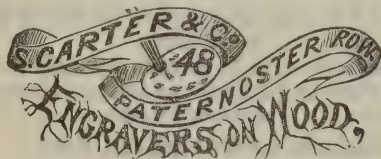

CONISBEE'S IMPROVED PATENT "BELLE SAUVAGE" MACHINE

Is giving great satisfaction to about 400 Firms who are using them. Speed from 800 to 1,200 per hour.

THE "CONISBEE" IMPROVED PATENT TWO-FEEDER NEWSPAPER MACHINE

SAMUEL IVES, Sec. pro. tem.

BOOKS FOR SALE.

UNDER this heading we purpose inserting such rare and curious books as Booksellers in one part of the country may find unsaleable in their own locality, but which those elsewhere may be glad to possess. Books overbought, or bought by mistake, may thus be disposed of, but it is not intended for common every-day publications, which may, or ought to be found, in every shop. Without any wish to act the part of censor, it will be the Editor's duty to see that legitimate use is made of this list, and that, as a general rule, only such books are admitted as are likely to be sold by means of this advertisement. The list from each Advertiser must not exceed three books, the titles of which should if possible be each compressed into one line. No charge will at present be made for the insertion.

BOOKS WANTED.

Letters, stating price and condition, to be forwarded to the Advertisers.

No charge being made to Subscribers for inserting a moderate number of "Wants," it is but fair that as little trouble as possible should be given, although some appear to think that they cannot give too much, and others that they cannot possibly write too badly for the printers, nor give too much trouble to the Editor by their orthographical and bibliographical blunders. The following rules should therefore be observed:—1st. No list should include more than five books. 2. The list should be written plainly, in the same manner as the "Wants" are printed. 3. No books which have been advertised for in any other publication are admissible. 4. Catalogues wanted, or Books bearing upon specific subjects mentioned generally, and not by name, or more books than five, must be paid for at the rate of sixpence each article, and stamps sent with the list. 5. Lists must be received by the 25th of the month. 6. The Editor holds himself at liberty to reject or leave out any book or list he may think proper.

 As any infraction of these rules may lead to the rejection of the entire list, and thus cause delay and disappointment. Subscribers are requested to observe this notice.

Subscription, 5s. per annum, delivered post-free.—Single Number, 6d.; by post, 7d.

REGISTERED FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

THE BOOKSELLER was commenced in January, 1858, as a medium of communication between the Publishers or producers of books, Wholesale Booksellers, Manufacturing Stationers, Printers' Machinists, &c. &c., and Retail Booksellers or Bookbuyers, Stationers and Printers in every part of the world. For this purpose it is supplied post free in England, Australia, Canada, France, the United States, and other countries where a single postage will carry it, at the moderate subscription of five shillings a year. For this moderate sum the dealer in books in any British possession or elsewhere is placed in possession of precisely the same information with respect to new books as if he were resident in London. He is also thus made acquainted with all matters of interest connected with the trade. The best markets are intimated to him, and a large amount of information is placed in his hands.

New subscribers are requested to transmit their full names and addresses, with an order for the payment of the first year's subscription, to the Publisher, Mr. EDWARD TUCKER, 10, Warwick Square, London.

TRADE AND LITERARY GOSSIP.

We regret, in our last number, to have given currency to the report that a large Publishing and Commission House was about to relinquish the latter branch of its business, and that the firm would confine their attention to the former. This we find is incorrect. The firm alluded to, Messrs. Longmans, have no intention of the kind, and will carry on their business as hitherto.

TRADE CHANGES.—Mr. Holmes informs us that he has recently valued the business of the late Mr. J. Hemming, of Stourbridge, it having been purchased by Mr. Ford, of Brierley Hill, Worcestershire, for one of his sons.

HEREFORD.—Mr. E. Parker has retired in favour of Mr. E. K. Jakeman, who, for upwards of fourteen years has been intimately connected with the business.

UNDERSSELLING.—A general meeting of the trade was held at the rooms of the Sunday School Union on the 9th inst., to receive the Report of the Committee appointed at the previous meeting. This was read by the Hon. Sec. Mr. S. Ives, and a resolution was come to by the majority of those present to form a permanent Association for the purpose of carrying out the recommendations contained in the Report. Several of the leading members of the Committee, feeling that they had not the support of the trade at large, have since withdrawn their names, and the probability is that nothing more will now be done.

NICHOL'S PURITAN DIVINES.—Before his death Mr. Nichol had the satisfaction of completing the whole of his first series of Puritan Divines by the issue of the twelfth volume of Dr. Thomas Goodwin's Works, which includes a long and copious index of subjects and of texts, and had also added another volume to his series of Puritan Commentaries—Bayne on the Ephesians. Mr. Nichol, who combined in himself a good deal of the old Puritan with the good man of business, always regarded the publication of these two series as the crowning events of his life.

THE FIRST BOOK OF THE SEASON.—Mr. A. W. Bennett, who has done so much to familiarise us with photography as a means of book illustration, promises a volume of great interest to Alpine tourists. "The Oberland and its Glaciers, illustrated with Ice Axe and Camera," by the editor of the Alpine Journal, Mr. George. It will contain twenty-eight photographs of scenery and phenomena, taken by Mr. E. Edwards, and will be published in good time for summer tourists.

Mr. J. E. B. Mayor, of Cambridge, has put out an appeal for subscriptions towards the expense of a bust of the late Mr. C. H. Cooper, of Cambridge, Editor of the new "Athenæ Cantabrigiensis," a work of immense research but unremunerative. Mr. Cooper was town clerk, but not a member of the University, and it is gratifying to see a gownsmen of Mr. Mayor's standing coming forward on this occasion.

Aunt Judy's Magazine is a new claimant upon popular attention; it is edited by Mrs. Alfred Gatty, a lady whose books for children have been eminently successful. We may, therefore, suppose that this will be equally so; we can give no opinion of its contents as the number only reached us while we were at press.

Messrs. MILNER and SOWERBY, of Halifax, whose publications are "the cheapest books in the world," have taken premises at 44, Paternoster-row. The publications of this house now nearly reach one thousand in number.

STIRLING.—The business for more than forty years in the hands of the family of the late Mr. John Hewitt, has been transferred by his daughters to Mr. R. Shearer, one of the best-informed and most intelligent booksellers north of Edinburgh. The business will be under the management of Mr. William Shirra.

Mr. Edward Copinger, from Messrs. Bickers & Son, has joined Mr. Ramage, of 4, Wells Street, Jermyn-street, with a view to carry out a new branch of business—the supply of standard works in calf and other bindings to the trade. Books suitable for presents have long been kept by Messrs. Suttaby, Rivington, and others; but, sets of library books and standard authors could only be found on the shelves of retail booksellers.

The Book Society are removing from their old premises to 28, Paternoster-row.

OUR HUNDREDTH NUMBER.—We should strangely belie our own feelings if we professed to pen these three words without some pride and satisfaction. The hundredth number of a monthly periodical generally means that it has been successful, that the projector has succeeded in hitting a want, and that the editor has been successful in carrying on his work. The BOOKSELLER has been eminently successful. The conception of the plan arose from the very simple fact of the editor being unable nine or ten years ago to procure the information which the BOOKSELLER now gives. He consulted two or three friends as to the probability of establishing such a work, and they thought it an impossibility. Undeterred by this opinion, he wrote a prospectus and issued it anonymously, confiding his part in the transaction to but five or six persons. In reply an amount of support was promised to the anonymous editor, such as he never dreamed of receiving, and he determined to proceed with his plan; accordingly the first number was printed and published. This was sent out in a plain unprinted wrapper to nearly 2,000 members of the trade, of whom nearly a thousand became subscribers within a few weeks. It is seldom that a work is successful from the very first, but the BOOKSELLER appears to have been almost an exception to the general rule. Some staunch friends soon gathered around it, and it is a pleasing thought that not one of those early friends has ever withdrawn or has expressed any regret at having lent a helping hand. THE BOOKSELLER appears to have met the wants of the trade; to this, more than to any special merit of its own, must be attributed the great amount of support that has been given it. The want of the time was a journal representing the feelings and opinions of the trade; recording information of all with impartiality, and entirely free from the trammels of any publishing house or special connection. After awhile the oldest literary journal in the kingdom, "Bent's Advertiser" fell into the hands of the proprietor, and the two works became united. The purchase and amalgamation of "Bent" was productive of increased support. It enabled the proprietor to extend his connection with the Continent and other parts of the world, and it gave renewed confidence to the early supporters of THE BOOKSELLER. From that time the work has gone on in a progressive manner, and we trust will continue to do so. We also confess to some feelings of pain. We remember some who assisted in our earlier numbers, and who, at later periods, have given their advice and assistance, but whose assistance can no more be given. Nine years appears a short time, but our losses have been numerous. We remember, too, our own aspirations, what we intended to do in these pages, the instruction we desired to convey, the information we would lay ourselves out for, and the copious bibliographical and other knowledge which should be stored up in our volumes. Alas! for good intentions! Force of circumstances, tastes of our readers, suggestions from correspondents, and numerous other causes, have made many of our numbers mere dry records of facts. And although we flatter ourselves that every number has been readable, we fear that too frequently our readers have been provided with but scanty fare. Fortunately for us the supply of news has not depended upon ourselves alone. Our advertisers have supplied food for reflection, when we have ourselves been deficient. We, however, cannot be accused of stinting our readers of the staple commodity of the month. We have carefully recorded the full title of every new book in our classified list. In this we introduced the feature of including all the best new American works, believing that the English Bookseller should be acquainted with the title of every good English book wherever printed. We introduced the titles of books in a very important branch of literature—Parliamentary Blue-books, books which had never before appeared in any list; and whenever subjects of more than ordinary interest have cropped up, we have collected the titles of all works on those subjects. We introduced the plan of advertising for books wanted, placing the advertisers in direct communication with the sellers. And we have thrown open our pages to those having grievances to complain of. We are conscious of many shortcomings, but believe that on the whole our work has been useful to our subscribers. Certain it is that our circulation has gone on increasing, and we hear but few complaints. Another thing which would go far to satisfy us is, that although there have been many imitators, there have been but few which have pointed out any improvements. Even at California, a BOOKSELLER has made its appearance, while at home we have had "Grocers," "Ironmongers," "Drug-gists," and others, all more or less upon the plan of our own work, some being avowed imitations. Our readers will, we trust, forgive this ramble about ourselves and our doings, and if spared to see and enjoy a second and third centenary anniversary, we may be again tempted to apologise in like manner.

THE S. P. C. K.—It is to be regretted that this Society has so long a name that no one ever uses it. But the Dublin "Society for the Suppression of Vice and for the Diffusion of Christian Knowledge" beats it in length; and even the abbreviation is so long that we hear only the secretaries and paid officers have been known to repeat it for more than seven years. The Christian Knowledge Society, on the contrary, is a living fact, and although we have not been able to speak of all its doings with approval, there is no doubt that it has effected much good and is now actively at work carrying out its legitimate work; with some also which even its most ardent supporters must admit is illegitimate, although it may be that this latter part, like bad habits in individuals, is hard to give up. The Society has just held an anniversary meeting, its first, although it has been established 168 years. Like some of our other institutions, it finds itself under the necessity of enlarging its franchise and redistributing its seats; like the institutions referred to, there was doubtless amongst the more Conservative members, some fear of making the society too popular, too much like some other societies, or some other reasons may have been given and overruled, but, we trust, without any detriment to the real interests of the Society. But the meeting has been held, and a very successful one it was too; the Archbishop of Canterbury presided, Mr. Gladstone and a number of other influential laymen attended, and a most interesting report was read. During the past year the Society had sold or given away 338,377 Bibles and Testaments, 505,681 Prayer Books, 2,530,734 other bound books, and 3,250,527 tracts, &c. This is a gratifying state of things, when we remember that nineteen-twentieths of these books, &c., were distributed amongst the poor, or given as aids to education. Indeed it is only with regard to this odd twentieth that the trade complains; it is in about that proportion that the Society sins against itself by manufacturing and selling books which interfere with booksellers and prevent competition. In the present day many booksellers do the work which the Society formerly did, and this the Society should encourage. Some things the Society can do, and which would be failures in the hands of private individuals, especially such books and tracts as are to be given away or disposed of at a loss; for instance we were delighted to see the Society engaged in distributing a sixpenny Bible and a twopenny Prayer Book. We believe that the managers could obtain any amount of money they chose to ask for to cover the loss entailed by this work. We see that a periodical is contemplated; this we are given to understand is to be of a secular character. We take it for granted that the Society cannot publish a mere "Reynolds's Miscellany," or any work of the kind, and that however "secular" it may be, there must be a religious basis. For such a work a society has influence and means of action that no private publisher has, and if the magazine be well conducted, there can be no doubt of its having a very wide and useful circulation. We have been too long and too earnestly at work in endeavouring to promote the circulation of good serials to wish to throw any obstacle in the way of a new and promising venture. If well conducted it cannot fail to do good, if it be merely an imitation of one of those already in existence, it must be a failure. If on the other hand it be such as poor intelligent people and children will read, something that will amuse and instruct, something that will not treat grown up people as children, something that the clergy will interest themselves in circulating,—the good of such a work will be immense, and we have no fear of its doing any injury to the circulation of any other work that deserves to be read.

MESSRS. WARNE'S NEW PUBLICATIONS.—These deserve a much larger space than that at our disposal; we must therefore content ourselves with little more than a bare enumeration of the volumes before us. First is "The Story of the American War," told by Henry Stacke, a work we have determined to read through; it gives what appears to be a very fair and impartial account of all the great deeds performed during that remarkable contest. Mr. Stacke sympathises with the North in its determination to crush out slavery, and in its persistent efforts to bring the Southern States into Union—but he also admires the heroic deeds of Stonewall Jackson, and the indomitable courage of General Lee. Two editions are published, one at 1s. 6d. and a fine paper library edition at 5s. Next a domestic story by the Viscountess Enfield, "The Dayrells," the printing alone of which, by the brothers Dalziel, will ensure it a reception from all who love handsome books. New and improved editions of the works of that favourite author Catherine D. Bell, whose writings are as familiarly known amongst lady readers north of the Tweed as are those of Miss Yonge on this side. These are not mere reprints, they are from new type and with new illustrations. Mr. Carpenter's "Penny Readings" having been extraordinarily successful, that gentleman has now issued two volumes of "Sunday Readings," similar to the preceding, differing only in the more sober character of their contents,—which, by the way, are not of that dull, dreary "Whole-duty-of-man" cast which used to set us asleep, or make us think Sunday reading anything but a pleasant occupation. Next, a new edition of one of the best volumes we know of children's poetry, "Easy Rhymes and Simple Poems for Young Children." "Vegetables, and How to Grow Them," "Fish, and how to Cook it," are both by the same lady—Elizabeth Watts. They are full of useful information, and a shilling spent upon either will yield a large return. "Plain Rules for the Stable," by the Professors Gamgee, father and son, refer rather to sanitary matters than to the general management of the stable. Lastly, we have one of the novels of that remarkable man, Mr. B. Disraeli, whose works are now published by Messrs. Warne. This volume, "The Young Duke," will command a large sale when it becomes known that in the preface of sixteen pages there is an account of the author, and of his literary works, probably revised by himself.

THE EBONITE CHURCH SERVICE.—The purveyors of novelties in the way of bindings for prayer-books and Church Services will shortly have to offer a prize for the invention of a new style. Leather of calves, pigs, goats, and sheep, of every sort and hue, silk, satin, and velvet, ivory and tortoise-shell, gold and silver, oak and mahogany—all have been tried and all are in demand. But Messrs. Rivington have now discovered a new material, ebonite, which not only possesses the merit of novelty, but also of beauty. The Church Service which they send us bound in this style is the New Cambridge Nonpareil 32mo., with a neatly gilt morocco back. The sides are of ebonite, handsomely carved in the Gothic style, the metal mountings gilt but unburnished. Altogether the volume is remarkable for the good taste and good workmanship displayed in its production.

THE WAVERLEY PEN.—Messrs. Macniven & Cameron have not invented a pen which will write of itself, but they have issued one that even a very bad writer may use with swiftness and without fear of making a splutter. By a simple contrivance it is rendered almost an impossibility to stick the nibs into the paper, consequently these pens may be used upon any surface however rough, and thus, for many purposes, they have recommendations peculiarly their own.

From Messrs. Inglis and Jack, Edinburgh, we have a new edition of Dr. Cumming's Daily Family Devotions, a work which, in its original form, was a great favourite with a large number of persons, and which, in the present shape, will have a tenfold amount of success. Dr. W. Lindsay Alexander has written an able introductory dissertation upon the duties and advantages of family devotion, and the publishers have supplied a large number of coloured illustrations by Kronheim. One of the peculiarities of Dr. Cumming's work is that all the Scriptural extracts from poetical books are printed rhythmically as poetry, an immense advantage to the reader. The binding of the book is also of a very superior character.

THE CRUIKSHANK TESTIMONIAL.—We rejoice to see that a subscription has been set on foot for the purpose of presenting a testimonial to Mr. George Cruikshank, an artist of whom we have reason to be proud, not only on account of his talents, but also on account of the manner in which he has used them. The committee in their circular say:—"There can be few men who on reaching—as George Cruikshank has now reached—the advanced age of 73, can look back with a clearer consciousness of great abilities used, in more directions than one, laboriously, fruitfully, honourably, and well. A strong sense of this fact has induced a movement, originating among artists, for presenting Mr. Cruikshank with some memento, not only of their admiration for his genius, but of the universal respect in which his exercise of it, and his personal character are held. Upon mature consideration it is proposed that the funds which may be subscribed for this purpose, instead of being invested in the purchase of any object by way of testimonial, shall be handed over in bulk for Mr. Cruikshank's acceptance. The committee have had the gratification of obtaining Mr. Cruikshank's approval of this rather than any other form of testimonial, an approval which entirely coincides with their own sense of how best to express their feeling towards Mr. Cruikshank, and, they take permission to add, towards Mrs. Cruikshank also."

RIVINGTON'S ECCLESIASTICAL YEAR-BOOK for 1865 is the first issue of a most valuable compendium of church history for the year, embracing on account of convocation, proceedings of church societies, a record of church progress, of religious literature for the year, and an obituary. It is no mere paste and scissors compilation of dates and names, but a nicely written record interspersed with comments. The volume ought to find a place upon every clergyman's table.

Few books have in their day done such good service as "Mangnall's Questions," and if people were bold enough to declare what book had given them more useful information than any other, the vast majority would give their votes to Mangnall. Mr. Tegg has just published a new and improved edition of this old favourite, bringing some of the information down to as recent an event as the death of Louis Philippe. The book is well printed, strongly bound, and contains numerous illustrations, including a portrait of the authoress.

MESSRS. CASSELL have completed their Bible Dictionary, which forms two handsome volumes of nearly 600 pages each, with illustrations profusely scattered throughout. In a work of this kind entire originality is quite out of the question, the editor's duty being confined to a careful collation of the best authorities, and a selection from them, re-writing the matter so as to form what may fairly be considered an original work. In the present instance this has been very satisfactorily performed. All subjects of any moment, and many of almost trivial importance, are given with clearly-written explanations. A careful reverence for the Bible is observable throughout, and the editor has abstained from the show of learning which too frequently disfigures works of this kind, which should be clear of all pedantry—too frequently used as a cloak for imperfect information.

MR. STRAHAN'S NEW PUBLICATIONS. —We have had many lengthy announcements in our pages, but the most extraordinary list put forward for many a day is that of Mr. Strahan's in our present number. The fertility of this publisher is marvellous; so also the success which has attended nearly all his ventures. The present list for instance contains scarcely a book that may not be regarded as likely to have a large sale; indeed, it appears to have been Mr. Strahan's ambition to give a book as well printed, on as good paper, and as neatly bound for six shillings as others give at fifteen, and this may partially account for his success. The list deserves careful perusal; to quote any portion would be useless.

IRELAND. —Looking at a nation from our own point of view, we not unnaturally regard those people as civilized, intelligent, and prosperous, when we see that they produce large numbers of books—Scotland and Holland may be named as instances in illustration of our assertion—Ireland, on the contrary, is usually seen through Protestant spectacles, and is therefore regarded as lifeless, uncivilized, unintelligent, and rapidly going to the bad. But that there is still some life remaining, that there are some readers, some intelligence, and some civilization remaining in the country, judging still from the Bookseller point of view, is evident from the number and importance of the publications of one house, that of Mr. James Duffy, whose list of books fills no fewer than eight of our pages. Of many of these books we have no knowledge, and were not even aware of their existence; yet judging from the manner in which they are spoken of by those who should be judges, we may presume their possessing an amount of excellence that our readers will hardly be prepared for. The Freeman's Journal, one of the leading Dublin newspapers, thus speaks of some:—

"Within the last few days Mr. Duffy has completed the issue of the Holy Bible, translated from the Vulgate with the approval of his Grace the Archbishop of Dublin, the Most Rev. Dr. Cullen, and is replete with notes, references, and all the other et ceteras calculated to render it most useful and complete. It has been produced in the highest style of finish, printed in a bold clear type, on the best quality paper, and bound in an elegant and serviceable manner, while its pages are enriched by some of the most appropriate illustrations, which are in themselves gems as specimens of the art of engraving. The volume is the most perfect that has been given to the public for years, and yet it is offered at a price which places it within the reach of every class. It is, in this respect, a marvel; for it is difficult to comprehend how such a work—so full, so perfectly complete, and so artistically turned out of hands, can be sold at the very moderate figure at which Mr. Duffy has placed it before the public. No doubt such an issue of the Bible was wanted, and the publisher deserves well of the Catholic community for the satisfactory manner in which he has discharged his important undertaking. Mr. Duffy has not spared himself in the production of the work, and we do most sincerely trust that an extensive circulation will testify the public appreciation of his enterprise and his zeal. In America, Australia, New Zealand, and every quarter where an Irish Catholic is to be found this volume will be a "welcome guest;" while at home, all Catholic families, no matter how limited their means, are afforded an opportunity of supplying themselves with this all-important volume. It is not, therefore, unreasonable to anticipate for it a wide popularity, and we can safely add, no matter how extensive that may be, it will not be commensurate with the numerous recommendations of this publication, which we believe is no less than the third edition of the Holy Bible brought out by Mr. Duffy. We are happy to perceive that this gentleman is not about to relax his energy in adding to Catholic literature. If, as is undoubtedly the case, a certain class of imported publications are highly injurious to the morality of a community, the man who exerts himself to place in the hands of the people publications of not only an unimpeachable character, but books eminently calculated to improve and elevate, should be esteemed a kind of public benefactor. A more serviceable volume could scarcely be given to the public than Dr. Alban Butler's 'Lives of the Saints'—a standard work originally issued at twenty-five guineas—and this we observe Mr. Duffy commences to issue at sixpence a number. It will be embellished with at least twenty engravings, and the volume will be completed in forty-eight numbers. This is enterprise which merits encouragement, and which we have no doubt will, in this particular instance, be rewarded with the heartiest co-operation of the Catholic clergy and laity."—We have printed the above for the double purpose of showing what is doing in Dublin, and because it will tend to remove the impression that the Bible is not allowed to be read in Ireland.

The eighth volume of Chambers' Encyclopædia, bringing the work down to the letter S—Sound, has just been published. Another volume will complete the work. For a person of limited means, or with limited time, this is better than any similar work, inasmuch as the article required is easy of reference. Knight's English Cyclopædia is in course of republication. This, unlike the preceding, is in sections. One section we frequently consult—the Biographical—in this we generally find what we require, and we believe the other sections are of equal excellence. The Penny Cyclopædia is now in the hands of Messrs. Bell and Daldy.

Mr. Hotten sends us a very beautifully printed edition of the Prayer-book, with floriated borders round every page, from the "Book of Hours," by Geoffroy Tory. It is rubricated throughout, and, altogether forms a handsome volume. The selling price is 18s., but the terms on which Mr. Hotten offers it to the trade are such that many will at once put some copies into stock.

Mr. BEAL, who has helped to familiarize the public with the old masters by means of photography, forwards some specimens of his Cheap Coloured Series, Carte-de-Visite size, which are fully equal to those which are usually sold at double the price, they are the Ecce Homo of Guido, the Infant Samuel, Timothy, Petrarch and Laura, and "A Distinguished Member of the Royal Humane Society."

The Standard informs us that "Mr. J. Bertrand Payne, M.R.I., F.R.G.S., Captain Commanding the 4th Middlesex (Authors') Volunteer Artillery, is engaged in writing the 'Histories of the Metropolitan Volunteer Regiments.' This is a subject full of present and prospective interest, and will not fail to be supported, one would think, by the volunteers. The portraits and coats-of-arms of the commanding officers will tend to make this work a valuable memorial."

Poultry as a Meat Supply: Being Hints to Henwives, How to Rear and Manage Poultry Economically and Profitably. By the Author of the "Poultry Calendar." (Nimmo).—The object of this important and well-written little treatise is twofold; first, to give such plain and practical directions to the henwife as may enable her, without any previous knowledge of the subject, to begin and carry on her business of the poultry-yard with profit and pleasure; and secondly, to place the subject in such a light as will induce the rural population to attempt the rearing of poultry on a larger scale than has yet been attempted in this country. The author has done his work well; no treatise that we have seen on the same topic so thoroughly and plainly setting forth the necessity for poultry rearing, and the way in which it may be successfully accomplished.

Cast away on the Auckland Islands: a Narrative of the Wreck of the "Grafton," and of the Escape of the Crew after Twenty Months' Suffering. From the private Journals of Capt. Thos. Musgrave; with some account of the Aucklands by John J. Shillinglaw. (Lockwood and Co.)—Captain Musgrave's narrative of the wreck of the "Grafton," in one of the inlets of the Auckland Islands, about 400 miles south of New Zealand, in January, 1864, and the subsequent sufferings of him and his crew, form a remarkable contribution to the romance of travel and adventure. The courage, perseverance, and self-reliance exhibited by the captain and his fellows during their twenty months' detention on the desert island; and their final escape, with the subsequent efforts made by the Government of Victoria to ascertain the real condition of the Aucklands, make altogether a very stirring and pathetic story; which, had it been told with rather more literary tact, would have rivalled the "Life and Adventures of Robinson Crusoe." As it is, however, we cannot too much admire the heroic efforts which enabled the castaways to surmount difficulties which appeared almost insurmountable. Added to the narrative proper is an account of the Aucklands, and a description of the habits of the sea-lion; written, as were most of Captain Musgrave's journals, in the blood of the seal itself!

The King and People of Fiji.—Containing a life of Thakombau, with Notices of the Fijians, their manners, customs, and superstitions, previous to the great Reformation in 1854, by the Rev. J. Waterhouse, published by the Wesleyan Conference. The writer of this interesting and valuable book was, in 1849, appointed by the Wesleyan Conference as a missionary to the Fiji Islands, a group a few miles east of the Friendly Islands, in the South Pacific Ocean. He was the first Englishman who, without conforming to savage manners, was permitted to reside in the city of Thakombau, the titular king of Fiji; and very graphically he describes the manners and customs of the natives of the hundred islets which form the Fijian group. He found them mere savages; cruel, avaricious, and revengeful: but through the influence exerted by him and others, especially the Rev. James Calvert, the surviving father of the Fijian mission, he left them improved, and not unwilling to receive and embrace the doctrines of Christianity, and the benefits of civilization. This happy result was not, however, accomplished without much anxious care and persevering effort. A few of the great men among the natives having been converted, the rest of the work, though prosecuted amidst petty wars, jealousies, and tumults, became less difficult. The Fijians are proud, deceitful, cunning cannibals, but still the author believes that the time is not distant when the people will gradually be led to civilized habits of thought and feeling. Indeed, they have lately fully justified the author's anticipations, and their religious reformation, began in 1854, is daily bearing evidence of the value of missionary enterprise.

Life of Father Ignatius of St. Paul, Passionist. (The Hon. and Rev. George Spencer) compiled chiefly from his Autobiography, Journals, and Letters. (James Duffy.)—We are told in this biography of the Hon. and Rev. George Spencer, uncle of Earl Spencer, "that he hated shams;" and, as one of the results of this hatred, that he left the Church of England, in which he was educated, for the Papacy, in which communion he died. The earliest part of the memoir is mainly compiled from autobiographical memoranda, but the later and more important details are furnished by the reverend author, who appears to have thoroughly enjoyed his friendship and confidence. The biographer of Father Ignatius of St. Paul—the title taken by Mr. Spencer after his conversion—takes some pains to remove an impression that may be present to the minds of Protestant readers, as to Mr. Spencer's consistency; for he says—"Father Ignatius had his alternations of praise and blame during life; but those who thought least of him were forced to admit his great sanctity. If this latter quality be conceded, apology has no room. An admitted saint does not require to be defended; for the aureola of his brow will shed the light through which his actions are to be viewed. We, therefore, see no wrong impressions that require to be removed, no calumnies that have to be cleared away, nothing, in fact, to be done, except to give a faithful history of his life." And whatever may be the difference of opinion as to some points, none can fail to honour the man who renounced all the pleasures of the world, sacrificed old and dear friendships, and encountered obloquy and suspicion for the sake of a religion which he deemed the only true and apostolic one; none can question the simple earnestness and piety of the man. A perusal of this memoir will tend to deepen this impression in the minds of all readers.

President Lincoln Self-pourtrayed, by John Malcolm Ludlow: A. W. Bennett. Without pretending to be a biography of Abraham Lincoln, this sketch of the great President's public life is full of interesting details of the lamentable and disastrous civil war between the North and South, the political aspects of his time, and the policy by which he was uniformly actuated. The tone of the whole volume, which is an amplification of various articles in "Good Words," will be seen from the following extract:—"We are now able to see that death sealed more triumphantly the completeness of Abraham Lincoln's work, than any lengthening of his life could have done; since Booth's crime, perhaps the most futile as respects its purpose that was ever committed, availed not to disarrange, for a single day, the working of the Federal institutions; did not shake the discipline of a corporal's guard, nor delay the surrender of one Confederate. Abraham Lincoln had indeed fulfilled to the uttermost that solemn oath of his to 'preserve, protect, and defend, the government of his country.'" A good portrait of the late President forms a fitting frontispiece to this volume.

OBITUARY.

March 29, aged 73, the author of The Christian Year. The Rev. John Keble, vicar of Hursley, Hants, was born on the 26th of April, 1792. At the usual age he entered the University of Oxford, where he was the contemporary of Dr. Arnold, and afterwards became the friend and associate of Dr. Pusey and Dr. Newman, and with them originated that movement of progress, life, and usefulness, which has characterised the English Church during the past thirty years. Fond of devotional poetry, Mr. Keble early gave to intimate friends some specimens of his skill. Lovers of Herbert and Ken saw, or fancied they saw, great similarity to the writings of those holy men, and encouraged the young poet to proceed. He, however, could not be induced to publish or even to print, contenting himself with the good opinions expressed by those friends to whom he had given copies of his verses. Time rolled on, and Mr. Keble completed the round of poems for "The Christian Year;" two copies only were in existence, one in his own possession and another in that of his very intimate friend, the Rev. Samuel Rickards, afterwards rector of Stowlangtoft. During the long vacation of 1826, or early in 1827, Mr. Keble was on a visit in Wales, when by some accident he lost his manuscript copy of the work, and to this day it has never been recovered. His friends now insisted upon the poems being printed, and Mr. Rickards's copy was given up for the purpose. Accordingly, in July, 1827, there appeared in two modest foolscap volumes, "The Christian Year; Thoughts in Verse for the Sundays and Holy-days throughout the Year." The impression was a small one, 750 copies, if we remember aright, and these sufficed for some time. The author's friends were disappointed at others not perceiving beauties, they themselves discerned in every line. After awhile another edition was called for and then another. In this, the third, if we mistake not, some corrections were made, and from that time editions were constantly called for; but it was not till about the year 1844 that any very great demand sprang up for the book. On the average only one edition a year had been printed; but from that time the demand set in for edition after edition, till the ordinary sale was from seven to ten thousand copies a year. No alteration was made in the poetry itself, till about ten years since, when a Presbyterian minister travelling in the East with a copy of the book for his companion, discovered some errors in Mr. Keble's natural history and in other trifling matters. Having pointed these out in some publication, they were brought to Mr. Keble's notice, and a few slight corrections were made. "The Christian Year" is now in the hands of most religiously-disposed Churchmen; is used by hundreds of Dissenters in this country, and has been extensively reprinted in the United States. The morning and evening hymns, and some others have been adopted by all compilers of hymn books, and are amongst the best known pieces of poetry in the language. Mr. Keble published a metrical version of the Psalms, but this was generally considered a failure. In 1846, a suggestion was made through Mr. Keble's friend, Sir John Coleridge, that the author of "The Christian Year" might be induced to publish another volume of poetry. This was assented to, and the "Lyra Innocentium" made its appearance. This work is also popular, but has not, and probably never will attain the popularity of "The Christian Year," nevertheless, it contains some pieces of exquisite beauty, with great depth of religious feeling. The profits of Mr. Keble's poetry were large, but they were all devoted to Church purposes, including the rebuilding of Hursley Church. Mr. Keble published many pamphlets, and contributed much to religious periodicals; he also published two volumes in Latin, "Prælectiones Academicæ." A volume, published under the title of "The Child's Christian Year," generally attributed to Mr. Keble, is not by him, but contains a selection from the poetry of the Rev. Isaac Williams and others, and probably some of Mr. Keble's. It was edited by an inhabitant of Hursley, Miss Yonge, the well-known author of "The Heir of Redclyffe," and editor of the "Monthly Packet."

March 4, at Tabernacle Row, Finsbury, aged 61, Mr. Daniel Greenaway, for forty-eight years a faithful and zealous servant of Messrs. Grosvenor, Chater, & Co., of London. Much loved and deeply lamented.

CORRESPONDENCE.

BOOKS ON SALE OR RETURN.

To the Editor of the Bookseller.

SIR,—I address this warning to the country trade, as to the rapidly extending custom of the wholesale publishers in sending books on sale without order. It is right enough for all persons to push their own works in a legitimate manner. I contend this mode is not legitimate; I might say almost a dishonesty; for very frequently the books sent are those for which neither the retail nor wholesale have any call, and the latter find this a good way of getting rid of them. Let every country bookseller at once return, carriage unpaid, all thus sent, and he will speedily find that his shelves will present a much more pleasing appearance than they now do. I have adopted this system now some time to my extreme satisfaction.

A COUNTRY BOOKSELLER.

BOND'S MARKING INK.

To the Editor of the Bookseller.

SIR,—A letter bearing the signature and address "John Wood, Penistone," which appeared in your publication of the 31st March last, has only recently been brought to the attention of my client, Mr. J. Hickisson, who is evidently the person to whom it was intended to refer.

I am instructed on his behalf to state that he neither knows or has had any dealings whatever with the writer of the letter, and that it is his intention to take immediate steps to disprove the statements contained in it.

I am, yours obediently,
JOHN WILLS.

Doctors Commons, 23rd April, 1866.

UNDERSELLING.—As it appears that the trade are unwilling to help themselves, we must decline inserting any correspondence on this subject.

THE

ANNOTATED BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER;

BEING AN

HISTORICAL, RITUAL, AND THEOLOGICAL COMMENTARY ON THE DEVOTIONAL
 SYSTEM OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

EDITED BY THE

REV. JOHN HENRY BLUNT, M.A., F.R.S.L.,

Author of "Directorium Pastorale," "Household Theology," &c. &c.

The first part of the Annotated Prayer Book extends as far as the end of the Gospels and Epistles. Its earlier pages contain an Historical Introduction, giving a complete Account of the Origin and Transition of the Devotional System of the Church of England; a Ritual Introduction, going fully into the principles and practice of her Ceremonial; ample Notes on and Illustrations of the Prefaces and Tables of the Prayer Book; the Calendar, with Notes on the Minor Holydays; and a comparative view of the Ancient and Modern English, the Roman, and the Eastern Calendars.

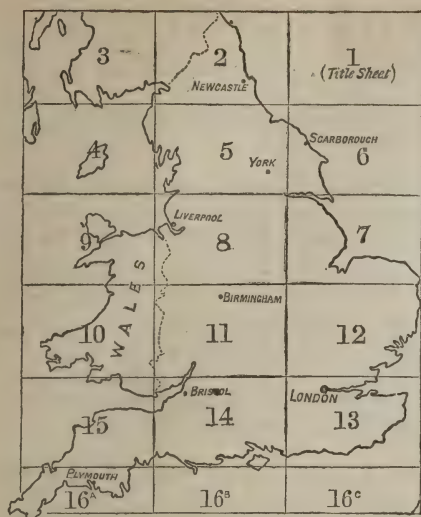

In the subsequent portion of this Part, the Daily Services of the Church of England are printed with their originals in parallel columns: the Collects in the same manner, with a comparative view, under each, of the Epistles and Gospels as used in the Modern and Ancient English, the Roman, and the Eastern Churches. A large part of each page is occupied with foot-notes, explaining the history, ritual, and theology of the text above.

A few copies have been printed in royal 4to, with large margin for MS. Notes, price 25s.

The Second Part of the Annotated Prayer Book will complete the work, and will contain a similar Commentary on the Communion Service, the Occasional Offices, and the Ordination Services; together with the English and Latin Psalter in parallel columns, and a short Liturgical exposition of each Psalm; a full Index, and a Glossary. It is far advanced at press, and will be published in a few months.

NEW ROLLIN. An Ancient History from the Earliest Times to the Fall of the Western Empire: forming the First Period of the "History of the World." By PHILIP SMITH, B.A., one of the Principal Contributors to Dr. Smith's Classical Dictionaries. Complete in 3 vols., 8vo, with Maps and Plans, £2 2s. cloth lettered.

For the first time in English literature the reader has before him, in the moderate compass of Three Volumes, a complete ANCIENT HISTORY, from the Creation of the World to the Fall of the Western Empire of Rome, treated as a continuous narrative, and with unity of purpose. Besides its place in the whole scheme of the History of the World, this division may be regarded as forming a complete and independent work, which may occupy the place once filled by the Ancient History of Rollin.

"He has availed himself liberally of the new lights thrown by recent discovery and philology upon the annals of the East, and in all that relates to the oriental empires and African kingdoms or republics (if, indeed, that term can be applied to the timocratic, or perhaps plutocratic Carthage). His work is far in advance of any ancient history in our language."—Saturday Review.

"The style of the volumes is sustained with the equal tone of a single, able, unimpassioned, and dignified historian throughout."—Athenæum.

THE POET'S HOUR. Poetry selected and arranged for Children. By FRANCES MARTIN, Superintendent of the Bedford College School. Printed on toned paper, with Vignette by Noel Paton. Fcap. 8vo, 3s. 6d. cloth.

"The principle of selection, here, is not one chiefly of personal taste, but experience; she has formed it on the strength of a careful induction of children's tastes,—not, indeed, left to themselves, but guided 'by a light hand that directs rather than controls,'—in other words, of children's tastes under the influence of her personal preferences. Anyhow it is a very good and wholesome taste, refined, but not too refined, for ordinary children."—Spectator.

VIOLINS AND VIOLIN MAKERS.

Just published,

A DICTIONARY of the GREAT Italian Artistes, their Followers and Imitators to the present time; with Essays on their characteristics, qualities, tone, value, classification, &c. By J. PEARCE, Jun. Price 3s. 6d.

Athenæum, March 31.

"It is not often that we meet with so much information on a technical subject, so well compressed, and so readable as this book affords us. The last treatise on the violin we examined was bulky, pompous, expensive, yet meagre to nakedness compared with this. * * * Much curious and varied information gathers itself round the most difficult to handle, yet the most exquisite of musical instruments. On all these matters Mr. Pearce discourses as one who is a master of the subject, and as such is aware of its difficulties. * * * We could go on for many a column longer in making notes and drawing stories from this rich little book."

Orchestra, April 14.

"This is one of the most useful and interesting works on the violin we have seen, not only for the amount of information contained, but for its excellent and commendable arrangement. It is full of valuable hints to players and connoisseurs."

Other Opinions.

"An excellent handbook for amateurs and collectors of the violin." "An interesting volume." "Very instructive." "A delightful little book." "Contains much valuable information." "Very lucid work on the violin, tending as it does to offer instruction to the novice, and information to the advanced connoisseur."

Musical Standard, April 21.

"Of exceeding interest to all lovers of the violin. * * * The compiler has entitled himself to the thanks of the rather numerous class whose knowledge of violin-making is very slight, and who are, therefore, liable to be preyed upon by the unscrupulous, or at least to purchase completely in the dark. * * * Abounding in hints of the greatest possible utility, agreeably arranged, and lucidly expressed."

Interleaved with Blank Ruled Paper.

In this book there is a Scripture Text for every day in the year, with an appropriate verse under each. But the novel feature is the interleaving.

Every printed page has opposite it a blank leaf, on which it is intended that the possessor should secure the autographs of friends, placed in juxtaposition with their birthdays.

The book, therefore, will answer a threefold purpose,—as a Daily Text Book, a Book of Autographs, and a Record of the Birthdays of Friends.

THE
PILGRIM'S PROGRESS, IN LARGE TYPE,

WITH SPLENDID COLOURED ILLUSTRATIONS.

A re-issue of the Book Society's beautiful Large-Type Pilgrim's Progress is now being published.

TO BE COMPLETED IN 12 MONTHLY PARTS, PRICE SIXPENCE.

Each Part contains a splendid Coloured Illustration.

May be obtained of any Bookseller.

When completed, this will form one of the handsomest and cheapest editions of Bunyan ever published.

"The special excellencies of the Book Society's edition of the matchless allegory of Bunyan consist in its typography and pictorial illustrations. It is printed in a fine, bold, and remarkably clear type—one of the largest that has ever issued from the press, in these days at least. The plates are well chosen, and possess a good deal of character. Altogether this is one of the best issues of Bunyan's immortal work which we have seen. To weak or old eyes it would be a treasure indeed: nor will it be less attractive to the young."—Record.

"The selections are made with judgment, and the book is really what its title implies—a useful manual of French literature."—Literary Gazette.

"The distinguishing feature of the book is arrangement and purpose in the extracts, with brief notes respecting the authors; while the subjects quoted are less fragmentary than in some other recueils. The subjects in this volume are chiefly historical and poetical, with one or two biographies and fictitious pieces."—Spectator.

"'That which is seen,' says Mr. Loth, 'makes a strong impression upon the mind, and thus is more easily remembered than that which is merely explained.' In accordance with this principle, the essential facts of German Grammar are here arranged in a tabular form in a series of nineteen sheets, in which, by a skilful use of different kinds of type, and of different coloured inks, the student has presented to him a kind of bird's-eye view of the subject which is both ingenious and effective. Each table takes up a separate part of speech, and the whole forms a very complete summary of the essentials of German Grammar."—Educational Times, March 1865.

"It is to the Messrs. NELSON that we are indebted for the introduction of this style of coloured printing—at least so far as toy books are concerned. The success which attended the introduction of this style of juvenile literature soon induced a number of persons to rush into the market, and copy Messrs. NELSONS' idea, though there is not the shadow of an effort to improve upon it or introduce anything new in the effect or the style."—See Stationer and Fancy Trades' Register for January, 1866.

THE ELEMENTS of SOCIAL SCIENCE; or, Physical, Sexual, and Natural Religion. Containing an Exposition of the True Cause and only Cure of the Three Primary Social Evils: Poverty, Prostitution, and Celibacy. 6th Edition. 600 pages, 2s. 6d.; or in cloth, 3s., post free.

"Though quite out of the province of our journal, we cannot refrain from stating that this work is unquestionably the most remarkable one in many respects we have ever met with. The anonymous author is a physician who has brought his special knowledge to bear on some of the most intricate problems of social life. He lays bare to the public, and probes with a most unsparing hand the sores of society, caused by anomalies in the relation of the sexes; and at the same time goes into all the minutiae of the treatment of diseases thence arising. For these reasons this book may be extensively read; it is not likely to be spoken of except sotto voce, nor to be reviewed in the proper organs of general science and literature. Though we differ toto celo from the author in his views of religion and morality, and hold some of his remedies to tend rather to a dissolution than a reconstruction of society; yet we are bound to admit the benevolence and philanthropy of his motives. The scope of the work is nothing less than the whole field of political economy."—British Journal of Homoeopathy.

"It is because, after an impartial consideration of this book, we feel satisfied that the author has no meretricious professional object to subserve, that we are induced to use its publication as a text for the discussion of a vital and pressing subject; and because it bears evidences of research, thorough, although misapplied, professional education, some pretensions to philosophy, and a certain earnestness of misguided conviction of the truth of peculiar prevalent economical theories, which seem to have led him off his feet, and to have induced him to venture upon any extravagance in their support. It is in vain to attempt to hide these subjects out of sight. This one book of 600 closely printed pages is in its third large edition. It is no use to ignore the topic. It is of universal interest. It concerns intimately every human being. The views of the author of this volume are largely adopted by economists and physicians; the ideas of which they treat occupy a prominent place in the thoughts, more or less distinctly developed, of every adult mind. Erroneous opinions on the questions here involved are daily misleading thousands—dangerous doctrines are only too prevalent both in the systems of economists and the practice of medical advisers."—From an adverse review, occupying six columns, in The Weekly Dispatch, January and February, 1866.

POPULATION FALLACIES: a Defence of the Malthusian or True Theory of Society, in reply to the Weekly Dispatch, Times, and others. By a Graduate of Medicine, Author of the "Elements of Social Science." 36 pages, price 2d.; by post, 3d.

THE POLITICAL ECONOMIST and Journal of Social Science. By the Author of the "Elements of Social Science." Complete, 1s., post free.

It contains about 50,000 words (embodying all the known scattered glossaries of the English language) forming a complete key for the reader of our old poets, dramatists, theologians, and other authors, whose works abound with allusions, of which explanations are not to be found in ordinary dictionaries and books of reference. Most of the principal archaisms are illustrated by examples selected from early inedited MSS. and rare books, and by far the greater portion will be found to be original authorities.

New Testament. Translated from Griesbach's Text. By SAMUEL SHARPE, author of the "History of Egypt," &c. 5th edition, 12mo, pp. 412, well printed, cloth, red edges. 1s. 6d. ; by post, 1s. 10d.

The aim of the translator has been to give the meaning and idiom of the Greek as far as possible in English words. Five large impressions of the volume sufficiently test its value. The price now places it within the reach of all classes. "Upon the whole we must admit that Mr. Sharpe's is the most correct English version in existence, either of the whole or any portion of the New Testament.—The Ecclesiastic, quoted with approval by the English Churchman, 18th December, 1862.

A Cyclopædia of Illustrations

Moral and Religious Truths;

Consisting of Definitions, Metaphors, Similes, Emblems, Synonyms, Contrasts, Analogies, Statistics, Anecdotes, etc.

SELECTED FROM AUTHORS ANCIENT AND MODERN.

BY REV. JOHN BATE.

ARRANGEMENT.—The subjects are consecutively and analytically placed, so that the illustrations desired can at once be found by a reference to the letters beginning the proper word of the subject. Each illustration has over it the precise subject, as near as could be ascertained, for which it was intended by the author, forming in itself a thought upon the general subject.

COMPREHENSIVENESS.—Scarcely any point within the compass of theology and morals, in all their phases and relations, is omitted. There is from one to ninety or a hundred illustrations on each general subject. The work contains between SIX AND SEVEN THOUSAND ILLUSTRATIONS, gathered from more than EIGHT HUNDRED AUTHORS.

NEWNESS OF ILLUSTRATION.—The greater proportion of the matter has never appeared before the public, apart from the respective authors. There is also a variety of ORIGINAL illustrations, for the first time appearing in print.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"We have run over the pages of this 'Cyclopædia' with amazement, so replete are they with authorities and information of the highest class. It is the very hand-book for clergymen, editors, tutors, academicians, and private students."—Church Standard.

"A book for all, presenting such a store of definitions, metaphors, similes, emblems, contrasts, analogies, statistics, synonyms, and anecdotes, to be found in no volume in any European language."—British Standard.

"Overworked clergymen, and the whole Christian laity, may now, with little labour, and at moderate cost, hold fellowship with the most illustrious of the church's teachers, and make the noblest thoughts of the greatest thinkers their own."—Wesleyan Times.

"This memoir of the mother of the Wesleys is not merely a book for the season but a Biography for all time. The talented author has entered con amore upon his task, and has wrought out a portraiture of surpassing excellence; accuracy of statement is combined with aptitude of quotation, and the whole surroundings are filled in with the vigour and precision of an artist's pencil."—Church Standard.

THE NEW MONTHLY MAGAZINE FOR CHILDREN.

On the 1st of May, price 6d., with Illustrations,

AUNT JUDY'S MAGAZINE.

EDITED BY

MRS. ALFRED GATTY,

Author of "Parables for the Young," "Fairy Godmothers," "Aunt Judy's Tales," &c. &c.

THE sweet old salutation, "You're as welcome as the flowers in May," comes into our head as we pen the first lines of this Magazine, which is intended for the use and amusement of children. Accordingly, on this our first appearance, our May-day of opening as it were, we look wistfully to the young folks for whom we have catered, craving a welcome like that they always give the flowers. We cannot wish a warmer—for they take them to their heart.

As loving a reception as that it would be folly, of course, to expect. Only God's works can call out such emotions—so warm, so wide-spread, and so lasting. But a welcome, and a kindly welcome, we have tried to deserve, and cannot but hope for.

Stories will form a staple commodity in our bill of fare, and these of various sorts, to suit the requirements of various ages. And included under this head will occasionally be some tale of allegorical or parabolic teaching for those who enjoy such writing.

Yet parents need not fear an overflowing of mere amusement. They will find in another place our "Memoranda," or things to be remembered in each month; and these will comprise facts and anecdotes, historical, biographical, or otherwise, deserving a niche in the brain-temple of the young.

Of Natural History, too, we hope to find something interesting to say in most numbers; while indoor amusements will be added in their turn, that variety may not be wanting.

We shall, now and then, also have a talk about new books likely to be acceptable to our young friends.

We have many promises and many hopes which cannot well be defined in so brief a summary; but we have every where sought for excellence, both in art and literature; and we look to music and verse for throwing another charm into our monthly cauldron.

With such anticipations, and the promise of zealous efforts on our own part to win approbation by meriting it, is it too much to ask the young folks who greet us now to give three cheers for the success of

The Student's Guide to the University of Cambridge.

"Partly with the view of assisting parents, guardians, schoolmasters, and students intending to enter their names at the University—partly, also, for the benefit of undergraduates themselves—a very complete, though concise, volume has just been issued, which leaves little or nothing to be desired. For lucid arrangement, and a rigid adherence to what is positively useful, we know of few manuals that could compete with this Student's Guide. It reflects no little credit on the University to which it supplies an unpretending but complete introduction."—Saturday Review.

From the Freeman's Journal, April 16, 1866.

"Within the last few days Mr. Duffy has completed the issue of the Holy Bible, translated from the Latin Vulgate. This work, which comes from the press with the approval of his Grace the Archbishop of Dublin, the Most Rev. Dr. Cullen, is replete with notes, references, and all the other et-ceteras, calculated to render it most useful and complete. It has been produced in the highest style of finish, printed in a bold, clear type, on the best paper, and bound in an elegant and serviceable manner: while its pages are enriched by some of the most appropriate illustrations, which are in themselves gems as specimens of the art of engraving. The volume is the most perfect that has been given to the public for years, and yet it is offered at a price which places it within the reach of every class. It is, in this respect, a marvel; for it is difficult to comprehend how such a work—so full, so perfectly complete, and so artistically turned out of hand—can be sold at the very moderate figure at which Mr. Duffy has placed it before the public."

GOOD NEWS FOR GIRLS AND BOYS!

Shortly will be ready, beautifully Illustrated, price One Penny, UNIFORM WITH "THE BRITISH WORKWOMAN," TO BE CONTINUED MONTHLY, No. I. OF

The British Juvenile

AT HOME, AT WORK, AND AT PLAY.

THIS work is intended for the use of both the Boys and Girls of the Working Classes, and it is hoped will meet their wants and wishes. Its object is to train the young for the proper discharge of the duties of "the life that is," and, by Divine blessing, aid in preparing them for "that which is to come."

The wide circulation of unsuitable publications, which tend only to fascinate and corrupt young readers, calls for a further increase of pure literature. The advice of several earnest friends and lovers of children, and the desire of supplying multitudes of humble families with good and cheap reading, have prompted the issue of "THE BRITISH JUVENILE."

It will endeavour, by good counsel, kindly given, to inculcate the duties of honesty, truthfulness, obedience to Parents and Teachers, industry, perseverance, and self-denial. It will address itself in plain, earnest words to the minds of its readers, illustrating its teachings by anecdotes, biographies, adventures, incidents of travel, and by carefully written tales.

The Child AT HOME will find many entertaining sketches of Home life, and encouraging instances of good conduct rewarded.

The Child beginning to WORK for its daily bread, will find much to cheer it on the way which is too often a strange, dull, and dreary road.

The Child AT PLAY will be amused by many new games, and by fresh light thrown upon old ones; also by hard puzzles, riddles, and the like, and pretty pictures by many of our best artists.

There will be something for all sorts of poor children, the sick and the healthy, the learner and the worker, the happy and the unhappy; for those who are blessed with parents spared to them, and for those who are deprived of a parent's care—all will find a helping hand and a hopeful word in "THE BRITISH JUVENILE," and be led to look to Him who "though He was rich, yet for our sakes became poor, that we through His poverty might be rich."

The editorial management of "THE BRITISH JUVENILE" will be under competent direction, and the aid of accomplished and experienced writers and artists of established reputation will be secured. The paper and printing will in all respects be equal to those of "The British Workwoman."

As only a very large circulation can reimburse and secure from loss, it is respectfully entreated that all anxious well-wishers for the rising generation will come forward and aid in the "delightful task" here set forth.

The pleasing welcome accorded to "The British Workwoman" warrants a belief that Parents, Ministers of the Gospel, Sunday-School Teachers, District Visitors, the Masters and Matrons of Orphan and other Public Schools, and the Employers of Boys and Girls, will interest themselves to introduce "THE BRITISH JUVENILE" to the class it is especially intended to help and bless.

* * * Communications and suggestions in support of this undertaking are respectfully solicited, addressed to the Editor, care of Mr. RICHARD WILLOUGHBY, No. 39 Mildmay Road, N.

Published Monthly, price One Penny, beautifully Illustrated,

THE BRITISH WORKWOMAN,

OUT AND AT HOME.

WOMAN is the very centre of all social influence. Earl Shaftesbury has said: "I BELIEVE THAT ANY IMPROVEMENT WHICH COULD BE BROUGHT TO BEAR ON THE MOTHERS, WOULD EFFECT A GREATER AMOUNT OF GOOD THAN ANY THING THAT HAS YET BEEN DONE." And here lies the key to success in every great effort for the religious, moral, and social progress of our country; for the Education of Woman, constitutionally as well as intellectually, is really of more importance than the education of men—since that of the latter is always woman's work.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"Well printed, pictorially illustrated, and will be read with pleasure and interest. We heartily wish it success."
—Sunday-School Teacher's Magazine.

"We hailed the first appearance of 'The Workwoman' as a great boon to man's best friend, and we hope to be able to recommend it for many years to come. The engravings in the second volume are of a superior class: they appeal to the sympathies of the heart through the eyes; whilst the letterpress is of so genial and elevating a character, and printed in such good bold type, we cannot doubt that it will next year become increasingly a favourite, and increasingly useful. The price is one penny monthly, and the annual volume is eightpence."—Westeyan Times.

"A companion issue to 'The British Workman'; but, instead of being devoted to the improvement of the condition of the artisan, it aims to assist his wife and daughters in the struggle through life, and to encourage in exemplary deeds the whole female community. The illustrations are well designed and skilfully executed."—Stamford Mercury.

"Of all the efforts put forth for the improvement of society, we know of none more likely to succeed than this one of introducing to the homes of the labouring classes a periodical specially adapted to the feelings, the duties, and the wants of women. 'The British Workwoman' appears admirably suited to its mission. We can honestly recommend this little messenger, and bid it God-speed to the home and to the heart of every British wife, mother, and maiden."—Worcester News.

"We are sure there is room for 'The British Workwoman' wherever the 'British Workman' is taken in. They should go side by side, and aid each other as man and wife, brother and sister. All the letterpress is to the purpose, and well chosen."—Weekly Record.

in which we have presented for our study life-like glimpses of that Divine One whose character has been beautifully defined as 'glory set in grace,' and 'whom to know is everlasting life.' The illustrations and general 'getting up' of the book we have seldom seen equalled."—Our Own Fireside.

Embellished with upwards of Sixty Portraits on Steel, and more than One Thousand Wood Engravings. In eight Volumes, 8vo.

"Probably the most available and the most informing History of England that we possess. It has one cardinal moral merit; it is a thoroughly patriotic history—the production of an educated Englishman who loves his country, without concealing his country's faults, and without hating the country of a neighbour."—Westminster Review.

London: BRADBURY, EVANS & CO., 11, Bouverie Street.

"The 'English Cyclopædia,' is a work that, as a whole, has no superior, and very few equals of its kind; that, taken by itself, supplies the place of a small library, and, used in a large library, is found to present many points of information that are sought in vain in any other Cyclopædia in the English language."—Quarterly Review.

INTERESTING & AMUSING STORIES

BY

EMINENT AUTHORS.

VOLUME I. WILL APPEAR ON JUNE 1, 1866;

And a new Volume will be published on the first of each following Month.

In announcing

NIMMO'S POPULAR TALES,

The Publisher has to intimate that his intention is to produce, in a series of compact, handy Volumes, suitable for

RAILWAY, SEASIDE, AND GENERAL READING,

A collection of interesting and amusing Stories. Each Volume will contain from Eight to Twelve Stories, by Authors of experience, and will be complete in itself.

The Publisher is of opinion that there are many readers who, during a leisure hour, short railway or steamboat trip, or passing opportunity, hesitate to take up a novel or tale of the usual dimensions, while they would welcome a volume of short and popularly-written stories such as it is now intended to publish; and it is with a view to provide for this class that he has been induced to issue the Popular Tales. The Stories appearing in Nimmo's Popular Tales will be original, or taken from sources at the Publisher's command; and the selection will include Tales of all Countries. It will be the object of the Editor to render the contents of each Volume as diversified as possible.

VOLUME I. TO APPEAR ON JUNE 1,

Will contain, among other Stories,

THE DIAMOND EYES.

THE WRAITH: A SCOTTISH STORY.

JUSTINE: A FRENCH TALE.

* * * This splendid edition of the Common Prayer is considered the choicest production of Messrs. Whittingham's press; it is printed on toned paper and rubricated, and the ornamental borders are among the most delicate and beautiful ever put into a book. So highly prized is it by artists that at the South Kensington and other important Art-schools copies are kept for the use of students.

The above Prayer Book was so costly an affair, that it is not at all likely that any other edition (at the price now asked), can ever appear in competition.

This Book is a most valuable compilation, and it supersedes all additional books,—it includes a Brief Outline of English History—a Course of General History, Ancient and Modern—a complete Series of Lessons on the various branches of Natural Philosophy—a Systematic Course of Natural History—Miscellaneous Lessons on Government, Architecture, Commerce, Painting and Sculpture, Music and the Arts—and an extended Series of Geographical, Chronological, and Scientific Notes and Questions, with extensive Appendices, Roots, &c.

These books have been prepared on the principle that, as is the Lesson Book, such is the instruction. They contain everything necessary to enable the pupil to acquire the knowledge demanded by their lordships' ministers, without being encumbered by extraneous matter. The Lessons are in Grade, and in varied type, with writing Lessons in script type.

"This Pen is the best Pen we have ever tried. By an arrangement of the point, it almost makes the hand run after it, so facile and so pleasant is it."—Greenock Herald.

The Manufacturers of the WAVERLEY PENS beg to draw the attention of the public to the superiority of the Waverley Pen for all purposes of quick writing. The use of the Waverley Pen does not fatigue the hand, though used for many hours at a time. It is the only steel pen that can be used with freedom on rough paper. This Pen has had the largest sale of any pen ever made. Though made only a few months, many millions of them have been sold, and hundreds of satisfactory notices have appeared in the public press. This Pen is patent, and the public are cautioned against buying any without trade mark, "The Sword and the Pen." Traders are cautioned against buying any infringement of this Patent, as they are liable in damages for so doing.

The Court of Session has pronounced an Interlocutor passing a Note of Suspension and Interdict against W. Elgin and Son, for selling a spurious imitation of this Pen—Vide Scotsman, April 20—and actions at law have been raised against other parties for infringement of this Patent.

What a Writer for the Press says of it:—

"PENS.—Bad pens are provocative of—what shall I say? Ill-humour: yes, that is the mildest word I can find to express my meaning. Those who, like myself, scribble for the press, know the value of a good pen; but how to find one has always to me been a more difficult problem than that 'asses' bridge' which puzzled my young brain. I must say, however, that the 'Q.E.D.' of the steel pen problem has at last been made clear. An article has been produced by MACNIVEN & CAMERON of Edinburgh, which bears the name of the 'Waverley Pen,' that must ultimately supersede all others. It possesses all the flexibility and smoothness of the quill, and is the best steel pen I have ever written with. Those who try the 'Waverley' once will, I am convinced, use it ever afterwards. To the great mass of suffering humanity called literary, that eat paper and drink ink, I cannot confer a greater benefit than by recommending to their notice the best steel pen extant for rapid and easy writing."—Newcastle Chronicle.

VOLUME I. OF

THE CRITICAL ENGLISH TESTAMENT,

BEING AN ADAPTATION OF BENDEL'S GNOMON, WITH NUMEROUS NOTES, SHOWING THE PRECISE RESULTS OF MODERN CRITICISM AND EXEGESIS.

EDITED BY

REV. W. L. BLACKLEY, M.A., AND REV. JAMES HAWES, M.A.

THE Publisher is desirous of drawing attention to this important work, the purpose of which is to enable the English reader, with the Authorized Version in his hand, and without any knowledge of Greek, to understand the precise results of modern criticism in revising the text of the New Testament. It seems strange that the English language has been until now without a book containing this information.

The following extract will serve to show the plan of the work:—

"Bengel's principles of interpretation are essentially those which are most approved by the Church of Christ. His method is, avoiding long discussions, to point the reader to the text itself; and by directing his thoughts, and suggesting points of view, to enable him to grasp its full meaning. Hence his work has been the delight of four generations of Christian scholars; but being in Latin it has never reached the mass of the people. A translation without revision would be of little value save to scholars, who already have access to the original. For it was written one hundred and twenty years ago; and more mind and toil have been given to Biblical criticism and exposition since then than in all time before. Their outlines, indeed, have only been drawn more clearly; but many lesser views have been changed, many discoveries made. These often supplement Bengel; and though in his style of exposition, his profound and suggestive anatomy of words and thoughts, he still stands unrivalled—though he anticipated the best general features of the latest commentaries; yet he could not anticipate the detailed results of a century's research and discussion. On the other hand, to rewrite the Gnomon, to reproduce it for to-day, related to the scholarship of 1866 as the original was to that of 1742—he were bold, indeed, who should attempt this. He must unite in himself De Wette's critical sharpness, Tholuck's vast reading, Olshausen's comprehensiveness of view, and Stier or Neander's spiritual insight.

"The chief value of the Gnomon is in its expositions of Scripture. We have striven to increase its value by adding, in the most condensed form, such of the most valuable remarks of the best modern commentators as the plan of the Gnomon admits—those which open the force of the words of Scripture. These are chiefly taken from books not accessible to the student who reads only English; but we have also made use of works which have been translated, and others first written in English, whenever it seemed essential.

"In the critical part more radical revision has been necessary. Bengel's honoured labours gave almost the first impulse to a course of investigation which has since his death revolutionised New Testament criticism, and placed it on a firm basis. The vast accumulations of manuscript evidence which more recent students, especially Tregelles and Tischendorf, have brought to establish the text have rendered many of Bengel's discussions, based on fewer and less reliable witnesses, worthless, save as illustrations of method and facts in the history of criticism. We have therefore reserved the most important of them to answer these ends, and omitted the rest. In their place we have revised the New Testament text throughout, comparing that from which the English version was made with the now generally received text of Tischendorf (last edition), and have noted in the Gnomon every variation which can be expressed in a translation, stating the precise change necessary in our English version to make it correspond with the authentic text of the original."

* * * The Critical English Testament will be completed in three volumes, averaging 750 pages each. Books of this class are, as a rule, high-priced, and adapted to the few rather than to the many. But the Publisher means this Book to be an exception, and has accordingly fixed the price at 6s. a volume.

On June 1st—Vol. II. The Acts and the Pastoral Epistles.

On July 1st—Vol. III. The other Epistles and the Apocalypse.

CITOYENNE JACQUELINE:

A Woman's Lot in the Great French Revolution.

By SARAH TYTLER.

From the PALL MALL GAZETTE.

"It requires in these days unusual courage to venture on an historical novel, and to succeed demands both unusual pains and unusual power. . . . But this story has been fitted for the new condition of things by unusual pains and unusual power. Its characters are more than vague impersonations of their time, they are sharply-defined individuals, and its style is dramatic. The author charms us immediately into keen interest in the scenes, and sympathy with the characters of the story, which shows a power of catching and reproducing to the life French piquancy and levity."

From the READER.

"Fair and impartial to all, the characters stand out in marked individuality, living and breathing creatures, while the scenery is as delicately true to nature as if a Gainsborough or a Linnell had painted it. It is a charming book."

From the GLOBE.

"This is no common story. It is written with great care, and will be read with much pleasure. We heartily recommend it for its gentleness, its passion, and its truthfulness to human nature."

From the BRITISH QUARTERLY REVIEW.

"One great secret of Miss Tytler's success is the almost perfect manner in which she has imbued her mind and style with the ideas and feelings of French life. A piece of more thorough and conscientious literary workmanship has rarely come before us. . . . The dramatic representation of her personages is perfect."

From the PRESS.

"Miss Tytler brings that terror of history, the French Revolution, before us with almost as vivid an effect as Mr. Carlyle himself produces. The authoress admirably shows the ennobling effect on almost every class of character of the suffering and peril of the time. The fierce fire of events annealed the steel of men's hearts, and burnt the dross out of the gold of woman's nature. Watteau himself could not more exquisitely have painted the Tour de Faye and its inhabitants, aristocratic and un-aristocratic. Monsieur and Madame de Faye are perfect portraits of the fine old patrician race; and how full of life are Mademoiselle Jacqueline, restless as Sterne's starling, and her high-coloured maid, Babette. Not less admirable are the Sart family at the auberge, the two sons, Michel and Jonquille, being definite pictures of manhood, such as George Eliot might paint. And, as in Monsieur de Faye, is sketched a type of a class whose natures were 'leavened with the eccentric half-sweet sourness of Montaigne,' so the young chevalier, Jacqueline's destined husband, has the old Bayard blood in him, but embittered by the 'yeast of Rochefoucauld.' Again, Madame de Croi, the young widow, who, by right of widowhood and knowledge of the world, treats Jacqueline with humiliating condescension, is capitally brought out. Of her Madame de Faye acutely says, 'Petronille de Croi is like a financier's daughter, she seeks to shine, she struggles to rule. Ah, how low that is! . . . Chut! I can hear the creaking of the joints of the young woman's mind.' . . . We pronounce 'Citoyenne Jacqueline' superior to any, except three or four of the novels of the age."

From the MORNING STAR.

"This is a story entirely out of the ordinary range of our present fiction."

From the LITERARY CHURCHMAN.

"'Citoyenne Jacqueline' is a most graceful and charming story, written in a clear, sweet, delicate style."

From the ECLECTIC REVIEW.

"Miss Tytler has stepped at once into a high place among the few writers of fiction, whose pages are as healthful and helpful as they are rich in observation and genius."

From the ILLUSTRATED TIMES.

"This three-volume tale is not an ordinary 'novel.' It is a mind of no common truthfulness, which, having submitted itself to no common discipline in the way of preparation, has produced this story. The charming reality of the scenery, within doors and without, and the minute consistency of the conceptions of character, are beyond praise."

From the SPECTATOR.

"Not only is this tale one of deep interest and of great pictorial power in reference to the scenery and the society it depicts, but it is long since we have read any in which the sketches of character are more delicately outlined or sustained with more uniform skill. Miss Tytler is fair to every class, and has given us good instead of bad specimens of almost all the classes engaged in the Great Revolution without concealing the radical weakness and selfishness which undermined their strength. . . . Every stroke is refined, and almost every stroke tells. It is a story that not only interests us in the perusal, but that interests us still more in turning over the leaves a second and a third time, to catch the touches which we had missed in the first interest of the tale. There is vivacity as well as perfect clearness in the style, pathos that speaks through the sense of beauty, and therefore shows no strain or effort in its sentiment, and a depth of insight into all forms of enthusiasm, even when distorted into the foulest cruelty, which renders the picture of those almost incredible times not only more distinct, but less incredible and less poignantly painful than they are wont to seem. The French Revolution is apt to look to modern readers more like a chapter out of the Apocalypse than out of human history. And Mr. Carlyle, by his wonderful gorgeousness of colouring and cloudiness of outline, has rather strengthened than weakened the impression. The pictures of this story, while they give even a keener sense of the unrighteousness and lust which were at the source of the Revolution, seem to justify it to history better than all Mr. Carlyle's opulence of pictorial insight, by showing how its fires tempered the true steel in all classes of natures, patrician or plebeian, high or low. . . . There is real genius in the book."

A SUMMER IN SKYE.

BY ALEXANDER SMITH.

From the SATURDAY REVIEW.

"Mr. Smith has great command of language. Every page displays ingenious expressions, highly wrought comparisons, minute descriptions. 'A Summer in Skye' is to us very interesting indeed."

From the READER.

"We can recommend 'A Summer in Skye' as an able and interesting work, from which it will be the reader's own fault if he does not rise with many new ideas. . . . With the exception of Mr. Ruskin and Mr. Kingsley, we should be puzzled where to go amongst living authors for better word-painting."

From the NONCONFORMIST.

"There are passages in the present volume which show the author's marvellous power of reproducing at will the magnificent effects of mountain scenery—passages in which a play of fancy and a true poetic insight strongly reinforce an illustration already presented with great facility of expression and rich colouring."

From the MORNING STAR.

"The author has thrown over Skye the halo of a mind at once practical and strongly sensitive to every kind of beauty; and the result is that we have a book which combines the delightful excitement of a good romance with the no less powerful charms that pertain to truthful and vivid description."

From the INVERNESS COURIER.

" . . . Since Christopher North's time there has been no greater landscape painter in words than Mr. Smith, and the 'Summer in Skye' is by far his best effort in this branch of literature."

From the DAILY NEWS.

"Mr. Alexander Smith speaks of Boswell's Journal as 'delicious reading'; his own work, though after a very different fashion, affords delicious reading also. His egotism is never offensive; it is often very charming. If the traveller is sometimes lost in the essayist, who will not prefer an Elia to a Pennant?"

Illustrations by J. E. MILLAIS, R.A., and others.

STUDIES FOR STORIES

FROM GIRLS' LIVES.

From the ATHENEUM.

"Simple in style, warm with human affection, and written in faultless English, these five stories are studies for the artist, sermons for the thoughtful, and a rare source of delight for all who can find pleasure in really good works of prose fiction. . . . They are prose poems, carefully meditated and exquisitely touched in by a teacher ready to sympathize with every joy and sorrow."

From the SPECTATOR.

"There could not be a better book to put into the hands of young ladies."

From the FALL MALL GAZETTE.

"Each of these studies is a drama in itself, illustrative of the operation of some particular passion—such as envy, misplaced ambition, sentimentalism, indolence, jealousy. In all of them the actors are young girls, and we cannot imagine a better book for young ladies."

From the CHURCHMAN.

"We have rarely happened upon a book which has satisfied our critical taste, and enlisted our sympathies, so much as these charming 'Studies for Stories.'"

From the ECLECTIC REVIEW.

"These 'Studies for Stories' are graceful and elegant, and something far more and better. They show a crystalline faultlessness of language, and a clear and charming appreciation of nature. A more graceful present for a young lady we could scarcely expect to find."

From the LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW.

"These are very charming stories, and our readers can hardly do better than make choice of them for presents to their daughters."

THE RESOURCES and PROSPECTS of AMERICA, Ascertained during a Visit to the States in the Autumn of 1865. By Sir S. MORTON PETO, Bart., M.P.

"It deals entirely with the material and commercial capabilities of the country, and, as these are points on which it is almost impossible to take too sanguine a view, the book is likely to be equally acceptable on both sides of the Atlantic. It is divided into eight sections, comprising Population, Agriculture, Manufacture, Minerals, Commerce, Railroads, the South and its Future, and Finance, and furnishes with regard to each facts and statistics later than any yet represented, and which are set forth with the clearness and skill of a practical mind."—Times, April 12, 1866.

Post 8vo, 7s. 6d.

"THE LIFE and LIGHT of MEN." By JOHN YOUNG, LL.D. (Edin.), Author of "The Christ of History."

Now ready, with 70 Illustrations, small 4to, 14s.

EASTWARD. By Norman Macleod, D.D. One of Her Majesty's Chaplains.

"It is the most enjoyable book on the Holy Land we have ever read."—Nonconformist.
 "We have derived much pleasure from the perusal of a narrative which is at times as serious as a minister can make anything, and occasionally as amusing as a genuine humorist can really be. Were we to search the country, we doubt whether such a genial travelling companion as Dr. Macleod could be found, and many will delight in travelling 'Eastward' with him. . . . The general reader will probably learn more from Dr. Macleod's way of describing than he could from the most precise explanation and enunciations of the scientific prosers."—Press.
 "Dr. Macleod's account of his travels is both entertaining and instructive."—Times.

THE PARABLES, Read in the Light of the Present Day. By THOMAS GUTHRIE, D.D.

2 vols., fcp. 8vo, 12s.

ALFRED HAGART'S HOUSEHOLD. By ALEXANDER SMITH, Author of "A Life Drama," &c.

"The author paints with the most ordinary colours, but he has Opie's receipt for mixing them 'with brains.' It is his skill not only in selecting the most attractive and suggestive traits of character, but in expressing them in the most graceful and suggestive language, that gives unusual interest to 'Alfred Hagart's Household.' The author has the poet's power of translating tersely what he interprets from nature, of condensing vague feelings into tangible and graceful shape, and of mirroring by a simile what description would render inadequately. . . . Mr. Smith invests the simplest every-day characters and incidents with a freshness and grace which charm us."—Fall Mail Gazette.

"In its way it is a sort of prose idyl, as dramatic in its details as 'Hermann and Dorothea.'"—Athenæum.
 "This is a most interesting and delightful novel—a bit of real, genuine, palpitating human life."—Caledonian Mercury.

"We want novelists with a touch of poetry in them. We want novelists whose love of the poetic will preserve them from sensational absurdities. Such a novelist we find in Mr. Smith."—Press.
 "No one can read 'Alfred Hagart's Household' without a sense of keen enjoyment."—Guardian.

THE WORKMAN AND THE FRANCHISE.

Demy 8vo, cloth, 7s. 6d.

CHAPTERS from ENGLISH HISTORY, on the REPRESENTATION and EDUCATION of the PEOPLE. By FREDERICK DENISON MAURICE, M.A.

PEOPLE'S EDITION, in Smaller Type. Crown 8vo, 1s. 6d.

"This is a book whose influence on all the great formative principles which go to determine political character will only be underrated by the shallowest and most ignorant criticism."—Spectator.
 "No other clergyman has done anything like so much as Mr. Maurice to raise the standard of the intelligence of the working-man or to promote his general welfare. When, therefore, he exposes a deliberate opinion that the country would gain by admitting the higher working-class within the pale of the franchise, important testimony is delivered by a most important witness."—Athenæum.

Demy 4to. 16s. cloth gilt.

MILLAIS'S ILLUSTRATIONS. A Collection of Drawings on Wood. By JOHN EVERETT MILLAIS, R.A.

"Foremost among the Illustrated Books deserves to be named Mr. Millais' 'Collected Illustrations.' Mr. Millais has qualities as an artist with which few authors can dare a comparison. What these qualities are may be inferred from the fact that here are his best illustrations collected together, separate from the text to which they belonged. They are works of art that need no letterpress—no comment: they speak for themselves, and have an interest by themselves. They nearly all display extraordinary power, and some of them are in their way quite perfect."—Times.

THE COLLECTED WRITINGS OF EDWARD IRVING. Edited by his Nephew, the Rev. G. CARLYLE, M.A.

* * More than one-half of these Writings are now printed for the first time.

"Edward Irving had the power of reaching the true sublime, and the English language can show no more magnificent specimens of religious eloquence than those that are contained in these Collected Writings."
—Times.

"Irving, almost alone among recent men, lived his sermons and preached his life. His words, more than those of any other modern speaker, were 'life passed through the fire of thought.' He said out his inmost heart, and this it is that makes his writings read like a prolonged and ideal biography."—The Saturday Review.

"The greatest preacher the world has ever seen since apostolic times."—Blackwood's Magazine.

NOTES ON SPEAKING AND SPELLING. By HENRY ALFORD, D.D., Dean of Canterbury.

"Very sensible and valuable."—National Review.

"This volume ought to be well studied by writers and speakers."—Morning Post.

"A volume full of suggestive hints to speakers and writers. The Dean's stray notes are very amusing, and very instructive too."—Guardian.

"The public ought to be much obliged to Dean Alford for this useful and entertaining work."—Edinburgh Review.

MEDITATIONS: IN ADVENT, ON CREATION, ON PROVIDENCE. By HENRY ALFORD, D.D., Dean of Can- terbury.

Second Edition, Crown 8vo, 7s. 6d.

LETTERS from ABROAD. By HENRY ALFORD, D.D., Dean of Canterbury.

"Well worn as is the subject of Italian travel, Dr. Alford has managed to produce a work of great freshness. He is aided by his really remarkable power of description. Of the present state of Rome and of religion there, he gives a striking account, and not, as we believe, the least over-coloured."—Spectator.

"As the season approaches, and the highway of Italian travel will be thronged again, we are sure our readers who contemplate a trip to Rome and the South, to Central or Northern Italy, will find here a very kind, genial, and entertaining companion, who will show them what to see, and how to see it. At the same time, stay-at-home travellers will read the volume with interest; and the descriptions of the sins and shames of Rome—still Pagan Rome—will we trust confirm in many minds a hearty determination to resist the advent of Romish imposture in our own country."—Eclectic Review.

Fourth Edition, containing many Pieces now first collected, Small 8vo, 5s.

THE POETICAL WORKS of HENRY ALFORD, Dean of Canterbury.

Crown 8vo, 7s. 6d.

SERMONS AND EXPOSITIONS. By the late JOHN ROBERTSON, D.D., Glasgow Cathedral.

"Dr. Robertson had not a superior among the Scotch Clergy; for manly grasp of mind, for pith and point in treating his subject, he had hardly an equal. Let it be added that a more genial, kindly, liberal-minded and honest man never walked this earth."—Fraser's Magazine.

Crown 8vo, 7s. 6d.

THE VICARIOUS SACRIFICE, GROUNDED ON PRINCIPLES OF UNIVERSAL OBLIGATION. By HORACE BUSHNELL, D.D., Author of "Nature and the Supernatural," &c., &c.

"One of the most exhaustive and powerfully written works on the atonement which has been published in our day. No more forcible or effective attempt to set forth the real doctrines of the New Testament on this central truth of the Christian system has ever been made."—Morning Star.

NATURE and the SUPERNATURAL,

HENRY HOLBEACH: Student in Life and Philosophy. A Narrative and a Discussion. With letters to Mr. Matthew Arnold, Mr. Alexander Bain, Mr. Thomas Carlyle, Mr. Arthur Helps, Mr. G. H. Lewes, Rev. H. L. Mansel, Rev. F. D. Maurice, Mr. John Stuart Mill, Rev. Dr. J. H. Newman, and others.

"Mr. Holbeach's volumes have remarkable merits, nor are they like so many books of the kind, dull and wearisome. The writer can enliven his subject, and possesses some quiet humour."—Athenaeum.

"The brave manner in which mere utilitarianism, materialism, positivism, and authority are grappled with, convinces the reader that he is in the hands of one who has read extensively and thought profoundly on all the terrible questions of the day."—British Quarterly Review.

"The author seems to be a man of sweet and serious mind, quick to be moved by great ideas, and with native affinities with what is delicate and exquisite. The book is one which will speak pleasantly to the cultivated reader."—Pall Mall Gazette.

"In the picture of the obscure Puritan colony there are touches worthy of George Eliot."—Spectator.

"We have never been more puzzled than in the attempt to give our readers a just idea of this remarkable book."—Guardian.

THE GRAVER THOUGHTS of a COUNTRY PARSON. By the Author of "Recreations of a Country Parson."

THEOLOGY AND LIFE. By the Rev. E. H. PLUMPTRE, M.A. Professor of Divinity, King's College, London.

"There is a degree of freshness and of originality about Mr. Plumptre's sermons, which is wanting in a large majority of discourses. They contain the ring of true metal, and are of intrinsic value independently of their suitableness to the immediate purpose of their delivery."—Press.

PROFESSOR PLUMPTRE'S TRANSLATION OF THE TRAGEDIES OF SOPHOCLES.

WITH A BIOGRAPHICAL ESSAY. Two Vols., crown 8vo, 12s.

"Let us say at once that Professor Plumptre has not only surpassed the previous translators of Sophocles, but has produced a work of singular merit, not less remarkable for its felicity than its fidelity; a really readable and enjoyable version of the old plays."—Pall Mall Gazette.

IMPORTANT TO BOOKBINDERS.

WILLIAM FITCH'S PATENT ALLIANCE CLOTH

FOR BOOKBINDING, & OTHER PURPOSES,
IN ALL COLOURS AND PATTERNS,

At a considerably Lower Price.

W. FITCH begs to call the especial attention of the Trade to the above article, which will be found, for usefulness and strength, equal to Bookbinders' Cloth, and far superior in quality, inasmuch as the surface is perfectly Waterproof, so that damp will not affect the polish, either in working or afterwards.

By a patent process, a combination of paper pulp and cloth is effected; and when coated with waterproof colour and solution, becomes firmer and stronger than ordinary cloth—presenting at the same time a cloth face in every respect equal to the kinds now in use, and much cheaper.

W. FITCH has to thank the Trade for the extensive use of the JAPANESE PAPER, which has been found by those who have used it to answer all the purposes intended. But the Patent Alliance Cloth is intended for a superior class of work, where more strength is required; while the Japanese Paper is adapted for all the purposes set forth in the Testimonials.

Testimonial from a Bookbinder of Thirty-five Years' experience.

"I have tested your Japanese Paper, and am well satisfied with the result. I consider it answers the purpose of Binders' Cloth for most kinds of work. It is particularly adapted for binding small editions of works, say 32mos., 18mos., and such publications as the shilling novels; also for covering memorandum books, music books, sketch books, small albums, blotting books and cases, and for siding half-bound work; it is also nearly as strong as cloth, takes the gilding and blocking quite as well, and is also waterproof; and, above all, one-third the cost of Binders' Cloth."

BOOKS FOR SALE.

UNDER this heading we purpose inserting such rare and curious books as Booksellers in one part of the country may find unsaleable in their own locality, but which those elsewhere may be glad to possess. Books overbought, or bought by mistake, may thus be disposed of, but it is not intended for common every-day publications, which may, or ought to be found, in every shop. Without any wish to act the part of censor, it will be the Editor's duty to see that legitimate use is made of this list, and that, as a general rule, only such books are admitted as are likely to be sold by means of this advertisement. The list from each Advertiser must not exceed three books, the titles of which should if possible be each compressed into one line. No charge will at present be made for the insertion.

BOOKS WANTED.

Letters, stating price and condition, to be forwarded to the Advertisers.

No charge being made to Subscribers for inserting a moderate number of "Wants," it is but fair that as little trouble as possible should be given, although some appear to think that they cannot give too much, and others that they cannot possibly write too badly for the printers, nor give too much trouble to the Editor by their orthographical and bibliographical blunders. The following rules should therefore be observed:—1st. No list should include more than five books. 2. The list should be written plainly, in the same manner as the "Wants" are printed. 3. No books which have been advertised for in any other publication are admissible. 4. Catalogues wanted, or Books bearing upon specific subjects mentioned generally, and not by name, or more books than five, must be paid for at the rate of sixpence each article, and stamps sent with the list. 5. Lists must be received by the 25th of the month. 6. The Editor holds himself at liberty to reject or leave out any book or list he may think proper.

* * As any infraction of these rules may lead to the rejection of the entire list, and thus cause delay and disappointment, Subscribers are requested to observe this notice.

Each volume contains a Memoir, and is illustrated with a Portrait of the Author, engraved on Steel, and numerous full-page Illustrations on Wood, from designs by eminent Artists.

 This Series of Books, from the very superior manner in which it is produced, is at once the cheapest and handsomest edition of the poets in the market. The volumes form elegant and appropriate Presents as School Prizes and Gift Books, either in cloth or morocco.

"They are a marvel of cheapness, some of the volumes extending to as many as 700 and even 900 pages, printed on toned paper in a beautifully clear type. Add to this that they are profusely illustrated with wood engravings, are elegantly and tastefully bound, and that they are published at 3s. 6d. each, and our recommendation of them is complete."—Scotsman.

TRADE AND LITERARY GOSSIP.

PATERNOSTER-ROW. — Another well-known name has, within the last few weeks, disappeared, that of Messrs. Aylott and Son, who have removed their business to 97, St. Paul's-road, Islington, Mr. S. W. Partridge having taken their premises.

Mr. John Snow has transferred his business to his eldest Son, who has entered into partnership with Mr. F. W. Gogerley, many years managing assistant to Mr. Snow. The business will be carried on at No. 2, Ivy-lane, Paternoster-row, under the firm of John Snow & Co.

Mr. W. Dickes will shortly remove from 5, Old Fish-street, to his new premises in the Farringdon-road.

Mr. GRAY (of Croydon) informs us that he has recently disposed of the business of Miss Stevens, at No. 12, King's College-road, St. John's Wood, to Mr. W. Berdoe. Also, Mr. Gray has been employed to transfer the old-established business of Mr. V. Hills, of Newton Abbot, Devonshire, to Miss Stevens, who removed to Newton on quitting St. John's Wood.

Mr. Holmes has recently sold Mr. J. A. Rowbottom's business, Irongate, Derby, to Mr. Carter, late of Manchester. Also, Mr. Bushell's business, "The Burlington Bazaar," Old Kent-road, to Mr. Luccock. And the old-established business belonging to Messrs. Burlingham and Co., Cloak-lane, Cannon-street, to Messrs. R. G. Rist and Co., 49, Old Bailey, where, in future, the business will be carried on.

DERBY.—The business sold by Mr. J. A. Rowbottom to Mr. Carter, does not in any way affect the business still carried on by Mr. W. H. Rowbottom (eldest son of the late Mr. W. Rowbottom) at No. 8, Wardwick, Derby.

EDINBURGH.—The publishing business of the late Mr. James Nichol will be continued by his eldest son, Mr. John D. Nichol, who for sixteen years has taken an active part in the management. The business will be carried on as heretofore, under the name of James Nichol.

Mr. Tegg has in the press a carefully collated edition of the "Sermons of Henry Smith," the Puritan divine, who was known in his lifetime as "the Silver-tongued Preacher." A Life by Dr. Thomas Fuller will be prefixed.

Messrs. Nisbet and Co. have purchased the stock and copyright of the best edition of Scott's "Commentary on the Bible," that recently published by Messrs. Macintosh and Co.; this they are offering to the trade at a low price. Messrs. Nisbet are also issuing a new edition of Matthew Henry's Commentary.

The author of "Adam Bede" announces a new book to be published in June by Messrs. Blackwood, "Felix Holt, the Radical."

Messrs. Ward and Lock have commenced the publication of a cheap edition of Miss Braddon's novels by the issue of "Lady Audley's Secret" at 2s. Notwithstanding the large number of copies of this work already sold in various forms, we are told that nearly 15,000 copies of this edition have already been disposed of. Miss Braddon is said to be now engaged in making arrangements for bringing out a new magazine, of which she is to be the editor.

Mr. Nimmo announces a series of monthly volumes of "Popular Tales," which will probably command a large sale. Each volume is to consist of several short tales, long enough to read while on a journey, or to take up when we have a few leisure minutes. They are to be printed in large type, and on good paper.

A new edition of Professor Miller's little book, entitled "Physiology in Harmony with the Bible respecting the value and right observance of the Sabbath," has been issued by Messrs. Johnstone and Hunter, of Edinburgh.

The second part of Mr. H. G. Bohn's General Catalogue, has been issued. It contains lists of Greek and Latin Miscellanies, English, Foreign, and Oriental MSS., Chinese drawings and books, and many rare and curious drawings in volumes and portfolios. Among the latter are the sketches made for Horace Walpole, by Mr. Chute, the architect, for the designs of Strawberry Hill; and a set of 181 pencil drawings of Dutch landscape scenery, by Van Goyen, the painter.

Mr. Mackenzie, of Glasgow, promises a very important work upon one of the most interesting subjects of the day, "Shipbuilding: Theoretical and Practical," to be edited by, perhaps, the most competent man that could be found, Professor Rankine. Judging from the published table of contents, we imagine that it will go far to exhaust the subject. The work is to be completed in one volume, and will be copiously illustrated.

Liverpool rejoices in the possession of two periodicals, which are certainly unique in their titles, the Porcupine and the Tomahawk. If a third be started its title will, no doubt, be the Bowie Knife. The editor of the Porcupine is very fierce against the Tomahawk, but the wit of both is of the shallowest kind.

Messrs. Boosey and Co. have lately published Mozart's "Requiem Mass," Gounod's "S. Cecilia" (Messe Solennelle) and twenty "Christy Minstrels' Songs," in his shilling series, all admirably printed in clear music type; in the first two cases the Italian and English words side by side. The "Old Songs of Ireland" are also issued by the same publishers in a cheap and attractive form.

Her Majesty has graciously been pleased to accept a copy of Mr. Washington Moon's new poem "Elijah the Prophet."

Messrs. Longman are about to issue "The Billiard Book," an exhaustive treatise on the game of Billiards, by Captain Crawley, illustrated by a hundred and fifty diagrams and engravings on wood.

In our notice of Mr. Tegg's "Mangnall's Questions," we stated that the information had been brought down to the death of Louis Philippe. We should, more correctly, have said to the death of Leopold, King of the Belgians.

THE BRITISH WORKWOMAN, a monthly magazine for girls, has reached its thirty-second number, and we understand that its sale is steadily increasing.

Messrs. Dulau have issued the eighth annual catalogue of French books. Beside the volumes for 1865, it also contains a list of the newspapers and periodicals published in France during that year, forming a very compact and useful reference book for litterateurs and book buyers.

BADLY-PRINTED BOOKS.—We have at various times drawn attention to well-printed books, but in the interest of both trade and literature we now feel compelled to raise our voice against a most extensive series of badly-printed books issued by three of the most respectable establishments in the kingdom. The books we refer to being the Bibles, Prayer-books, and Church Services issued by her Majesty's printers and by the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge. All the smaller books, with scarcely an exception as regards press work, are but little better than the books issued by the successors of the late Mr. Catnach. We are not speaking without full inquiry, and have now before us three Church Services, one from each establishment. The prices vary from 21s. to 65s., but we find that the price of the sheets of any one is but a few pence, and that it is absolutely impossible at the present time to procure a well-printed book. The reason given is that these books only pay when printed upon the cheap and nasty principle. This must be untrue. There is a demand for cheap books, as cheap as they can be had; but there is also a large demand for the same books in better bindings, and for this purpose it matters very little whether the price be 10d. or 2s. When Mr. Collingwood printed for Oxford, and Mr. J. W. Parker printed for Cambridge, and when the late Mr. Andrew Spottiswoode began to compete with the former, there was a race for quality. Those days are passed, but we hope not for ever; and now that attention has been drawn to the subject, we trust that the three privileged presses will try to do something to preserve their ancient reputation. We shall be glad to record any improvement.

The Argosy. Vol. I. STRAHAN & Co. In these days of respectable mediocrity, a magazine should be worth reading which numbers among its contributors such prose writers as Anthony Trollope, Henry Kingsley, and Frances Power Cobbe; and such verse writers as Jean Ingelow, Robert Buchanan, Isa Craig, and Sydney Dobell, which has a continuous story in the Fielding vein by so practical a writer as Charles Reade, and various illustrations by some among the best of modern draughtsmen and engravers. Possessing these advantages, the "Argosy" is worth reading, and, to the credit of readers be it said, enjoys a very large circulation. The first half of "Griffith Gaunt" gives promise of an excellent novel; and the several tales, poems, and sketches which go to make up the volume are of a character superior to the "padding" usual in monthly periodicals. Altogether we consider the "Argosy" fully up to the mark of its first promise. Nay, it exceeds it; for it has wisely got rid of the puerilities of Jason Jones, whose second-hand jokes were sadly out of place in the first two numbers. Bound in gold and scarlet, the six monthly numbers of this magazine make a handsome volume.

The British Boy. No. 2, for June. (Hall & Co.)—A very attractive penny magazine for boys, with a profusion of illustrations capitally engraved, and well calculated to secure the suffrages of intelligent youth. Amusement and instruction are blended in the literary portion, although some parents may object to their sons being initiated into the mysteries of punning and conjuring. For these, witty sayings and repartees by eminent men and natural magic might be advantageously substituted.

Text Papers.—These texts issued by the Sunday School Union, are published in connection with the series of lessons designed to promote the study of the Scriptures. Each paper consists of a verse, with blank lines in which the pupils are expected to insert explanatory or confirmatory texts—a most useful method of familiarizing the minds of the young with the main principles of Biblical knowledge.

Illustrations of Scripture History from the Monuments of Egypt, Chaldea, Assyria, and Babylonia. LOTHIAN & Co. The compiler of this little volume having failed to find any cheap book containing illustrations of Bible history, bethought him that such a publication would be useful to Sunday-school pupils and teachers. He set to work to supply the want, and by a diligent perusal of Layard's "Nineveh," Rawlinson's and Wilkinson's "Herodotus," Dr. Pusey's "Lectures on Daniel," and other erudite and expensive works, has succeeded in producing a very readable digest of the conclusions arrived at by modern research.

The Kings and Queens of England. (Religious Tract Society.)—These consist of medallion portraits of our British sovereigns, with pictures of remarkable scenes, and brief descriptive accounts of the principal events in the reign of each royal personage, from William the Norman to Queen Victoria. The portraits and pictures are delicately printed in colours by the Baxterian method.

The Contributions of Q. Q. By Jane Taylor. (Jackson, Walford, and Hodder.)—Originally written for the "Youth's Magazine," these essays, after having maintained their popularity for nearly half a century, appear in a thirteenth edition; and, it is not too much to assert, that their old charm is as vivid as ever.

MR. BEETON'S PUBLICATIONS.—In addition to his usual monthly issues, Mr. Beeton has lately published several rather important volumes. Among these we may mention the following:—

Runnymede and Lincoln Fair: a story of the Great Charter. By the late J. G. Edgar, one of the few writers for boys who depended for his effects upon the relation of historical scenes, rather than upon highly-wrought sensational incidents. The "colour of the time" has been well sustained throughout this stirring and well-written tale, and the wood pictures of ancient London and mediæval England, are drawn with a free and graphic pen. Numerous full-page engravings by Robert Dudley, and heraldic headings and tailpieces, by Harry Rogers, illustrate the volume, which is prefaced by a coloured sketch of King John signing Magna Charta in the midst of the barons, and a facsimile of the great seal attached to that important document.

Silas the Conjuror is a characteristic tale, by James Greenwood, the now well-known author of a "Night in the Workhouse." Boys who are fond of things theatrical, startling adventures, and strange incidents, will find in the travels and perils of Silas, all the elements which contribute to the charm which such books exercise over the minds of young readers. The woodcut illustrations to the volume are inserted in the text, and add in no slight degree to the pleasure of the reader, who is carried from scene to scene, and from adventure to adventure, with surprising rapidity. Mr. Greenwood seldom lingers to moralize or elaborate; he bestows but scant attention upon natural scenery or events unconnected with the immediate anecdote of his story, but pursues the course of his narrative with that straightforward purpose all boys admire, and, which indeed, distinguishes stories written for youth from those intended for readers of more advanced years.

Miss Crosby's Matchmaking is a tale for girls, by Miss Marie O'Hara, abounding in natural and delicately drawn incidents of domestic life, with just enough of complication in its plot to make it interesting. The principal scenes are laid in Ireland, and many of the characters are invested with that sort of touching sentiment, half fun and half sadness, which we have the authority of Lever and other Irish novelists for believing to be one of the peculiar characteristics of the peasant class in the sister island.

On the Cam is a series of lectures on the system of education pursued by students at Cambridge, and the kind of life which is passed by young men during their matriculation at that celebrated university, together with numerous architectural and antiquarian notes, and shrewd remarks on life in England. The author is the son of the celebrated Edward Everett, for several years American ambassador in England, and the lectures were delivered at the Lowell Institute, in Boston, in the early part of 1864. The author is a shrewd observer, and his remarks, considered as those of a visitor to the Old Country, who had, during a somewhat lengthy residence at this University, ample opportunities for studying the peculiarities of college life, will be read with interest. Mr. William Everett was a bachelor-scholar at Trinity College, where he took a good degree, and was at the head of the second class in the Classical Tripos. Moreover, like his father, he is an orator of no mean fame, and a writer of no slight ability. In preparing the work for English readers, nothing has been done beyond the excision of a few trifling remarks, fitted rather for a transatlantic than a British audience.

A BATCH OF OLD SCOTTISH POETS.—It is pleasant to turn, now and again, from the works of modern authors to the writings of those old worthies who amused and instructed our ancestors. This is more particularly the case with the poets, because it especially belongs to the domain of poetry to embody images which are familiar to the universal mind. The form and fashion of prose writings may change with the hour, and vary with the taste of readers; but poetry is ever new and fresh, and always certain, if not to obtain sudden popularity, at least to delight the judicious few and gradually to win the suffrages of the many. Looked at from this point of view, the republication of the works of standard poets is a welcome sign of advance in popular taste; and we are glad to find that the Scottish publishers are turning their attention to the production of new editions of old poets.

Lying before us are several volumes of poems recently reprinted by Messrs. Fullarton, Mr. Nimmo, and Mr. Paterson, of Edinburgh; and the reflection naturally occurs that publishers would hardly adventure their capital in such reproductions if there were not a public ready and willing to appreciate and patronize the laudable and enterprising spirit which suggests them.

To Scotchmen the name of William Dunbar is as well known as is that of Chaucer to Englishmen; and though he wrote no single poem which can compare for power and variety with that of the "Canterbury Tales," he yet produced numerous short pieces which will always find admirers on both sides of the Tweed. A re-issue, therefore, of Laing and Forbes' edition of his poems was considered desirable, and the work is now produced in two volumes, with David Laing's original memoir, and some supplementary verses not included in the original edition. To book-buyers and lovers of Scottish song these volumes will be additionally welcome from the fact that they have practically been long out of the market, and that an opportunity is now afforded them of completing their sets of the British minstrels, by placing the volumes on their shelves beside the works of the fathers of English poetry. Dunbar flourished in the reign of James the Fourth and James the Fifth, that is, about the middle of the fifteenth and the beginning of the sixteenth centuries. He was probably the "Rhymer of Scotland" to whom Henry VII. presented the sum of £6 13s. 4d. in 1501, on the occasion of the poet's visit to England. He was also awarded a pension by James the Fifth, of £80 a year, "to be paid at the stated times of Martinmas and Whitsuntide, during his life or until he be promoted to a benefice of £100, or above." But Dunbar never obtained the benefice to which his position in the church would seem to have entitled him; and there is some doubt whether he enjoyed his pension to the day of his death, which took place about the year 1520, when, it is supposed, he was about sixty years of age.

The new edition, issued by Mr. Nimmo, of the Helenore; or, the Fortunate Shepherdess of Alexander Ross, will also take its place among choice reproductions. Ross was born in 1699 in the parish of Kincardine, county of Aberdeen, of humble parents, who, however, gave him sufficient education to enable him to set up as a school-master, in which position of life he remained till his death in 1784, at the patriarchal age of eighty-five. Besides the "Fortunate Shepherdess," he wrote various other poems, all in the broad Scotch dialect. He was known to, and friendly with, Allan Ramsay, Drummond, Dr. Beattie, and other writers of his day. Of his principal poem Beattie says:—"Many genuine strokes of nature and passion, and many touches of picturesque description, are to be seen in this work. . . . In his songs there is an easy turn of humour and versification; some of them have long been known to the common people of this country, who sing them with much satisfaction and good humour." Prefixed to the poems is a good memoir of Ross, and an account of Glenesk, the scene of the principal incidents in the poem of "Helenore;" together with a glossary of words, which will be found very useful to the English reader.

Messrs. Fullarton have produced new editions, in uniform volumes, of the poems of Tannahill and Ferguson, who are contemporary, though the latter was twenty-four years old when the former was born in 1774. It is unnecessary to say anything of the special characteristics of these poets, so well are they known and so thoroughly are their works appreciated both by Englishmen and Scotchmen wherever the English language is spoken. Indeed there have been published as many as twenty-two editions of Ferguson's poems, and no fewer than five original memoirs of the poet, besides many short sketches prefixed to separate publications of his songs. Ferguson began by writing English verses, but he found his true vocation when he followed in the footsteps of Ross, whom he greatly admired, and produced poems and ballads in his native dialect. Not so, however, with Tannahill. Having early in life removed from his native Kilmarnock to Preston in Lancashire, his best songs are as much English as Scottish in character. This may, perhaps, be due somewhat to his acquaintance with Robert Archibald Smith, the English composer of the music to many of Tannahill's verses. Be this as it may, Tannahill's songs became in their way almost as popular as those of Robert Burns; and their inherent beauty and harmony still keep them fresh in the public ear. To both these volumes are prefixed original memoirs; while to Tannahill's works there is added a memoir of Smith, and "Clyde," a poem by John Wilson, a Lanarkshire writer, born in 1720.

The Life and Works of Allan Ramsay have been issued by the same publishers, with his memoir by George Chalmers, an essay on his genius and writings by Lord Woodhouselee, and an appendix relative to the life and posthumous reputation of the poet. The present edition of Allan Ramsay's poetical works is a careful reprint of the edition of Cadell and Davies' edition of 1800 in two volumes under the superintendence of George Chalmers. Some few pieces, traced to the authorship of Ramsay, have been added, with a few illustrative and explanatory notes—distinguished from the original notes—and some slight alterations in the punctuation; all of them improvements. A portrait of the poet and a view of his house at Castle Hill, Edinburgh, appear in this edition, which has been produced in a style worthy the fame of the poet. The author of the "Gentle Shepherdess" must not be confounded, however, with his gifted son, Allan Ramsay the painter, whose prose writings and especially his "Lives of the Painters" are well known and admired.

The Poetical Works of John Struthers have been produced by Messrs. Fullarton in two volumes, uniform with the books already noticed. Struthers is less widely known as a poet, but he produced two very charming epics—the "Poor Man's Sabbath," and the "House of Mourning," as well as numerous sonnets, lyrics, and shorter pieces. He was born at East Kilbride in Lanarkshire, of humble parents, in 1776, and for more than half a century amused his leisure by the production of poems more or less of a religious character. The present edition is prefaced by an autobiography bearing date 1850, full of curious information as to the poet and his publishers; and as the work of a man of seventy-four, is a very remarkable production. That Struthers should have been rescued from mere manual labour and should for many years have been employed in more congenial pursuits in the printing-office of his publishers, and in the Stirling's public library at Glasgow, is creditable alike to him and to his countrymen. They manage these matters better on the other side of the Tweed. One of Lancashire's sweetest songsters, John Critchley Prince, has just died in the extreme poverty; but then he had the misfortune to be an Englishman; and people only discovered his genius and his want when the time had passed for relieving the one or fairly acknowledging the other.

As already observed, these reprints cannot but do good service to the public; especially the young, to whom they will afford unmixed delight.

Passages from the Poets. Dr. Giles. (Terry Stoneman & Co.)—Specimens from the writings of more than four hundred poets, beginning with John Barboni and Geoffrey Chaucer (1316—1400) and ending with Frederic Locker and Eliza Cook, make up this rather bulky octavo. "The history of a book," says Dr. Giles in his preface, "often gives pleasure, if to no one else, yet to the writer." These passages may be said, in a certain sense, to be only the "fourth edition of a much smaller volume," which appeared in 1836, was reprinted, with additions, in 1838, and was again enlarged in 1861. The chronological arrangement is a judicious one, as it allows the reader at once to assign the poet under perusal to his proper place and time in the literary cosmos. "Some critics will no doubt say," continues Dr. Giles, "that this book is superfluous, for that there are already enough selections from the English poets without making new ones. I reply, that if the volumes previously published have been enough for the critics, they have not been enough for me. None of them has presented to my mind as an epic study that great phalanx of makers, which forms such a feature in our literature; and it remains for the public to judge the value of a book which has cost me more labour than if I had written the number of pages out of my own head." The labour has been well bestowed on the production of this satisfactory performance, especially in the selections from the earlier writers. In the list of living poets, however, we miss several names of mark: William Allingham, W. C. Bennett, Isa Craig, Edmund Falconer, J. H. Heraud, John Gibson Lockhart, Samuel Lover, Thomas Miller, Henry Milman, Edgar Allan Poe, and others; but if a fifth edition should be called for, these may well be added.

Christianity and Recent Speculation. (Maclaren, Edinb.)—The subjects discussed in this volume are—the "Bible not inconsistent with science," by the Rev. J. Smith; the "place and ends of miracles," by Dr. R. Rainy; "Spiritual Christianity in relation to secular progress," by Dr. W. G. Blaikie; the "purpose and form of Scripture," by the Rev. A. Crichton; "Prayers and natural law," by Dr. J. Dunn; and the "Sabbath," by the Rev. Principal Candlish, who also furnishes a prefatory note explaining the origin and design of the volume.

The Wild Garland. (Pitman).—The second volume of Mr. Reeve's "Curiosities of Poetry," consists of epigrams, literary, artistic, typographical, clerical, historical, legal, official, medical, naval and military, commercial, convivial, satirical, dramatic, amatory, and miscellaneous, culled from all manner of sources, and necessarily of all degrees of merit. It is a very pleasant volume to read, to such as are fond of this kind of literary exercise; and, unlike Mr. Booth's collection, consists rather of modern than of ancient examples. Some of the epigrams quoted are original. We do remember to have seen the following, which may almost be said to have a present application:—

"Ho! Tommy," bawls Type, to a brother in trade,
"The ministry are soon to be changed, it is said."
"That's good," replied Tom, "but it better would be
With a trifling omission."—"What?" "Delete the c."

We understand that the "Wild Garland" is to be completed by a volume of epitaphs.

Religious Reform Movement in Italy. By Wm. Talmadge.—(Rivington.) For some years past there has been growing in the midst of the Roman Catholic Church a spirit of discontent and desire for change. The old forms and ceremonies which exercised so great an influence over the poor and uneducated, fail to satisfy the religious needs of the cultured and refined. Hence there is, in Italy especially, a general movement towards religious reformation, which—according to the view taken by Mr. Talmadge—if not frankly and liberally met by the Romish clergy, will gather strength like a torrent, and sweep Romanism from Southern Europe. At present, the most eminent members of the "Liberal Catholic Party in Italy," seem to have two principal objects in view—the separation of Church and State, and the suppression of the religious orders. They do not, as yet, openly promulgate these opinions, because they consider them too much in advance of the intelligence and enlightenment of the great bulk of their countrymen; but, it is averred, that the time is rapidly drawing nigh when they will not shrink from a complete breach with Rome. The volume before us—consisting principally of letters which have appeared in the Guardian newspaper—is intended to inform English churchmen of the true state of religious opinion in the stronghold of the Papacy.

Lyrical Thoughts. (Seton and Mackenzie: Edinburgh.)—The author of the "Pole-Star of Faith" has in his "Lyrical Thoughts" sustained his reputation; for few religious poems lately issued are more truly poetical than these modest verses. The principal poem, the "Abbey ruins of Tweedside," is full of devotional sentiment; and, in the score or more of shorter pieces which follow, the same high standard is reached.

Messrs. Chambers have commenced a new six-penny series, under the title of "Useful Handbooks." The three handbooks already published are severally devoted to "Gymnastics," "Rowing and Yachting," and "Cricket," the latter from the pen of Captain Crawley, an authority on all kinds of in-door and out-door games. These are to be followed by Croquet, Chess, Draughts, Domestic Economy, &c.

The Boys' Favourite.—Under this name, and with a frontispiece and title-page in gold and colours, Messrs. Darton issue the first volume of the "Boys' Journal," a monthly periodical which has attained a considerable sale. In its present form the volume will be welcomed by many inquiring youths.

Cosas de Espana, illustrative of Spain and Spaniards as they are. By MRS. WM. PITT BYRNE. Two vols. STRAHAN. Some curiosity has been excited of late as to the social condition of the Spanish people. Newspaper writers have amused us with their accounts of life in "The Peninsula," and various have been the conjectures as to the political and moral progress of our ancient allies. Mrs. Byrne's volumes come very opportunely; for she appears to have resided in the country long enough to have familiarized herself with it and its inhabitants, and to have become fairly acquainted with the political and domestic condition of Spain. She removes the veil which has long hung before the eyes of English readers, and in her volumes we get what, at any rate, appears to be an unprejudiced view of Spanish life and manners. The moral of her book is, that progress is really at work in Spain, notwithstanding the sloth and tardiness which are the great characteristics of modern Spaniards. The introduction of railways and the telegraph has, it seems, awakened new life in the inhabitants; and though many parts of the country are, as yet, only partially cultivated; though the condition of society is still very primitive beyond the area of the great cities; though the Spaniards are conservative to a degree that seems incomprehensible to the striving Englishman; though the growth of manufactures is slow, and the extension of commerce fitful; nevertheless, changes are being wrought in Spain, which must eventually break down the apathy and indifference which have hitherto been observable in all ranks of the Spanish people. "The indolence of the Spaniard," says our author, "is the fatal blot in his character, the pars magna in his inferiority and the prevailing cause of all his shortcomings. He has not the energy to improve the advantage to which nature has made him the legitimate heir, and he only recognises their value when they are returned to him fashioned and manufactured by the ingenuity, the skill, and the industry of strangers. When thus presented to him ready for use, he has no objection to avail himself of articles conducive to his comfort; but, even then, he proceeds with the nonchalance and indifference inherent in his anomalous nature." And yet this is the man who is supposed to have inherited genius and invention from the Moors, gallantry and courage from the conquerors of Mexico and Peru, enterprise and love of change from the discoverers and colonizers of the New World! The man who boasts of Cervantes and glories in Murillo, wakes up into brief enthusiasm at the mention of Ferdinand and Isabella, and becomes eloquent and musical when he tells of the deeds of Abderhaman and the Cid! Truly a strange compound. But Mrs. Byrne, in her wanderings through Castilia and Segovia, Valladolid and Madrid, the Basques and Cordova, Toledo and La Mancha, Burgos and Seville, sees much to remind her of the ancient glories of a great historical people, and much to lend belief to the idea that a brilliant future is in store for the modern inheritors of Spain's wondrous and romantic traditions. The volumes are full of bright pen pictures, strange scenes, and novel incidents, and will be read with interest alike by travellers, to whom Spanish scenery and Spanish life are familiar, and those numerous stay-at-home travellers, who, perforce, must get their knowledge of foreign parts at second-hand. They are handsomely produced, with numerous illustrations on wood, well drawn and well engraved.

Gossip about Portraits. By W. F. Tiffin. (H. G. Bohn.)—Though not by any means intended as a Guide to the National Portrait Exhibition, this account of the principal engraved portraits of celebrated personages will be found very useful to those who visit the gallery now open at South Kensington. Many interesting facts connected with the portraits and the persons they represent have been collated by Mr. Tiffin. His book is a "gossip," and something more; for it seems to us to form the nucleus of a treatise on this interesting topic.

UNDERSELLING.—As but few persons attended the last general meeting, held in London, to receive the report of the Committee, it will be of interest to our country readers to know what was the nature of the report then read; we therefore print it in full:—

"Your Committee have had several meetings, and have spent much time in deliberation, during which they had under consideration the various methods which at different times have been suggested for the prevention or mitigation of underselling, and in order to ascertain the opinions of the Trade generally as to the effects of the practice, as well as to ascertain the views which were entertained respecting the propriety of adopting some measures for the correction of the evil, it was considered desirable to issue a circular soliciting information on the various topics. In preparing this circular, your Committee thought it right to particularise the different matters which have justly formed grounds of complaint, as well as several suggestions which had been made for their correction; these they incorporated in a series of questions, which elicited numerous answers, of which they now proceed to give the substance.

"First, as to the information received bearing upon the present condition of the Retail portion of the Trade. This is represented as being in such an unsatisfactory state that men of intelligence are either leaving it altogether, or are turning their attention to other branches of business which yield them more profit; and that educated young men are deferred from engaging therein, in consequence of there being no reasonable prospect of their ever obtaining a sufficient remuneration. And to those who from various causes are prevented from turning to other trades, even if they had the opportunity, the effects of underselling are such that they are obliged to introduce stationery, toys and various other articles on which they mainly depend, in order to meet the necessary expenses which must be incurred in keeping the shop open.

2. "Underselling is also represented as having had the effect of injuring the sale of books, inasmuch as it prevents the regular bookseller from keeping such a stock as he otherwise would do, and, therefore, he as a general rule only procures the better class of books as they are ordered; and it is stated as one of the results of new books not being generally kept in stock, that the sale of a great number is lost from the want of the opportunity of their being seen; and thus both the author and the publisher are made to suffer.

3. "The practice of making an allowance to the public has been so extensively adopted that it appears to most of those who have replied, to be very questionable whether it can be altogether discontinued; although some, whose opinions are deserving of weight, express it as their belief that discount is unnecessary and uncalled for. All, however, or nearly all who have replied, are of opinion that whenever an allowance is made it should only be as a cash discount, and, with hardly an exception, all are agreed that no allowance should be made upon magazines or other periodicals, or where the amount of purchase does not exceed half-a-crown.

4. "The opinions expressed respecting an alteration in the discount to the trade differ very considerably. While some few are of opinion that a reduction in that allowance would so limit the profit to the retail bookseller as most effectually to prevent his granting any discount to the public, by far the greater number seem to think that the deductions now made from the publication prices do not leave more than a remunerating profit for the capital and labour employed. And with reference to the custom of allowing odd copies of books when a number are purchased, although some persons are strong in their denunciations of this practice, yet the majority are of opinion that it should be retained, both as an inducement for the intelligent buyer to take a larger number than he otherwise would be inclined to do, and as an additional remuneration for a larger outlay of capital.

5. "Both London and country booksellers unite in the opinion that the country Trade ought to be able to buy from the publishers and from the wholesale houses on the same terms as the London bookseller, and that the charge for commission, should be confined to a very few articles.

6. "A few persons appear to advocate the issuing of books without any fixed price; at least nineteen out of every twenty of those persons who have expressed an opinion upon the subject are opposed to this plan. All seem to scout the idea which has been mooted, of only advertising the trade price, nor has any other than the present plan been generally recommended.

7. "It appears to be generally conceded that when a publisher has once sold copies of any work which he has issued, he has no further control over those copies, they being to all intents and purposes the property of the purchaser, and that no one has any right to prevent his doing what he pleases with them. But almost all the Trade appear to be of opinion that if a publisher finds that any bookseller to whom he has sold copies of works published by him, is retailing those books at a reduced rate to the public, beyond the usual and recognised discount for cash payments, and to the injury both of his books, and of his other customers, he has a perfect right to refuse to supply such bookseller with any other books at less than the full publication prices.

8. "Opinion appears to be very much divided as to the means to be employed in remedying the evil which all are so ready to acknowledge. Some persons think that the Retail portion of the Trade should alone unite for their own protection, and agree amongst themselves upon certain provisions, which each member should consider as especially binding upon him. Others think that the Publishers and Wholesale Booksellers have it in their own power to check underselling, by positively refusing to supply any persons who adopt that practice.

9. "The desire for some united effort, on the part of booksellers, both in London and the country, has been almost universally expressed; and many leading country booksellers have stated their readiness to assist in the formation of Local Committees should a Central Association be formed in London with which they could be in correspondence.

10. "It has been suggested, and very generally acquiesced in, that a trade certificate should be issued, for which a small charge might be made, by way of defraying the necessary expenses of the Association:—and that without the possession of one of these certificates no person should be recognised as a bookseller; nor allowed to participate in the advantages which are intended only for the trade.

"Having ascertained what appears to be the general opinion of the trade upon the various subjects referred to in the preceding paragraphs, your Committee have agreed upon the following recommendations:—

1. "With respect to discount, your Committee think that in London, in Manchester, and in many other places, the practice of making an allowance has been so extensively adopted that it will be next to impossible to stop it entirely, even if the trade generally came to an agreement to give none: the public have been led to expect it, and will not be satisfied unless some allowance be made. Your Committee therefore believe that the principle of making some allowance must be admitted; but they also believe that the trade may be induced to agree to some limit, and they would recommend that limit to be, at the very outside, an allowance of two-pence in the shilling, and that no allowance whatever be made upon purchases not exceeding half-a-crown, also that magazines and periodicals should invariably be charged at the full publication prices.

2. "Taking into consideration the opinions expressed, your Committee are not disposed to recommend any general alteration in the present trade allowances. They, however, think that some books might with advantage be published without any retail price being affixed: they also believe that it would be a benefit if the trade allowance upon some books could be reduced, so that it would be impossible for the most inveterate underseller to advertise any given rate of discount off all books indiscriminately. Some checks of this kind would go far to mitigate the mischief complained of by many very respectable members of the trade.

3. "Having regard to the great facilities of communication between London and the Provinces, your Committee are disposed to think that country buyers should, as far as possible, be placed upon an equality with those of London.

4. "Your Committee are not disposed to recommend any measures of a coercive character. Whatever is done must be done with the goodwill of the parties concerned. They, however, believe that if the Trade generally would agree to some settled rules, and honestly endeavour to abide by them, and discourage all evasions, there would be found very few persons who would systematically set their brethren at defiance, or attempt to carry out any plan which they saw to be either injurious or annoying to others. Fair competition must be encouraged and fostered, and your Committee are most undesirous of recommending the adoption of any measures which would cramp the free energies of the more intelligent and enterprising members of the Trade.

5. "For the purpose of promoting greater unity of action amongst the members of the Trade, and for the promotion of its interests, your Committee would recommend the formation of a General Association, to consist of all members of the Trade within a certain radius of the Metropolis; also that local Associations be formed in every town in the country. That a Committee of Publishers and wholesale and retail booksellers be appointed, and that the Secretaries or Presidents of local Associations should be ex-officio members of the Central Committee; they believe that such an Association would tend to promote harmonious action and good feeling on the part of the Trade generally. They also recommend that all the members of the Association should meet together once a year.

6. "With the view of confining the privileges of the trade to its own members, your Committee recommend the issue of a Bookseller's Certificate, in order to identify its possessor as one who is entitled to purchase at trade price; and that this should be renewed annually.

"In making the above recommendations, your Committee desire it to be understood that they have endeavoured to conform to the generally expressed wishes of the Trade, and have only recommended what they considered practicable. Individually, many members of the Committee would on some points be disposed to recommend somewhat different measures; but in coming to these conclusions, they believe that they have honestly discharged the duties committed to them. They regret their inability to point out any immediate cure for an evil of such long standing; but they believe that one great end will be accomplished if, by their recommendations being adopted, a better and more brotherly spirit can be cultivated."

THE LATE MR. JAMES NICHOL, PUBLISHER.

We briefly announced the sudden death of this gentleman in our last number. Only a few weeks previous he had been in London and the provinces on his usual journey, and to most of his friends in the trade the startling intimation that Mr. James Nichol was no more, and that a business friendship and connection of many years' standing was suddenly closed, came with painful surprise.

For some months past his more immediate friends had noticed that his health was not so good as it had been, but no apprehensions were entertained. On the morning of the 23rd of last month he was struck down while leaving his own house for business, and although he lingered on until the 26th, for him "there was to be no more light in this world," and the anxious and tender solicitude of the members of his family was by him unfelt and unheeded.

Mr. Nichol was born in Brechin, in Forfarshire, in 1806. He was a member of a family remarkable for talent; his elder brother was the well-known Professor of Astronomy in Glasgow University, and his nephew, a son of the late professor, occupies the chair of Rhetoric in that university. His father, who is still remembered as an active and clever man of business, was a merchant in that town, and the tenant of a farm in the neighbourhood. At the age of fourteen Mr. Nichol was apprenticed to Mr. John Smith, bookseller, Montrose, and on completing his apprenticeship he commenced business in that town, to be afterwards joined by his younger brother, Mr. Davidson Nichol, now well known in the wholesale stationery trade.

For a number of years the Brothers Nichol carried on an extensive and prosperous business, and although dating from a small country town of some fourteen thousand inhabitants, they were as well known to the London trade and in metropolitan book salerooms, as any of their Edinburgh contemporaries, their stock of books new and second hand being as varied, ample, and valuable as could then be seen out of London. To this day the influence of the Messrs. Nichol is felt in Montrose. An active and intelligent bookseller can make the people about him a reading and cultivated population; and this is notably the case in Montrose, which is known to many of our wholesale friends as a better book town than many a place with five times its wealth and population. But the field in Montrose was too narrow for the energy and enterprise at work upon it, and unfortunate reverses induced a breaking up of the business.

Mr. James Nichol came to Edinburgh and took the management of the business of Mr. John Johnstone, publisher, (now Johnstone, Hunter, & Co.), at that time and for years afterwards an extensive and important business. In 1850, he commenced business on his own account; and if he had done no more than published "The Library Edition of the British Poets," which bears his name, and his edition of "Our Standard Divines," he has left his mark upon the literature of the country, and given no mean evidence of his enterprise and sagacity. The publication of "The Library Edition of the Poets," consisting of forty-eight volumes, was commenced in 1853. Previous to that period cheap editions of standard authors were associated in the minds of the trade with worthless texts and inferior get-up. Mr. Nichol's announcement that six demy 8vo volumes, printed on fine paper, and handsomely bound in cloth, giving an accurate and carefully-edited text, would be issued annually, at a charge to the public of three shillings and sixpence a volume, took the trade by surprise, and many were the prognostications of failure. Profiting by his experience as a retail bookseller, and knowing the value of a personal and intimate connection with the trade on the part of the publisher, Mr. Nichol visited the principal members of the trade throughout the kingdom, and succeeded in interesting them in his bold venture, which was ultimately carried out with triumphant success.

In his "Library of Standard Divines," commenced on the completion of the Series of the Poets in 1861, Mr. Nichol has, we believe, rendered a more important service to the public, as many of our old Divines were out of print, and could only be had by the few, and in old editions commanding a high price; thirty volumes are already published, and we are glad to know that his scheme was thoroughly matured during his lifetime, and that the series will be completed by his son, Mr. John D. Nichol, who, after being associated with his father for sixteen years, succeeds him in business.

While Mr. James Nichol will be long remembered as an enterprising and successful publisher, his many intimates will not soon forget the warm friend, the sagacious counsellor, and the good and Christian man. Many men in the trade owe much to his wise counsel and considerate service. He had a peculiar pleasure in associating with, and assisting the young and inexperienced, and to many such, his death is the loss of a trusted friend and guide.—Contributed.
